Union Spurns White House Plea to End Rail Strikes

Steelman Reports 'No Progress' After Late Parley; Calls More Talks Today

The White House announced early today that railroad unions had refused to call off their token strikes on some lines but there was no hint the Government would seize the facilities.

President Truman had called the meeting.

Presidential Assistant John R. Steelman, saying there "had been no progress whatever," said he would report to President Truman today.

Meanwhile, he told union and railroad representatives he would call them back for further conferences this morning. He set no time.

Steelman said he specifically requested the unions to call off their strikes. They refused, he said.

Eben Ayers, assistant White House press secretary, said the two groups met during the afternoon and night in separate rooms at the White House.

Chairman Francis A. O'Neill, jr., and Leveritt Edwards of the National (Railway) Mediation Board sat in the day talks.

"Dr. Steelman couldn't find a common basis on which to get them together," Ayers said.

Before the meeting broke up, members of the National Mediation Board sat in at the separate meetings. But they reported no progress.

The two unions want the work week reduced from 48 to 40 hours for those in yard service, at no decrease in pay, and wage boosts for those in train service.

The unions singled out key terminals in Louisville and St. Paul, and the Republic Steel Corp.'s own switching terminal at Cleveland for the first display of pressure. About 1000 men walked out this morning for five days. Union officials said this would make idle about 30,000 including steel workers.

Today at 6 a. m. both unions will strike U. S. Steel Corp.'s railroad, the Elgin, Joliet & Eastern, Chicago, along with the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie Railroad, Pittsburgh, for five days. The unions say that will make an additional 50,000 workers idle, tying up large steel, coal and iron ore movements into the big industrial centers.

The unions have insisted that President Truman use his powers under a 1916 act to seize the railroads. They say they'll keep their 300,000 members on the job if the Government takes over.

Canadian Hopes Dim for Ending of Rail Strike Threat

Ottawa, Aug. 21 (AP).—Mail, freight and telegraphic services began grinding to a halt across Canada today as hopes dimmed that a nationwide strike of 124,000 railway workers—scheduled to start tomorrow morning—could be called off.

Day-long efforts of special mediator, Dr. W. A. Mackintosh, to bring managers of Canada's two railroad systems—Canadian National and Canadian Pacific railroads stretching from coast to coast—and leaders of 17 rail workers' unions to agreement appeared to have failed. But 11th hour negotiations were still going on.

Unless agreement is reached, Canada's entire rail transport system and allied operations such as railroad-owned shipping, telegraphs and cables and services to connecting United States rail lines will cease operations at 6 a. m. Tuesday.

Capital Transit Begins Fight Against Pepco Rate Increase

F. GLOYD AWALT
. . . Charges bad faith

By Richard Lyons
Post Reporter

A Capital Transit Co. attorney charged Potomac Electric Power Co. with bad faith in effect yesterday as hearings started on Pepco's request for an average 9.5 percent rate increase.

In an opening statement at the District Building proceedings, Attorney F. Gloyd Awalt told the Public Utilities Commission:

"It seems to us ill-advised that Pepco should wait until almost immediately after Capital Transit obtained its increase which this commission granted after having —as we thought at the time—all the available facts before it, and then to come before this commission with a request that will saddle the transit riders with additional charges if it is granted."

"The delayed tactics of Pepco have made Capital Transit's recent increase meaningless," Awalt continued. "It would seem that Pepco, with knowledge aforethought, led this commission and Capital Transit astray."

McCarran Anti-Red Bill Set for Action

Democratic Leaders Guarantee to Take Up Catch-All Measure

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

An early showdown on sweeping anti-Communist legislation was scheduled last night even as Senate Administration forces dealt at least a temporary setback to the Mundt-Ferguson bill.

Authors of the far-reaching Red control measure called off an attempt to tie it to the Administration's economic control bill after a Democratic caucus unanimously resolved to oppose it as a "rider."

But in forestalling an immediate test, Senate Democratic leaders gave a flat guarantee that the Senate will consider the McCarran bill, a catch-all of nearly all pending anti-Red measures, right after the vote on the tax bill.

In the dickering that followed the Democratic caucus action:

1. Senators Karl E. Mundt (R., S. Dak.) and Homer Ferguson (R., Mich.) pulled back their rider, strenuously opposed by the Administration.

2. Senate Judiciary Chairman Pat McCarran (D., Nev.) agreed to "accept" amendments to his own omnibus antisubversive bill to assure the Senate of a Mundt-Ferguson test.

Across the Capitol, meanwhile, the House Un-American Activities Committee unanimously approved a revamped version of the Mundt-Ferguson bill and sought to push it to an early House vote.

The Administration, which recently recommended a much more limited approach, thus appeared faced with probable approval of legislation that goes far beyond its own proposed anti-sabotage program.

In recommending a minimum internal security program, President Truman warned against enacting "a wave of hysteria" legislation endangering the freedoms of speech, press and assembly.

Though he did not mention the Mundt-Nixon bill by name, he implied it would spread a legal dragnet sufficiently broad to permit the prosecution of people "who are entirely innocent or merely misguided."

The President's limited proposals, chiefly tightening antisabotage laws now on the books, will

New Hurricane Heading Into Caribbean Sea

Reported 1400 Miles Off Florida; Storm No. 1 Dies Off Nova Scotia

Miami, Fla., Aug. 21 (AP).—Tropical hurricane No. 2 made its unwelcome appearance today in the Atlantic as hurricane No. 1, some 3000 miles to the north, blew its dying gasps at Nova Scotia.

Hurricane warnings fluttered over the Leeward and Virgin Islands and Puerto Rico was placed on the alert as the new storm—packing 100 mile an hour winds—moved west northwestward at about 8 to 10 miles per hour.

The small but rapidly developing storm—spawned in the same general area as hurricane No. 1—was discovered last night by the steamship Maurienne only 40 miles east of Antigua Island.

The new storm was more than 1400 miles southeast of the Florida mainland.

Hendricks Taken To Penitentiary As Parole Breaker

Homer R. Hendricks, former Washington tax attorney paroled last month from a 10-year prison term in the slaying of his wife, yesterday was returned to the Maryland State Penitentiary in Baltimore as a parole violator.

Hendricks, whose home is at 5515 Hampden la., Bethesda, was put in the Montgomery County Jail on Friday after parole officers said he threatened to take his own life and threatened other members of the household with violence.

A lifetime friend of Hendricks, who asked that his name not be used, said he was "shocked" that Hendricks was being returned to the penitentiary when he "desperately" needed psychiatric care. Hendricks was being returned to sentence in 1946, convicted of manslaughter in the death of his wife, Gertrude, 42.

10 Feet From Collision

Quick Switch of 'Wild' Engine Prevents Wreck of 'Southerner'

Smart, split-second railroading saved a crack streamliner of the Southern Railway System—some 200 passengers aboard—from a head-on collision with a runaway switch engine here last night.

With only 10 feet to spare, the 'wild' engine was shunted into collision with an empty passenger train—only two railroadmen aboard.

Four cars of the empty passenger train were derailed. Its conductor and brakeman were injured slightly when they jumped out.

The streamliner, the Southerner, a New York-New Orleans special five minutes from Union Station, was delayed for about an hour. All activity in the Washington Terminal yards also was tied up.

The decision to shunt the runaway was made by 27-year-old Joseph Callow of 1411 T st. se., in switch tower C, who has been working for the Washington Terminal about two years.

Treated for minor cuts at Emergency Hospital was the conductor of the empty train, Carl McCoy, 32, of Ardmore, Md. Brakeman C. E. Hamlett, 24, of 244 Hamilton st. nw., was treated at Union Station for a gashed knee.

Callow was alerted to the danger of the 'wild' engine by the megaphoned shouts of other employes at the switch yards, 3d st. and Florida ave. ne.

The runaway had already passed two switching points—Wire Bridge and New York ave.—and was approaching Callow's stand at Tower C.

The time was approximately 9:45 p. m.

The switch engine, the stationmaster's office said, had been standing in the yards gathering steam.

Controls Bill Passed With Price Proviso

Senate Turns Down Selective Action By President in Calling for Ceilings

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

The Senate last night approved legislation giving the President most of the economic control measures he requested, but in a considerably twisted form.

It also gave him price and wage-control powers which he did not want, and in a form that makes them virtually impossible for him to apply.

The action was taken in eight hours of debate and steady voting on more than a score of amendments. Most of the amendments to which the Administration had the deepest objections were defeated.

But the Democrats lost, by a 50-to-36 vote, on a key modification that would appear to strip the President of all discretion if he should attempt to install price and wage ceilings.

The final vote on the bill, a mere formality was 85 to 3. The measure now goes to a Senate-House conference where an attempt must be made to reconcile it with the legislation by the House.

The measure approved by the lower body is fairly close to what President Truman sought. It includes stand-by authority to apply wage and price controls and rationing. But it allows the President wide discretion in how it should be done.

The Senate bill, as amended last night, on motions by Senator Wherry (R., Nebr.) and Bricker (R., Ohio), is an "all or nothing" affair. If the President seeks to put a ceiling on any price, he must put ceilings on all prices, and all wages, across the boards and simultaneously.

It could not be immediately determined, from the terms of the rigid amendment the Senate adopted, whether the Administration would have any discretion at all in price and wage controls—whether any exemptions were possible or whether any changes, adjustments, rectifications or corrections of inequities could be affected.

But in any event, it is clear that the Administration cannot hope to apply ceilings under terms of the Senate measure for many months, until it built up a huge OPA-like administration to handle price and wage fixing for all the millions of industrial and farm products, and workers, throughout the country.

Democratic leaders hope to eliminate the rigid provision in the Senate-House conference, adopting the permissive terms of the lower chamber. They declined last night to embrace an alternative offered them by Senator Capehart (R., Ind.). It would have eliminated completely the stand-by wage-price-rationing section of the bill.

Although the Executive Branch certainly would have preferred the outright elimination of the section—so it could send to Congress a more carefully drafted measure if ever it needed those powers—Democratic Senators voted against the idea. In the face of insistent public demand for putting a freeze on prices, Senators feared a vote

Equal Status Allotted to Naval Flying

Joint Chiefs Give It New Position Of Readiness, Plan Full Modernization

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Top Defense chiefs have reached an agreement that naval aviation shall be maintained at the same "state of relative readiness" as the Air Force, with the warplane procurement programs of both based on the same rate of modernization.

Under this significant decision, the regular operating forces—except for trainers—and part of the reserve components will become completely up to date with sufficient planes on order to keep them 100 percent modern.

By Mutual Agreement

Eleven of the 27 National Guard groups and that part of the Navy and Marine Corps Organized Air Reserve which has early wartime missions—those units earmarked for mobilization within the first two to three months after M-Day—will be reequipped with the latest aircraft under the 1951 6.5 billion dollar plane procurement program.

The decision to put the Air Force and the Navy on the same basis of aircraft modernization was agreed to by all concerned, it was learned. Heretofore, there has been sharp disagreement over the size of naval aviation and the division of the plane order money.

Only last year, Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson disclosed that he had resolved a split decision of the Joint Chiefs of Staff over the size of the naval air operating force to be maintained. Part of the JCS, he said, wanted a force built around four aircraft carriers and he had increased it to six—a level below what the Navy wanted.

10 to 12 Carriers

It was widely reported then that under this "split paper," the Army had voted for four carriers and the Air Force for none.

Indicative of the better spirit of unification now prevailing, the JCS decision last month on the permanent level of strength to be maintained during the world emergency was unanimous. Moreover, it was reached with little prior disagreement.

The naval air strength called for under that agreement—approved by the President—has not been disclosed, but has been estimated as built around 10 to 12 big carriers.

A lot more time and discussion went into the next two decisions on the subject, but they, too, finally were unanimous.

The first was that both the USAF and Navy air arms would be maintained at the same "relative readiness" and both be kept 100 percent modern. That had not been the case before. Annual Air Force appropriations had permtted them to maintain a higher proportion of units equipped with first-line planes than was the case with the Navy.

Finally came the discussions over the actual money. The regular 1951 appropriation bill had carried $1,550,000,000 for USAF

Calls Arrest 'A Mystery'

Arlington Man Is Arraigned For Contempt of U. S. Spy Jury

An Arlington man who formerly worked for the Army Signal Corps' hush-hush Arlington Hall Station was arraigned in Federal court at Los Angeles yesterday on a contempt charge stemming from alleged failure to appear before a grand jury investigating espionage, according to the Associated Press.

He is Russian-born William W. Weisband, of 2503 S. Adams st., who served in the Army from 1942 to 1946 as a lieutenant, and was attached to Arlington Hall Station. After leaving the Army, according to his wife, he worked in a civilian capacity at Arlington Hall Station until this past May, when he was suspended for reasons she did not know.

Weisband was jailed in lieu of $1000 bail pending entry of his plea September 11, the Associated Press said.

The Government alleged that Weisband, called before the Grand Jury while on a trip to California, failed to answer a summons to appear again later, the Associated Press said.

The wire service said Weisband told a reporter that the case "is all a mystery to me." He said he did appear, answered questions about people he knew when he was a hotel night clerk in Los Angeles in 1941, returned East and upon going to Los Angeles again August 16 was asked to appear once more.

He said he told a Government official that he could not remain

Aussie Unit Ready to Join British Force

Hongkong (Tuesday), Aug. 22 (U.P.).—A small vanguard of British officers will fly to Korea today to set up a communications network for a full brigade—4000 men—of infantry preparing for "immediate" action against the North Koreans.

Two battalions of tough Scottish and English infantrymen from Hongkong with their own engineers and artillery will join a third battalion of Australians now stationed in Japan. The British troops will board a chartered ship this week to become the first non-American reinforcements for the United Nations forces.

One of the three battalions is composed of Scottish Highlanders, the famed "Ladies From Hell," whose wailing bagpipes struck terror into enemy hearts in two world wars.

Another is the First Battalion of the Middlesex Regiment, traditionally stubborn in defense, which with the Highlanders—the first Argyll and Sutherlands—have guarded Hongkong against Communist invasion.

A-Bomb Patent Holder Sues U. S. For $10 Million

By the United Press

A $10,000,000 damage suit has been filed against the Government for allegedly using without payment a key atom bomb process invented by Nobel prize-winning physicist Dr. Enrico Fermi, it was revealed yesterday.

An attorney for G. M. Giannini & Co., Inc., a Pasadena, Calif., firm which holds patent rights on the discovery, filed the suit in the United States Court of Claims.

He said it is separate from another claim filed for an unspecified amount with the Atomic Energy Commission for use of the process since the Atomic Energy Act of August, 1946. The act revoked patents rights on the process when it was used for production of fissionable material, atomic energy as a military weapon, or for research and development.

South Koreans Maul Enemy Near Pohang

Red Division Trapped In Vise, Loses Heavily In Men and Materiel

By Marguerite Higgins

With South Korean Forces on the East Coast Front, Korea, Aug. 21 (NYHT).—The entire North Korean Seventh Division, trapped in a mammoth vise here, has been routed in the past 48 hours by the crack South Korean Eighteenth and Seventeenth (Tiger) Regiments which inflicted a record of 4000 casualties in this area still littered with the decaying dead and debris of war.

In the biggest South Korean victory of the war, the two regiments also bagged masses of enemy equipment on this east coast front which at this moment is the good news spot of the war.

Defenders Offended

In another triumph the South Korean Third Division, whose current attack north is ahead of schedule, three days ago retook Pohang, the city nearest to the vital airstrip here. A month and a half ago this strip was the objective of an American amphibious landing.

Fearing Communist encirclement, the Fifth Air Force last week pulled their planes and supplies away from the strip. This caused much indignation within Task Force Bradley, the American outfit charged with securing the safety of the field. The task force had assured the airmen the strip would stay out of enemy hands—and it did.

The slaughter of the North Korean Seventh Division took place in the area just west of the coast near the town of Kigye. The encirclement of the enemy became possible because the Tiger regiment was hurrying to this area to help in the defense of Pohang.

Col. Kim Tells Story

The colorful Seventeenth Regimental commander, Col. Kim Yap, whose helmet bears a bright yellow tiger, was himself wounded in the engagement, being hit by shell fragments in the left arm and the right hand. But he never once went out of the lines.

Although busy with the new attack, Colonel Kim was more than eager today to pause and tell the story of the Communist rout.

80 Tons of Bombs Dropped

New Railyards at Pyongyang Left in Flames by B-29 Raid

Tokyo, Aug. 21 (U.P.).—B-29 Superforts bombed an emergency railroad yard near Pyongyang into a mass of flames today after earlier air strikes had "eliminated" the main yards at the North Korean capital.

The Communists, working frantically to send supplies south, had pressed smaller yards into emergency service. The emergency yards were hit with 80 tons of bombs.

Strike reports said the shunting yards became a perfect square of reddish smoke and flames when the bombs struck and First Lieut. Owen A. McLaughlin of Miami, Fla., said the yards appeared full of ammunition and gasoline. They were reported half-filled with freight cars.

Other B-29s and light bombers struck at railroad facilities in a dozen smaller cities, blasted port facilities at Wonsan, finished knocking out the railway bridge at Seoul and hammered relentlessly at Red supply columns.

Fifth Air Force headquarters said fighter pilots reported an intense movement of supplies down to the Communist Sixth Division headquarters area near Chinju Monday and a similar buildup on the west side of the Naktong near Waegwan.

The Air Force, Navy and Marine pilots paid particular attention to these forces, strafing them unmercifully, and dropping fire bombs on likely places of concealment. Other planes ranged farther north to cut off the Red supplies.

A spokesman for Gen. Douglas MacArthur said American fighter planes making a sweep south from Seoul shot up a Red convoy with rockets and 20 millimeter shells. It was one of the few instances where Communist convoys moved by day.

Reds Halted Above Taegu And on South End of Line

North Koreans Lose More Than 15,000 In 4 Days; New Drive On Pusan Expected

Tokyo (Tuesday), Aug. 22 (AP)—North Korean Reds attacked again today at both ends of the western front, but failed to crack United Nations defenses.

The Communists pulled back after sharp fighting with American infantry, U. S. Eighth Army Headquarters reported. They left behind more dead to add to a casualty toll already estimated at more than 15,000 Reds in four days.

Tanks led a battalion of Reds at 4:30 a. m. (2:30 p. m. Monday, EDT) in an attack on the U. S. 27th Regiment protecting the roads from the north to Taegu, a communique reported.

Red Tanks Destroyed

Several Red tanks were knocked out by this crack American regiment which smashed a similar assault on its right flank Monday morning with the aid of a spectacular phosphorous-lighted air and artillery barrage.

On the southern front, where the next big Communist offensive is expected to develop, the 35th Regiment of the United States Twenty-fifth Division beat back another morning attack in a four-hour battle without loss of ground, the communique said.

Other sectors held by American troops were reported quiet during the night and early morning.

Heavy United States guns shelled Communist positions in the Waegwan area where the Reds were believed regrouping northwest of Taegu. There was no answering fire.

Buildup in South

The Eighth Army said the situation was quiet southwest of Taegu where the North Koreans hold a pocket east of the Naktong River defense line in the United States Twenty-fourth Division sector.

In the far south, near the scene of today's clash on the Masan front, American pilots have reported a "terrific build up" of Reds for a new attempt to break through toward the key American base at Pusan on the southeastern tip of Korea.

The Reds have made a minor penetration on this southwest front but today's attack failed to improve it. The assault was preceded by a heavy mortar barrage. Red infantry attacked at 4 a. m. (2 p. m. Monday, EDT). They broke off at 8 a. m.

Nearby, Marine pilots engaged in a weird air operation—trying

Bulldozer Falls On Man, He's Rescued—Unhurt

Selden, L. I., Aug. 21 (NYHT).—The edge of a 15-foot excavation on new land crumbled today under the tred of a bulldozer and the driver, Howard L. Hodges, jumped for the far side of the pit. He missed it by a few inches and fell to the bottom.

The bulldozer came tumbling in after him, its tread still revolving. It landed astride Hodges, who was on his back. A leg of his overalls was caught in the tread and ripped from hem to waistband. His assistants, Howard Hull and Gabriel M. Lucas jr., managed with a stick to shift the bulldozer into neutral gear and shut off the engine. Still unable to see or hear the driver, the two men dug frantically for 15 minutes and unearthed one arm.

"Where's your legs?" shouted Lucas.

"I don't know," came the muffled reply.

The diggers found his legs with their shovels and finally pulled him out, uninjured. The bulldozer will have to stay where it is until it is lifted out with a crane.

2 D. C. Men Missing In Korean Action

PVT. GEORGE J. FARRELL, JR.

U. S. Marine Corps Photo
CAPT. JESSE V. BOOKER
. . . Marine flier also missing

The first Marine from the Washington area appeared on the Korean casualty list yesterday. Capt. Jesse V. Booker, 27, of 1511 44th st. nw., a Marine aviator and triple Distinguished Flying Cross holder, was reported missing in action.

Also missing in action: Army Pvt. George J. Farrell, jr., 22, son of George J. Farrell, 2403 22d st. ne.

Wounded in action: Army Sergt. Samuel A. Rowland, 28, of 28 Philadelphia ave., Takoma Park, whose wife works for the General Accounting Office.

Captain Booker is attached to the First Marine Air Wing, elements of which are giving close support to the First Provisional Marine Brigade in Korea. He is a fighter pilot and presumably was flying off a carrier.

Captain Booker is the son-in-law of Col. J. S. E. Young of 1511 44th st. nw., who is also a marine aviator and is stationed here with the Naval Examining Board. Mrs. Booker is staying with her parents.

Captain Booker is a well-decorated flier, holding the Distinguished Flying Cross with two gold stars and the Air Medal with 12 gold stars for flying exploits in Pacific campaigns. He saw action in the Solomons and the Bismark Archipelago, also with the First Marine Air Wing.

Born in Arlington, Tex., he attended schools there, then took two years at North Texas Agricultural College in Arlington. He was commissioned in March of 1943.

After the war, Captain Booker saw duty with Aircraft Fleet Marine Pacific, then against with the First Marine Air Wing in Tsingao, China.

Captain Booker's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Curtis V. Booker, live in Arlington, Tex.

Private Farrell's family received a letter from him in Korea postmarked August 1 saying he was fine, and about the middle of this month got a telegram from the War Department saying he was missing in action on August 2.

Born in Washington, Private Farrell attended grade schools here, then went to work for the Hycon Co. in Hyattsville, Md. Enlisting in the Army in September, 1949, he was sent to Fort Knox, Ky., for training in the tank corps, then to Japan with an engineers outfit.

Private Farrell's father is a stereotyper at Mercury Press. His mother died in June. He has four brothers and three sisters.

Sergeant Rowland's wife said she had been informed her husband is in Yokohama Hospital. He is with the Twenty-fourth Infantry Division. A native of Bonham, Tex., Sergeant Rowland has been in the service about eight years and went to Japan in July, 1949.

Mrs. Rowland is living with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Vannoy, in Takoma Park. The Rowlands have a son, Tony Charles, 3.

Meantime, the body of the first enlisted man dead of wounds in Korea arrived here yesterday for burial in Arlington Cemetery.

Sergt. Ernest K. Turner of Berwick, Pa., was wounded in Korea July 24 and died in a Tokyo Hospital four days later. His honors included the Silver Star, Soldier's Medal, Bronze Star and a Presidential Unit Citation. He saw 256 days of combat service in World War II. He will be buried at 2 p. m. Wednesday with full military honors.

Lieut. Howell G. Thomas, jr., of Washington, was the first officer killed in Korea to be buried in Arlington.

Other Washington area casualties reported yesterday by the Department of Defense:

Virginia: Army Pfc. Wallace M. Arnold, son of Jesse L. Breeden or Orange, and Corpl. John N. Wayland, son of Mrs. Minnie S. Wayland of Culpeper, both missing in action.

Maryland: Army Pfc. Edward D. Carder, son of Mrs. Martha E. Timbrook, of Cumberland, wounded.

Flying Guards Defend D. C. In 'Invasion'

The D. C. Air National Guard's 121st Fighter Squadron today resumes training for its mission as watchdog of the Washington area skies.

Guided by the electronic eyes of Andrews Air Force Base radar, the White House Squadron Thunderjets will fend off "attacks" by the Fifty-third Fighter Wing.

The "bogies," or attacking planes, will come sneaking in from somewhere in Delaware or from Byrd Field near Richmond, Va., where other units of the District Air Guard are currently encamped.

Now in the second week of its annual encampment, the 121st will wind up the day with some more air-to-air gunnery on the Navy-controlled range off Chincoteague, Va.

Hottest gunnery pilot in the outfit will receive a trophy when the training period ends this weekend. Last year's winner was the 121st's commander, Lieut. Col. W. W. Millikan, of 3346 Martha Custis dr., Alexandria.

Guards' Commander Makes Inspection Trip

Brigadier General William H. Abendroth, commanding general of the District National Guard, will make a flying inspection trip today to Byrd Field, Va., where the Guard's 213th Air Service Group and 113th Fighter Group Headquarters are in summer training.

Using an Air Guard C-47, Gen. Abendroth and his party will fly to Mitchel Field, Long Island, on Wednesday, to inspect the 113th Aircraft Control and Warning Squadron, which is training there. They will return to Washington Wednesday night.

Guard Units Off Friday For Active Duty Training

The 715th Transportation Truck Co., District National Guard, will leave "on or about" Friday for active duty training at Ft. Eustis, Va., near Norfolk, a Guard spokesman announced last night.

At about the same time, the 370th Signal Radar Maintenance Unit of the local Guard will entrain for Camp Gordon, Ga., for training, it was announced.

They'll train at Great Lakes, Ill.

30 Maryland Men to Be First Area Army Inductees of War

Thirty men from Montgomery and Prince Georges Counties will be sworn into the Army within the next 10 days in the first Washington area draft inductions since the Korean war began.

The first contingent of local men will include five from the Upper Marlboro draft board and three from the Rockville section, who are scheduled to report Thursday at the main Army-Air Force recruiting station at Arlington Farms.

Officers there said seven more men are scheduled for induction next Tuesday, six from the Chevy Chase area and one from Hyattsville. On August 31, nine more are expected from the Upper Marlboro board and six from Silver Spring.

A group of 86 District men yesterday received pre-induction physical and mental examinations at the Arlington Farms station. A total of 121 had been ordered to report, Selective Service officials said. A number of those who failed to show up had changed their addresses and had failed to notify their drawt boards, they said.

While yesterday's contingent were in the 23, 24 and 25-year bracket, four local boards are now sending notices to 22-year-olds for pre-induction tests.

The Arlington Farms station also received for induction processing one of Virginia's 204 so-called delinquents. They are men who failed to report for pre-induction physicals and who thus lost the 21-day waiting period usually allowed prior to induction. Yesterday's inductee was one of four registrants from Madison County, Va., ordered to be inducted. The three others failed to report.

5 GIs, Mostly Smiths, Hitch Ride Up to Get in Fighting

United States Twenty-seventh Regiment, Korea, Aug. 21 (AP).—Five dusty doughboys—three of them named Smith—trooped into a frontline command post today. They pleaded for permission to join infantry fighting the North Koreans in the mountains above them.

They had slipped off their jobs as truck drivers and freight handlers at a southern port and hitchhiked to the front.

"If they don't take us in this outfit then we will go on until we find somebody who will" said Pvt. Billy G. Smith of Irving, Tex. That Smith and his four pals—two of whom also hail from Texas—were members of the Quartermaster service unit in the rear area.

"We were working all day and snipers kept us awake all night," said Pvt. Earl B. Benson of Chillicothe, Ohio. "We wanted to get into the hills after the snipers but they would not let us. And they would not let us shoot back. I guess they figured the blast of our guns would draw more sniper fire."

The five youths appeared at the command post of the Second Battalion of the 27th Infantry Regiment, one of the crack outfits of the Eighth Army.

Billy Smith and Benson were accompanied by Pvt. James H. Smith of Hillsboro, Tex., Pvt. Robert R. Hall, Dallas, and Pvt. Norman B. Smith of Pocatello, Idaho.

Col. John (Mike) Michaelis, commanding the 27th, listened to their story and grinned:

"If the soldiers want to fight so much they'll hitchhike to the front then I am going to see that they stay with us and get into no trouble with the quartermaster."

Tobin Defends Korea Policy

Columbus, Ohio, Aug. 21 (AP).—Secretary of Labor Tobin today called criticism of the Administration's policy in Korea "simply not justified."

Tobin, who addressed the Ohio Federation of Labor's annual convention, referred chiefly to criticism by United States Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio).

"Mr. Taft's record is not to be criticized merely because he opposed the policies of the Truman Administration," Tobin said. "We need a helpful opposition in a democracy. But there is a point . . . where opposition becomes nothing but partisan obstructionism, and such obstructionism is harmful to the best interests of the Nation. For anyone to say that we asked for this attack because of our foreign policy is simply not justified in the light of the historical facts, and certainly not in the light of the critic's own record."

Both the AFL organization, which Tobin addressed, and the Ohio CIO have endorsed Taft's Democratic opponent in the November 7 election, State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson. The Ohio Federation of Labor has given "Beat Taft" program number one priority at its convention.

Referring to Taft's voting record, the Labor Secretary said:

"Senator Taft, who was against arms aid for Korea, who was against the military arms pact with Western Europe, and who spoke against the draft law as late as four days after the invasion of South Korea, was willing to say on July 28 that our Korean policy invited the attack."

Flare Shells Show Targets To U. S. Planes

By Don Whitehead

U. S. Twenty-seventh Regiment, Korea, Aug. 21 (AP).—American night-flying planes guided by flares shot from U. S. Artillery broke up a Red Korean attempt to outflank this crack infantry regiment in the overnight darkness of Sunday-Monday.

Perhaps for the first time in any war, artillery weapons acted as spotters for pilots. The big guns guided planes to targets with a flare-up of phosphorous shells breaking the darkness.

The night raid was believed to have broken the back of the enemy flanking move 12 miles north of Taegu.

On the ground infantry beat back an enemy counterattack during the night. This morning a patrol found five enemy tanks destroyed; two self-propelled guns, a troop carrier, and three trucks knocked out by artillery mortars and rocket fire.

Threatened Flank

These actions stalled the enemy's desperate effort to open a drive into Taegu.

The Red Army's Fifteenth, Thirteenth and Third Divisions were believed to have engaged in the battle north of Taegu. But the Red push was held by the United States Twenty-Seventh (Wolfhound) Regiment and by the First South Korean Division, working across mountains and valleys.

The enemy succeeded yesterday in geting two infantry battalions around a mountain on the Wolfhounds' flank. The Reds penetrated through a South Korean force and worked their way about 4000 yards toward Taegu.

Observers spotted the move and pin-pointed the Reds' position.

Capt. Willard W. Hawke of Seattle, said he believed the enemy was fighting for Taegu while trying to outflank the U. N. forces.

'No Trouble' Since Raid

After dark Sunday an Air Force tactical air control officer working with regimental artillery gave the gunners the position of enemy troops. While night fighters roared overhead, the artillery fired phosphorous shells into Red positions.

They gave the pilots their targets. Planes then strafed and dive-bombed the area.

"Air did a great job," Captain Hawke told reporters. "We have had no trouble from the enemy in that sector since the raid."

The artillery also exploded an enemy ammunition dump, which blazed in the night.

"There are indications that we have plastered hell out of the enemy in the last three days," Hawke said. "Each attack has been a dismal failure for them."

Patrol Knocks Out Tank

E Company of the Second Battalion sent out a patrol Monday morning led by Sergt. Edward J. Sokolowsky of Turners Falls, Mass., to make sure the enemy tanks were destroyed and could not be salvaged. One tank found damaged was dynamited. Sokolowsky's patrol went forward into a village to feel out the enemy positions. It withdrew after it met machinegun and mortar fire.

ECA Substitutes Emergency Items In Korea Program

The Economic Cooperation Administration said yesterday that because of the war it has canceled shipment of $20,387,000 worth of recovery goods to Korea and is substituting food, coal and other emergency items.

The canceled shipments included fertilizer, cotton, lumber products and industrial machinery which were authorized prior to the invasion as part of the peacetime economic aid to Korea.

"These goods are not needed under the present conditions," ECA said. "Their eventual use will be subject to the military situation."

Red China Asks Seat In U. N. Korea Talks

Pressing Truman

GOP Wants Statement Of War Aims

By The Associated Press

Republican pressure built up in Congress yesterday for a statement by President Truman of over-all objectives in the Korean fighting and the cold war against communism elsewhere.

Senator H. Alexander Smith (R., N. J.) told a reporter that Secretary of Defense Johnson will be asked to spell out to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee in a closed meeting Tuesday the military objectives, so far as Europe is concerned.

But Smith said that more urgent, in his opinion, is a declaration of war and peace aims by the President that will let Congress know where the country is headed.

"We need a statement of over-all objectives, a blueprint from which we can work," Smith said.

Echoing that demand, Senator Millikin (R., Colo.) declared that Congress is working in the dark when it is called upon to vote increased military appropriations, authority to clamp controls on the civilian economy and increased taxes.

"It is difficult to legislate intelligently when we don't know whether we are preparing for all-out war or not," he said. "We have no fixed objective toward which we could be working."

The complaint of Smith and Millikin was similar to that of House Republican Leader Joseph Martin, who said in a weekend speech at Oak Bluff, Mass., that the Administration is operating on "a Saturday night to Saturday night" basis without clearly defined policies.

Martin called for new faces in Congress and injection of new blood in the State Department and other executive agencies.

Lake Success, Aug. 21 (AP).—Red China and Czechoslovakia today joined in Russia's campaign to blame the United States both for the war in Korea and for the procedural stalemate in the United Nations.

Anti-American blasts by these two governments were received here as the Security Council again failed in a closed-door session to break the deadlock over Korean representation in U. N. debate.

Chou En-Lai, Foreign Minister of the Red Peiping regime, demanded in a cable to Russia's Jacob A. Malik, August president of the Council, that Red China and Red North Korea be given seats in the current talks.

Formosa Policy Injected

Chou also injected the Formosan question into the Council by charging the United States "invaded the territory of the People's Republic of China, Taiwan (Formosa), with her Seventh Fleet, attempting thereby to enlarge the war and attain her goal of subjugating Asia." Formosa is the last major stronghold of the Chinese Nationalists.

Czechoslovakia's Foreign Minister, Viliam Siroky, also called for the seating of a North Korean representative.

A similar demand was received late last week from the Polish government. All three of these messages repeated Russia's charges of "inhuman and barbarous" bombing of Korean civilians by the United States and called for U. N. action to stop such bombings.

Malik is expected to read all these communications at the opening of today's (3 p. m., EDT) Council meeting, as part of his propaganda campaign.

"No Agreement Achieved"

After today's closed session the Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister issued a brief communique, saying simply that the Council had "an informal exchange of opinions on the question of invitation of the representatives of North and South Korea. No agreement on the question was achieved."

Malik has expressed a willingness to see representatives of both North and South Korea invited, but the United States and other non-Communist countries have argued that North Korea is an aggressor and should not be included in the talks as long as it defies the U. N. cease-fire.

Meanwhile, it was learned that South Korean Ambassador John M. Chang has circulated a letter to U. N. members charging the Korean Communists with genocide against 400,000 Protestants and 300,000 Roman Catholics in Korea.

Genocide has been defined by the U. N. as meaning mass extermination of racial, religious or political minorities.

Mortgage Co. Prepares For 'Possible Disaster'

Philadelphia, Aug. 21 (U.P.).—Acting in case of a "bombing raid on Philadelphia," the Fidelity Bond and Mortgage Co. today started shipping copies of 50 million dollars worth of mortgages to an undisclosed hideaway in the Pocono Mountains.

"We are not alarmists and we are not expecting any trouble," said Joseph N. Corson, president of the firm, "but we are keeping in mind a possible disaster which would wipe out our entire personnel."

The spokesman is Karim Thabet Pasha, editor of a Cairo newspaper and Farouk's personal adviser on public relations. He said:

"Narriman Sadek is not coming to Deauville. I don't know where she is. I know of no plans for the king to be married."

A-Curb Plan Weak, Soviet Clerics Told

London, Aug. 21 (AP).—The Archbishop of Canterbury told leaders of the Russian Orthodox Church today their recent ban-the-A-bomb appeal falls far short of a formula for world peace.

The head of the Church of England—Dr. Geoffrey Fisher—declared:

"This suggestion relating to the atomic weapon isolates one aspect of the problem only, one weapon only out of all the possible weapons of mass destruction, some of which are as frightful as the atomic bomb.

"All such weapons should be abolished in civilized states. But so should war itself."

The Archbishop addressed his reply to the Patriarch of Moscow, head of the Orthodox Church in the Soviet Union. The Patriarch and heads of the church in Armenia and the Soviet province of Georgia issued the peace appeal recently "to Christians everywhere."

The Orthodox Church leaders urged support of the Stockholm petition for banning the A-bomb which is being pushed by Communists everywhere.

Dr. Fisher remarked: "The peace movement before the last world war was much encouraged by Hitlerite Germany, in the hope that it would encourage an attitude of appeasement in this country and thus leave Hitler and his accomplices a free hand to do as they liked in Europe.

"There is some evidence that the present Stockholm manifesto, too, may be used by some persons for political purposes, and I have therefore felt bound to advise my clergy not to associate themselves with it."

Venizelos Sworn In As New Greek Premier

Athens, Greece, Aug. 21 (AP).—Liberal Party leader Sophocles Venizelos was sworn in as Greece's new premier today to head an emergency cabinet of seven members of his own party.

The new government, replacing that of former Premier Gen. Nicholas Plastiras who resigned last Friday, will run the nation's affairs until a full-scale cabinet acceptable to the majority in Parliament can be formed.

American Attacks U. S. Stand On Korea at Prague Parley

Prague, Aug. 21 (AP).—Chester Davis, an American speaking before an international student group today, denounced United States intervention in Korea and demanded a withdrawal of American troops.

Davis said he was a spokesman for the Committee for International Student Cooperation in the United States. The group believed, he added, that the Korean war was being waged "against the democratic interests of the people of Korea."

Davis refused to give his address or the name of his school to newsmen. The remarks by Davis were made before the second congress of the International Union of Students (IUS).

Davis said American students "live and study in the headquarters of world reaction and war." He said professors were fired for speaking for peace and friendship with the Soviet Union and charged that people had been arrested for circulating the so-called Stockholm Peace Appeal, which is Communist supported.

A Yale University student, Robert L. West, of New Haven, Conn., representing the United States National Students Association, said at an earlier session that American students believe the IUS "was acting more in support of the political convictions of its leaders" than for student needs.

The Congress will end Wednesday. Some 1500 delegates have been attending the sessions from 72 countries.

Soviet Naval Attache Reprimanded by Swedes

Stockholm, Aug. 21 (U.P.).—The Swedish defense command board reprimanded Soviet Attache Commander D. Laritchev today for sailing in prohibited security areas off the Swedish coast.

The Swedish Foreign Office said the defense board summoned Laritchev to appear after investigations confirmed he had entered the forbidden waters 40 miles south of Stockholm during a sailing trip with his deputy and two Soviet Embassy clerks between July 21 and August 2.

Collins, Sherman Begin Conferences

Tokyo, Aug. 21 (U.P.).—America's Army and Navy chiefs conferred secretly with Gen. Douglas MacArthur today on a victory program for United Nations forces

Gen. J. Lawton Collins, Army Chief of Staff, and Admiral Forrest P. Sherman, Chief of Naval Operations, were expected to discuss with MacArthur the use of British and other United Nations forces which soon will be arriving in Korea.

The chiefs also were expected to study the general Far Eastern situation including the security of Japan and Formosa and other areas in which MacArthur is directly concerned.

Collins and Sherman arrived at Haneda Airport from Washington at 8:02 a. m. today.

South Korea Cited In German Army Bid

Bonn, Germany, August 21 (U.P.).—Chancellor Konrad Adenauer has officially proposed the rearmament of Western Germany, stressing the dangerous similarities of its position with that of South Korea, it was disclosed today.

Adenauer's proposal was presented orally to the three Western high commissioners August 17 after the chancellor informally demanded in a press interview that a West German defense force be set up to match that of the Soviet zone "People's Police."

German officials said his statement at the press conference meant nothing less than a call for a 250,000-man police army equipped with tanks and heavy artillery.

During the August 17 session, German sources revealed, Adenauer first asked for Allied troop reinforcements here sufficient to throttle any possible attack by the Russian zone People's Police army.

If the Allies are unable to furnish this manpower, Adenauer said, the Germans should be allowed to do so.

The chancellor repeatedly stressed the parallels of the position of West Germany and South Korea. He said that should East Germans march on the West, public opinion in the United States probably would not permit dropping of the atomic bomb in Germany any more than it did in Korea.

In such circumstances, he said, a strong force would be needed on the spot.

The reaction of the high commissioners during Adenauer's three-hour visit was not revealed. The German proposals have been transmitted in detail to Washington, London and Paris.

All-over strength of the Soviet zone "police" is estimated at more than 250,000, with arms ranging from automatic weapons to Russian-made tanks and heavy artillery.

Poll Shows Germans Desire Own Army

Hamburg, Aug. 21 (U.P.).—Seventy-seven percent of the Germans questioned in a public opinion poll think that a German army is necessary despite the presence of American troops here, a research organization announced today.

Almost half of the men said they would refuse any war service.

The German Institute for Statistical Public Opinion Research DISMA) said a high percentage of Germans were following closely the world debate on German defense.

Sixty-three percent said they considered a European army a necessity, but only 46 percent wanted Germany included. One third of those who were against German inclusion in the European army said they would change their minds if the Allies guaranteed the return of former German territory now annexed by Poland.

U. S. Added to 'Enemy' By Indo-Chinese Reds

Hongkong, Aug. 21 (U.P.).—Ho Chi-minh, Moscow-trained rebel leader in Indio-China, predicted today his forces would win and said the Communist-led rebels now have two enemies—the French and "American interventionists."

In a statement marking the fifth anniversary of the Indo-Chinese uprising, Ho said his rebels had achieved their greatest victories in gaining recognition by Russia and Communist China.

Pretty Princess Upsets a Legend

by reaching her twentieth birthday yesterday, broke an ancient legend that a girl born in Glamis Castle, in Scotland, will marry before she leaves her teens. Observers noted also that Margaret Rose has taken a new interest in fishing, the Earl's favorite sport

Pact Nations To Set Cost of Western Arms

London, Aug. 21 (AP).—Twelve Atlantic allies meet tomorrow to total the dollars and cents needed to finance a bigger Western rearmament program against communism.

Several ways of financing the over-all Western effort will confront deputies of the 12-nation alliance. All stem from the assumption that the United States, as the richest and strongest Pact nation, will provide basic material and money aid.

Britain was reported ready today to hand in a plan which seems to be a new development of America's wartime lend-lease program.

Qualified informants said the British idea calls for a free transfer of money and goods among the Pact's main producers or arms and equipment.

American Chairman Charles M. Spofford is expected to tell some of the European Pact nations that they could do more in the way of general rearmament than their published plans suggest is possible.

The United States is held to believe some countries are dragging their feet in the race for full western military preparedness.

The Atlantic allies now have about 14 combat divisions in Europe. Their target is to raise in the next two years around 50 combat divisions to be based on the continent.

Army Talks Are Boycotted By Laborites

Strasbourg, France, Aug. 21 (AP).—British Loborites boycotted discussion of Winston Churchill's European army proposal today.

Delegates of other nations in the European Consultative Assembly's subcommittee on security went ahead with the talks, anyway.

An authoritative source said the groups reached "a measure of agreement" on how the unified army and the proposed European defense ministry should be linked with the present Atlantic Pact system.

In other Assembly developments the General Affairs Committee drafted a reply to a report of the Committee of Foreign Ministers—the Assembly's all-powerful counterpart in the European Council—rapping the ministers' knuckles for failure to take action on Assembly resolutions. The reply recommended revision of council statutes to give the Assembly "limited but real powers."

The Economics Committee hailed the Schuman Coal-Steel Pool plan and asked for a permanent link between the pool's supranational authority and the European Council.

The Social Committee agreed on basic principles of a European social security code which would extend basic social security rights beyond national borders.

The British Labor boycott of the security subcommittee followed threats of a walkout last week. The Laborites and a majority of Scandinavian Assemblyman contend the council's statutes expressly forbid any discussion of military defense measures. They have argued that the powerless Assembly is no place to discuss government-level matters.

U. S. Air Units to Join Europeans in Maneuvers

Fontainebleau, France, Aug. 21 (U.P.).—British Air Chief Marshal Sir James Robb said today the five Brussels pact nations—Britain, France, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg—have established an integrated air force.

Robb, Brussels Pact air chief, spoke to newsmen here for three days of joint air maneuvers, the first ever held by the five treaty states. The United States Air Forces also will take part in the war games, which begin Friday.

Commercial Fliers Ready for Any Job

The Civil Aeronautics Administration is not an employment bureau but it wants Americans to know they can hire commercial pilots who will do everything from spraying whole towns with insecticide to shooting coyotes on the run.

The CAA has issued lists of "industrial" flying firms which will do almost anything that can be done with a plane. The agency lists about 2,000 companies doing such contract flying.

Allies Throw Back Two Enemy Attacks to seal off the entrance of a mine to trap Communist troops hiding inside.

Allied pilots joined South Korean Marines in hammering at a Red attack near Tongyong, 27 miles south of Haman.

A South Korean naval spokesman told Associated Press Correspondent Jack Macbeth the marines have advanced 20 miles northward since they landed at Tongyong last Friday. They are trying to establish a link with United Nations forces to the north. Tongyong is a highway terminus on the south coast.

Reds Losing Ground

At the front's opposite extreme on the northeast coast, the Reds were steadily losing ground before United Nations forces. The communique noted, however, that progress against the Reds was slow.

North Korean attempts to find a soft spot and crash through Allied lines have taken such a heavy toll in men and equipment, that U. S. Intelligence officers noted the Reds were economizing in the use of tanks. But they were spending men with the same recklessness as before.

Total enemy losses in the last four days could be computed—mainly on the basis of bodies counted—at 15,000 or more.

But officers at General MacArthur's headquarters emphasized that uncounted casualties from incessant aerial strafing of troops moving into position behind lines could make the toll even greater.

The Reds, who invaded South Korea June 25, were striving desperately to carry out the public orders of North Korean Premier Kim Il Sung to conquer the Americans and South Koreans by August 31. But their punch had lost much of its steam.

Some Americans cautiously speculated that the forthcoming drive might be their last major effort. A Tokyo headquarters spokesman said the enemy was "badly off balance" and probably "much worse hurt than we imagine."

Red Losses Mount

The Reds suffered their heaviest weekend losses on the north-central front. There they made a costly 2-mile gain a dozen miles north of Taegu, important American forward base, but were stopped by a novel American air-artillery combination in the night of Sunday-Monday.

The Red losses, mainly in killed, total a minimum of 11,000 and possibly up to 15,000 for the past three days. And they are mounting.

General MacArthur's Tokyo headquarters listed Red casualties on the entire front Friday and Saturday at 10,092. This included only an unspecified part of 3500 casualties reported for the enemy in the sector north of Taegu.

After a single action on the extreme southern front Sunday, at least 1350 enemy dead were counted by American Twenty-fifth Division troops.

A South Korean spokesman reported 2450 Red casualties inflicted by South Koreans in recapturing a hill north east of Taegu.

Additional heavy but undetermined casualties for the enemy resulted from the sinking of a Red troop and ammunition ship off the south coast by South Korean naval forces. Another similar ship was reported damaged.

The Red radio in Pyongyang quit claiming unqualified successes and admitted that Allied forces "are heavily counterattacking on all sectors."

Nevertheless, United States Air Force fiers reported they observed a "terrific attempt" by the Reds Monday to buil dup for a new offensive on the extreme southern front in the Chinju area and evidence of similar buildups in the north and northeast.

Artillery Spots for Planes

Most spectacular action was on the front north of Taegu.

There night-flying war planes, guided to their targets by white phosphorus shells from United States Twenty-seventh Regiment artillery, broke up the Red attempt to outflank the Twenty-seventh Wolfhound Regiment north of Taegu.

It was perhaps the first time in any war that artillery acted as night spotters for pilots. The big guns lobbed shells into enemy positions and the brightly exploding missiles not only damaged the enemy but lighted the target for the airmen.

The Reds with a few tanks advanced 2 miles along a ridge 15 miles north of Taegu, overrunning some small South Korean positions on the American right flank before the artillery and planes broke the attack.

The night operation was believed to have checked temporarily a main enemy thrust at the former emergency capital of the Republic of Korea.

American Negro infantrymen were driven off Battle Mountain on the southwestern front Monday by a charge of 1500 North Koreans, but the United States Troops immediately began a counterattack under cover of American fighter-bombers.

The mountain is less than 2 miles southwest of Haman, 20 miles east of Chinju. It is the key to other United States positions in the immediate sector.

The Negro Twenty-fourth Regiment had recaptured the mountain Monday morning. It has changed hands four times in three days of bloody fighting. It was in that sector that 1350 Red dead were counted after combined United States air, artillery and infantry attacks Sunday.

Glow Indicates Quake May Have Opened Volcanoes

Calcutta, India, Aug. 21 (AP).—Reports from the Lakhimpur and Sadiya districts of northeastern India today said a red glow had been observed in the sky over the area stricken by last week's severe earthquake.

Geologists have expressed the opinion this meant volcanoes had burst forth. Reports that the quake had cracked a dam on the upper reaches of the Brahmaputra River, threatening severe floods in the northern part of Assam province, apparently were confirmed. Logs extending for many miles up the river were observed floating past Dibrugarh on the Brahmaputra.

Despite the severity of the quake, the number of fatilities reported still stands at 20.

ions to form the first Commonwealth brigade.

Brigadier B. A. Coad who will sail from Hongkong with the two British battalions will command the force.

There were indications other troops soon would sail for Korea.

In Manila, President Elpidio Quirino announced the first contingent of at least 1200 Filipino troops of a 5000-man expeditionary force also was ready for "immediate dispatch."

There were indications that New Zealanders—who with the Australians were the fighting "Anzacs" of World Wars I and II—would join the Commonwealth forces at an early date.

Volunteers from Britain, Australia, New Zealand, Thailand and Holland are being recruited.

The Scottish Highlanders are 90 percent regular soldiers. They have applied to the War Office for permission to take their kilts and full pipe band of 24 men to Korea.

The Middlesex battalion, mostly Londoners and formerly noted as a machine-gun regiment, were 50 percent national service dr: ftees.

Britain Will Rush Commando Unit by Air

London, Aug. 21 (AP).—The British Admiralty said tonight a small Marine Commando unit will soon be flown to Korea for service with United Nations forces.

"For reasons of operational security, it is not desirable to publicize the size and composition, or the times of departure and arrival of this unit," the announcement added.

It was regarded possible that they would be in Korea at the same time as a British infantry force being sent from Hongkong.

It will be flown to Lake Success, N. Y., as more evidence against Soviet Representative Jacob A. Malik's claim that the Soviet Union has given no military equipment to North Korea since 1948.

Win Friends and Popularity with Your Everyday Conversation

A publisher in Chicago reports there is a simple technique of everyday conversation which can pay you real dividends in both social and business advancement and works like magic to give you added poise, self confidence and greater popularity. The details of this method are described in a fascinating booklet, "Adventures in Conversation," sent free on request.

According to this publisher, many people do not realize how much they could influence others simply by what they say and how they say it. Whether in business, at social functions, or even in casual conversations with new acquaintances, there are ways in which you can make a good impression every time you talk.

To acquaint more readers of this paper with the easy-to-follow rules for developing skill in everyday conversation, the publishers have printed full details of their interesting self-training method in a 24-page booklet which will be mailed free to anyone who requests it. The address is: Dept. 776C, Conversation Studies, 1315 S. Michigan Ave., Chicago 5, Ill. A penny postcard will do.

Controls Legislation Passed by Senate

eliminating that authority would be politically impossible.

Capehart's amendment was defeated, 75 to 6.

The body of the measure gives the executive branch power to allocate scarce materials and products, institute priorities for their procurement, finance the expansion of defense plants, curb installment and housing credit, control business inventories, and requisition production facilities and materials.

The full effect of the many amendments adopted yesterday could not be immediately assessed nor their "gimmicks" and "sleepers," if any, fully determined. Some of the most serious from the Administration's point of view, however, are these:

1. An amendment offered by Senator Johnson (D., Colo.) and passed 47 to 42, to place all authority for allocations and priorities with the Secretary of Commerce.

Defense planners had contemplated dividing that authority according to the items concerned. That is, food and farm machinery allocations by the Secretary of Agriculture, power and fuel by Interior, etcetra, and possibly overall coordinating authority by the National Security Resources Board.

2. An amendment offered by Senator Taft (R., Ohio), agreed to by voice vote, with the concurrence of the Democratic Senators steering the bill. It would reduce the Government's power to borrow, up to a planned two billion dollars, to only 300 million dollars, for purposes of expanding defense production.

For anything beyond that, the Government would have to obtain specific appropriations. This opened up the prospect of prolonged and difficult Congressional haggling over each specific project to build a new plant or facility.

fhek now is the hour for all tha

3. Adoption, as a rider to the controls measure, of the entire so-called mines subsidy bill. This measure, a complicated one, has been passed by itself by the Senate, but is stymied in the House. Its presence as a rider to the controls bill may cause difficulties in the Senate-House conference.

4. An amendment proposed by Senator Wherry (R., Nebr.) providing that if the President allocates any scarce materials, he must see to it that what is left over after military needs are met is shared equitably among civilian users.

Civilians Considered

This would apparently mean that if, for example, 1 or 2 percent of the nation's steel was allocated to defense producers, the Administration would be obliged to go on allocating, or giving priorities, for the remaining 98 percent. It would have to make sure each of the thousands of factories using steel for civilian purposes got a square deal.

Although this would serve the purposes of fair play, it might require a vastly larger administrative mechanism than had been contemplated.

A major hurdle to passage of the controls bill was removed during the afternoon when Senators Ferguson (R., Mich.) and Mundt (R., S. Dak.) withdrew an anti-subversive bill they had proposed to attach as a rider.

Important proposed amendments which the Democratic majority managed to beat down yesterday included:

1. A proposal by Senator Williams (R., Del.) to require that when price and wage ceilings were imposed, they be fixed in relation to levels existing during the same base period. That is, the price-wage relationship obtaining just before the Korean conflict would be frozen. Democrats argued that since prices had risen much faster than wages, it would be unfair to make that relationship permanent.

2. The so-called "sport-shirt" amendment of Senator Kem (R., Mo.) which would have forbid requiring producers to maintain "average price" production. Without such a regulation, Administration supporters argued, producers would stop making low and medium priced items in their lines. They would be inclined to concentrate on specialty, high-price goods, e. g. sport shirts instead of work shirts.

3. An amendment of Senator Williams to prohibit the granting of in-grade pay increases to Government workers.

4. An amendment by Senators Byrd (D., Va.) and Wherry, modified by Senator Capehart, to terminate all powers in the bill 12 months hence. With this modification defeated, 48 to 38, the life of the measure extends to June 30, 1952.

On the final vote on the entire bill, the opposition consisted of only three Republicans, Malone (Nev.), Williams (Del.) and Ecton (Mont.)

McCarran Anti-Red Bill Set

probably be offered as a substitute for the McCarran bill on the Senate floor, but leadership spokesmen privately conceded the odds are heavily against stopping the broader measure.

Except for a few text variations, the main Communist and Communist front registration features of the Mundt - Ferguson bill are already embodied in the catch-all McCarran bill the Senate is now slated to consider.

McCarran's agreement with Mundt and Ferguson would eliminate even the text changes.

Similarly the bill approved yesterday by the House Un-American Activities Committee largely follows the Mundt-Ferguson pattern.

The House group eliminated a provision providing stiff penalties for conspiring to overthrow the Government by force and violence, holding this is already prohibited by the Smith Act.

The House measure is even tighter in some respects than the parent Mundt bill. It prohibits members of Communist front organizations as well as Communists from holding United States jobs, even if they are employed by private contractors working on Federal projects.

A five-man board, subject to appeal, would designate the Communist front groups. Federal employes who were still members of the so-called "fronts" 60 days after the designation would come under the ban.

T R FOR AD 4

In general, all of the bills except the Administration's own substitute, require registration of Communists and officers of Red fronts with the Justice Department, compel such organizations to label their literature as propaganda, and deny Communists passports to travel abroad.

The Administration bill requires registration only of trained spies and saboteurs, makes it easier to prosecute spies, and tightens the check on deportable aliens.

These provisions are picked up in the McCarran cover-all bill, along with many new ones.

Senate Democratic Leader Scott W. Lucas (Ill.) was asked if the decision to call up the McCarran bill meant it is satisfactory to the Administration leadership.

"It doesn't mean anything except that we are going to take it up and debate all bills dealing with that subject," replied Lucas.

Naval Aviation Wins Decision

plane procurement and $750 millions for new Navy planes.

President Truman's original 10.5 billion dollar supplemental defense budget called for spending $2,677,000,000 for Air Force planes and $620 millions for naval aircraft.

With the decision to keep both forces equally modern, another $950 million in Navy plane funds was asked by President Truman. Still another $240 million was approved for naval plane orders this year but budget estimates were withheld temporarily because the plants building Navy type planes could not handle the orders.

In another defense development, the Senate Armed Service Committee called Secretary Johnson and Gen. Omar Bradley, chairman of the Joint Chiefs, for testimony this morning in favor of pending universal military training legislation.

Johnson has declared himself in favor of immediate passage of UMT, even though President Truman said he would not press for action this session.

eenth Regiments left a gap of some 1000 yards between their line and through this slipped the Communist division. Once the South Koreans were certain the Communists were within their lines, the two regiments closed the gap, encircling the Red division.

"The Americans then gave the enemy troops a round-the-clock pounding for more than two days," Colonel Kim said. "It was wonderful. It beat the heart out of them. Then we attacked. Individual units of the enemy broke and ran. But we moved too fast for them. We moved so fast that apparently the divisional commander did not have time to pass the withdrawal order down to rear units. And we overran them."

15 Field Guns Captured

Colonel Kim waved at the scarred countryside of burned-out villages and torn-up roads that was pervaded by the stench of the dead.

"You can see it was quite a fight," he said. "I personally counted 512 dead. An official estimate of enemy casualties during the entire operation is put at a regiment and a half." (4000 if you want to be conservative about it and 5000 if you are optimistic).

The amount of material captured was almost as impressive as the casualty figures. The material abandoned by the enemy as they ran away included 15 brand-new field guns. (These were high velocity guns), 30 to 40 new Russian trucks, 20 Russian jeeps, 500 individual rifles with ammunition, 100 automatic weapons and large numbers of pack horses and wagons on which the Communists so largely rely to carry their supplies to the front.

Maj. Emil Skalicky, of Owatonna, Minn., the American military adviser to the regiment, said this of the battle:

"I feel that it could be—on this front—a turning point in our favor. For example, for two whole days when the battle was going on we had intense mortar and artillery fire. Now the enemy's supplies appear to be so bad that we are 'receiving' almost nothing."

The American major was proud of the Tiger Regiment in particular, but said the South Korean morale as a whole along this front was very good.

"Once you have given the South Korean soldier good leadership and good equipment, you don't find a better soldier anywhere," Major Skalicky said. "The South Korean soldiers will go just as far as anyone."

The present attack northward is aimed at securing sufficient ground north of Pohang to make the security of the airstrip a virtual certainty. When I left the area at the end of the first full day of attack they had already reached the third phase of a five-phase attack on a 30,000-yard front.

Aviatrix Tells of USSR Trip

New York, Aug. 21 (U.P.).—Aviatrix Jacqueline Cochran revealed today that she spent two weeks in Russia in June and was permitted to travel 150 miles from Moscow to go sight seeing.

Miss Cochran, who arrived aboard the Cunard liner Queen Elizabeth with her husband Floyd Odlum, aircraft manufacturer, said she went to Russia on June 11, at the invitation of Admiral Alan Kirk, United States Ambassador to Russia.

"The whole country is permeated with fear," she said. "It's just something you feel in the air."

The flyer said she was surprised when she was given permission to travel so far from Moscow because diplomats are not allowed more than 25 miles from the city. She said she made two trips—an 80-mile journey to visit the tomb of novelist Maxim Gorki and a 150-mile trip to the grave of novelist Alexandre Tolstoi.

Miss Cochran said prices were extremely high in Russia and that an American had to pay about $20 for a good meal in a Moscow restaurant. She said the only thing she took out of the country were two dill pickles she bought in Leningrad for about $3 each.

Miss Cochran said that most diplomats go about Moscow in pairs, or preferably in fours. If they drive anywhere a Russian chauffeur is chosen for them, she said.

The woman pilot, who has broken many flight records and three times received the Harmon trophy as the most outstanding woman flyer in the world, spent a total of three months abroad. She is now a cosmetics manufacturer. Her husband visited Spain while she went to Russia.

Venezuela Held Unfair To Its Unions

Geneva, Aug. 21 (U.P.).—A mission of inquiry of the International Labor Organization charged today that the Venezuelan government was guilty of violating the rights of labor unions.

The charge was made in a report drawn up by a four-man group headed by Jef Rens, ILO senior assistant director-general, which spent seven weeks in Venezuela last summer at the invitation of the military junta which seized power there in 1948. The workers group of the ILO had charged workers' rights were being violated in Venezuela and had demanded the investigation.

The report said that under the government's suspension of constitutional guarantees, leaders of Venezuelan unions have been imprisoned and exiled; union officials' correspondence has been supervised; their funds frozen, and their homes and offices searched.

The mission said the government has dissolved the Venzuelan Confederation of Labor and that trade union officals who gave information to the mission were later arrested or obliged to flee the counry.

The report said that an atmosphere of "insecurity, fear and distrust" prevails among the workers "to an ever increasing degree."

The report found that repressive measures were not directed against all unions or officials, but primarily against those affiliated with the Democratic Action Party, the party of the government overthrown in the 1948 coup d'etat.

The mission recommends that the Venezuelan government take a series of measures to reestablish fredom of association.

Burma Surgeon's Family

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

IN WEST VIRGINIA—Shown at their home in Parkersburg, W. Va., before hearing of the arrest in Burma of Dr. Gordon Seagrave, are his wife and sons, Sterling, 12, on arm of chair, and John, 16. The Seagraves have another son at Pensacola, Fla., Naval Air Base, and another daughter in Parkersburg.

Rangoon, Burma, Aug. 21 (AP).—A Burmese lawyer will defend Dr. Gordon S. Seagrave, 53-year-old American surgeon, imprisoned and accused of collaborating with rebel Karen and Kachin tribesmen. He is Kyaw Myint, a former Burmese supreme court judge.

Seagrave, known to millions as the "Burma Surgeon," was arrested Friday at his mission hospital at Namkham, near the China-Burma border. He was brought here by plane and taken to Rangoon central jail.

Wife Voices Belief

(In Parkersburg, W. Va., Mrs. Seagrave, pretty wife of the famed surgeon, voiced stout confidence in his innocence. She said she knew "he's had nothing to do with the anti-government forces," she said her husband had indicated in his most recent letters that the civil strife between the Karens and the Burmese government was subsiding.

(Mrs. Seagrave noted, however, that Seagrave's hospital is 500 miles north of Rangoon, and was concerned at the apparent gravity of the incident that would prompt officials to transport her husband such a distance. Mrs. Seagrave, who lived for many years in Burma, expressed confidence United States officials would do all possible to protect her husband's interests.)

Embassy officials, who regard the surgeon's arrest as a "serious matter," said Seagrave was being held in a special class, entitling him to privileges unavailable to ordinary prisoners. They reported him in "good spirits."

A Burmese government spokesman said Seagrave is accused not only of aiding the Karens but of helping Kachin Chief Naw Seng to flee across the Chinese border, where reportedly he is with Chinese Communists.

Conglomerate Revolt

The Karins are the largest group rebelling against Burma's National government. Also in the conglomerate revolt are Trotskyite "Red Flag" Communists and Stalinist "White Flag" Reds.

The Karens have at times cooperated with the Communists, when it was to their advantage, but more often they have fought against them at the same time they were battling government forces. The Karens want a separate state of Karenistan inside Burma.

Embassy records show Seagrave was born in Rangoon. He received his MD degree from Johns Hopkins in 1921 and began his mission hospital with medical instruments discarded by a Baltimore hospital. Seagrave holds American citizenship.

He has devoted most of his life to fighting disease and suffering in the wilds of Burma. During the Japanese war he performed many delicate operations with inadequate equipment, as shells fell around his frontline hospitals.

He was decorated by King George VI and received the United States Purple Heart. When the late Gen. Joseph Stilwell took over the American command in Burma, Seagrave was transferred to the American Army.

After the war he returned to Burma and resumed his medical work.

Belgians Red Tells of Threat

Brussels, Aug. 21 (U.P.).—The Belgian Communist Party Secretary-General Edgar Lalmand has been warned he is next on the "assassination list," the official Communist newspaper Drapeau Rouge said today.

The paper said it had received an anonymous telephone call after Friday's assassination of Communist Party chairman Julien Lahaut, which said:

"Lahaut was condemned. He's dead. Now it's Lalmand's turn."

A check of the homes of cabinet ministers and prominent opposition leaders revealed that police guards have been doubled, and in some cases tripled, since the assassination.

Preparations were completed for Lahaut's funeral Tuesday, which will be attended by a huge delegation of workers in addition to cabinet members and parliamentarians.

State security investigators said they were exploring five trails they hoped would lead to the two gunmen who shot down Lahaut at the doorway of his home in Seraing, near Liege.

The investigation is on a scale unprecedented in Belgian history.

The Socialist Party newspaper, Le Peuple, meanwhile, insinuated today that King Leopold's entourage was implicated in a "recently aborted coup d'etat to maintain the king on the throne."

Congress Speeds GI Family Bills

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

Senate and House committees yesterday speeded up legislation designed to provide living allowances for families of men inducted into military service.

The Senate Armed Service Committee reported a bill to provide dependents of servicemen payments from $85 to $155 a month, depending on the man's grade and the number of his dependents. The bill is scheduled for debate in the Senate today.

The House version of the same measure, with slightly different rates of pay, was approved by an Armed Services subcommittee and will be considered today by the full committee. Chairman Carl Vinson (D., Ga.) of the full committee sat beside Chairman Overton Brooks (D., La.) of the subcommittee during hearings on the bill and took an active part in quizzing witnesses.

The House subcommittee turned down a plea from the American Medical Association that a section of the bill providing medical treatment for dependents of servicemen and authorizing reopening of military hospitals for the purpose be omitted. Dr. Walter P. Martin of Norfolk, Va., representing the AMA, urged that provisions for hospitalization and medical treatment be the subject of a separate measure.

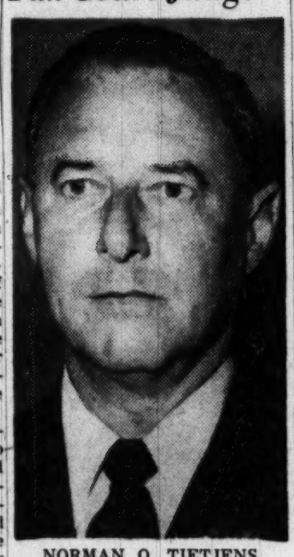
Dr. Martin told the subcommittee the bill would open the way to abuses and would impair medical care for civilians by drawing doctors and nurses from the communities where they practice. He added that it would "saddle the Defense Department with the duty of caring for dependents when its primary duty is defense of the country."

He suggested that medical care for dependents be safeguarded by requiring the Secretary of Defense to determine which cases should be hospitalized and should require that certain cases be cared for in their local hospitals.

The Senate bill provided that the serviceman contribute from his pay $40 to $80 a month, depending upon his rank. The Government would then add $45 a month for the three lowest grades with one dependent or $67.50 for the four highest grades with one dependent. Regardless of rank, men with two dependents would receive an allowance of $67.50 a month and with three dependents, $75 a month.

The House bill provides for the $40 a month deduction only for the three lowest grades. Men in the four highest grades would be expected to make voluntary allotments.

Senate Confirms Tax Court Judge



NORMAN O. TIETJENS, assistant general counsel of the Treasury Department since 1939, has been confirmed by the Senate as judge of the Tax Court of the United States, filling a vacancy created by the retirement of Judge John A. Tyson of Mississippi. Tietjens lives at 5217 Reno rd. nw.

Basic Faith Must Stand, Pope Warns

Vatican City, Aug. 21 (AP).—Pope Pius XII warned today that Roman Catholics must make no reservations or revisions in the basic doctrine of their faith, even in zealous efforts to bring about a United Christendom. Any such concessions from the letter of the law of the Church, the Pope declared in an Encyclical, might play into the hands of world-Communism.

The 5000-word Encyclical letter was issued at a moment when the dogma of the church are a subject of renewed controversy. In it, the Pontiff reaffirmed the basic Church teaching and rejected various modern scientific and philosophical theories which he considered prejudicial to them.

The Encyclical, in the words of its introduction, dealt with "some false opinions, which threaten to undermine the foundations of Catholic doctrine." It will be known as "Humani Generis" (of mankind) after the first two words of its Latin text.

Made public today, it was dated August 12, just two days before the announcement that the Pope would, on November 1, proclaim the bodily assumption of the Virgin Mary into Heaven as a dogma. That announcement provoked criticism from Protestant spokesmen, who viewed it as foreshadowing another obstacle to repairing the breach which divided the Christian world.

The heads of the Church of England last week expressed "profound regret" that the Roman Catholic Church "chose this act to increase dogmatic differences in Christendom and thereby gravely injured the growth of understanding between Christians."

The Pontiff reemphasized to Catholic leaders a necessity of safeguarding all religious instruction against the taint of "error."

"Human intelligence," the Pope observed, "sometimes experiences difficulties in forming a judgment about the credibility of the Catholic faith."

He cited the theory of revolution as one example of a modern theory which he said had been exploited to undermine the faith in the divine origin of man.

"Communists," he said, "gladly subscribe to this opinion so that, when the souls of men have been deprived of every idea of God, they may the more efficaciously defend and propagate their dialectical materialism."

The timing of the Encyclical indicated the Vatican expected protests from Protestant bodies on Church dogma and was prepared to defend them.

The clevage of Christianity, the Pontiff's letter said, could not be healed by modifying Catholic teaching to a kind of doctrine that would appease its critics.

Soviet Dam To Be Tops In World

Moscow, Aug. 21 (AP).—The Council of Ministers has announced that it intends to build within the next five years one of the biggest hydroelectric stations in the world. Work will start this year, the announcement said.

The tremendous project—it would be bigger than the American Grand Coulee and much bigger than the great Dnepr hydroelectric power project built by Russia with the aid of American engineers—is to be constructed on the Volga in the Kuibyshev region.

It will furnish power to major cities such as Moscow, Kuibyshev and Saratov. It will also speed electrification of the Soviet Union's railways.

The station will provide water for irrigating the productive Trans-Volga agricultural lands. The dam will support a trunk-line railway across the Volga and also will improve the river as one of the Soviet nation's main transport arteries.

The Kuibyshev dam will be one of the most ambitious engineering projects ever attempted in Russia. The station, which the council ordered finished by 1955, will have a power of about two million kilowatts and a production of about 10 million killowatt hours per average year.

The Dnepr dam now is the largest in Europe. Grand Coulee in the United States, eventually is to have a total power capacity of 1,974,000 kilowatts, when all its major generators are installed.

The Kuibyshev will irrigate about 2,500,000 acres of land, compared with the one million acres served by the Grand Coulee.

The Kuibyshev's projected two million-kilowatt capacity compares with an eventual installed capacity for the Hoover Dam of 1,332,000.

The Russians apparently intend to build this station without the aid of any foreigners.

Puerto Rican Funds to Help Workers in U. S.

San Juan Puerto Rica, Aug. 21 (U.P.).—Gov. Luis Marin today was expected to sign a bill declaring that a "state of emergency" exists for Puerto Ricans working in the sugar beet fields of Michigan and appropriating money for their relief.

The bill appropriates $117,400 for the "economic aid" of the 5000 workers contracted by Michigan farmers.

A 40-page report by Labor Commissioner Fernando Sierra Berdecia who personally investigated conditions in Michigan, charged that the Puerto Ricans were being subjected to "disgraceful" conditions.

The money will be used to provide "subsistence" for the workers who need help; to cover transportation costs to any other point in the United States where employment is available; to return the workers to Puerto Rica if they so request, or if such return is necessary to the workers' "subsistence or health."

Crime Group to Hear Of Muscling Tactics

By Chalmers M. Roberts
Post Reporter

The story of how a group of racketeers has taken over a firm making a vital drug is due to be told today before the Senate Crime Investigating Committee.

A public hearing is scheduled for 10 a. m. in the Senate Office Building.

Most of the hearing is expected to deal with black market sugar activities and how some racketeers parleyed a $150,000 candy factory they bought during World War II into a million dollar property.

Gang Muscles In

Some of the same crowd, according to Committee Counsel Rudolph Halley, have now purchased the drug firm. The concern makes a drug used to prevent blood clots.

Halley said all of the men were associated in or employes of the black market sugar firm. Some of them have now taken over the drug business, he said.

The day's hearing is the first public session to be devoted to racketeer infiltration of legitimate business, one of the Senators' main lines of inquiry.

The crime committee's recent interim report said similar racket money had gone into such other businesses as hotels, restaurants, night clubs, meat and provision companies, liquor stores, beer and whisky distributorships, auto dealerships and distributorships and small steel companies.

One committee member, Senator Hunt (D., Wyo.), said yesterday the committee also is on the trail of evidence that some big-shot criminals have acquired control of a New York bank and part of the Chicago cleaning and dying business.

Meanwhile, the House delayed until Wednesday or Thursday consideration of the Senate-approved bill to ban interstate shipment of slot machines.

The delay was agreed to yesterday by House leaders at the request of Representative Walter S. Baring (D., Nev.), the bill's only opponent thus far. Baring said he hopes to defeat the measure on a roll call vote but Majority Leader John McCormack (D., Mass.) predicted the bill will pass.

Baring said he asked the delay because many Chicago and New York Congressmen are away the first of the week (New York's primary is today). He noted that the slot machines are all made in Chicago.

Nevada is the only State in which the machines are entirely legal. Baring said he had been asked to oppose the bill by the Reno and Las Vegas Chambers of Commerce and the president of Reno's First National Bank, among others. At the least he will seek an amendment to permit Nevada's one-armed bandits to be shipped back to Chicago when repairs are necessary, a move forbidden by the proposed law. The House Interstate Commerce Committee turned down his plea for such an amendment.

War Contractors Relief Bill Is Again Vetoed

President Truman yesterday vetoed for the secon dtime a bill which would have made it easier for contractors handling Federal work during World War II to recover any losses from the Government.

Mr. Truman said the proposal still would "write into law the principle of Government insurance against all wartime net losses" suffered by contractors.

'Pork' Blamed For Clashes In Congress

Representative Cannon (D., Mo.) said yesterday that senators backing "pork barrel" expenditures of money on nondefense projects are to blame for recent outbursts that have helped to gum up Senate and House efforts to agree on funds to run the Government this year.

Cannon, 71-year-old chairman of the House Appropriations Committee called no names but obviously referred to clashes last week in the Senate-House conference committees seeking to iron out differences in the money bills.

Senator Kenneth D. McKellar, fiery 81-year-old Democrat from Tennessee, and Senator Pat McCarran, 71-year-old Nevada Democrat, were the senators reported to have directed angry words at Cannon last week in two separate committee sessions. McKellar is chairman of the Senate appropriations committee, of which McCarran is a member.

The conferees have been working to resolve differences in the multibillion dollar, one-package appropriation measure. The House and Senate versions differed in many respects. The Senate bill includes several billion dollars more than the House measure.

Pain Worth $115,000, Says U. S. Judge

New York, Aug. 21 (NYHT.).—Judge Ernest W. Gibson, ruling in United States District Court here that "pain inflicted on an individual which is caused by the wrong doing of another is no less to a poor man than to a millionairs," denied today a motion to set aside a judgment of $115,000 to the widow and children of James E. Naylor, 35-year-old seaman. Naylor died in October, 10 hours after a fall from the forecastle of the freighter Alleghant Victory.

The jury gave Mrs. Naylor $40,000 for her husband's suffering during the 10 hours before he died; $15,000 each for Mrs. Naylorr and her daughter, Tanta, 15, and $45,000 for their son, James Ronald, 14.

Judge Gibson commended the jury for its award, and added: "In the absence of intemperance, passion, partiality or corruption—and there is none evident in this case—I am not one to say that terrfic pain inflicted on a seaman for 10 hours is not worth $40,000 when a jury of free men and women calmly, carefully and deliberately so decide."

The owners of the vessel, Isthmian Steamship Co., sought to have the judgment set aside on grounds that it was excessive.

Air Gen. Kristofferson Recalled to Active Duty

By The Associated Press

Brig. Gen. Henry C. Kristofferson, a pioneer of the famed "hump" flights to China during World War II, has been recalled to active duty with the Air Force, it was announced yesterday.

He is a specialist in long-haul operations and, as division operations manager, directed the postwar expansion of Pan American World Airways service from the West Coast to the Orient and the South Pacific.

Tops In Income

Washingtonians should not infer that they are better off than other people merely because the District had a higher average per capita income in 1949 than any State in the Union. For statistics based on averages conceal extremes of wealth and poverty and have little value as a measure of general well-being. Moreover, few significant conclusions can be drawn from a comparison of the incomes of the residents of a single city and the incomes received by the farmers and city dwellers of the several States.

Washington is fortunate in having a large number of Government employes, whose income compares favorably with that of salaried workers in private employment. These people are not affected by business recessions to any great extent, or erratic fluctuations in farm income, although congressional spasms of economy may result in some dismissals. The decline in farm income which brought down the national per capita income average last year probably explains why the District forged ahead of five States to reach the top of the per capita income list. Whatever the reason, it's good news for the local business community.

Intelligence Cooperation

One of the major handicaps under which Rear Admiral Roscoe H. Hillenkoetter labored as director of the Central Intelligence Agency was the lack of cooperation from other intelligence agencies, particularly in the military services. To some extent this represented distrust of a new coordinating agency which was not yet dry behind the ears. It also was sometimes a simple matter of rank. Admiral Hillenkoetter was a relatively junior real admiral, and his former superiors in the services frequently either ignored him or short-circuited him. That is one reason why this newspaper has believed that, other things being equal, the job should go to a qualified civilian.

The new director, Lieut. Gen. Walter Bedell Smith, will have considerable advantage over Admiral Hillenkoetter in this latter respect. Not only is he a high-ranking officer on good terms with and respected by military leaders, he has a commanding personality. He will be able to demand cooperation in the sharing of essential information both by virtue of rank and on the more important ground that he is the direct representative of the President. It goes without saying, of course, that cooperation with CIA is a two-way proposition, but more cooperation no doubt will come naturally as the State Department and the military services feel that CIA measures up to its job.

Admiral Hillenkoetter's selfless devotion to a task he often must have found unpleasant deserves recognition. The difficulties he encountered were formidable. However, he added to them by relying more and more on military confreres he had imported into CIA. The result was the creation of a sort of impervious clique which insulated him from the working part of his agency. It is to be hoped that General Smith will avoid this over-reliance on the military by recruiting his top personnel from the widest variety of sources. Good intelligence is in no small degree a question of good personnel. And this would be insured by continuous direction as well as wise selection. It would be reassuring to have General Smith doff his Army uniform and indicate that he plans to make intelligence a career, for the job is as important as any service he could render to the country.

Building Boom

In its weekly survey of business conditions the Riggs National Bank reports that more houses were started in July than in any previous month. The output of building materials was also at record levels; yet shortages had developed owing to uneven distribution and anticipatory buying. This brief summary emphasizes the need for tighter controls over real estate credit. It calls attention, too, to the shortcomings of the credit control provisions of the defense production bill limiting control over real estate credit, in case of private financing, to new construction and major additions and improvements to existing structures. This removal of control over credit with respect to existing construction is likely to encourage the financing of a good deal of costly work, since it is hard to draw a line between major and minor improvements.

However, while tighter credit terms would impose a healthy check on unsound financing practices, we doubt whether it would halt the building boom in the absence of other restraints. The allocation of scarce materials used by the construction industry will slow down construction activity much more effectively than higher charges for borrowed money. Whether real estate credit is easy or tight, home building is bound to decline in the near future as supplies of steel, copper, and other building materials are brought under the allocations system. And, as the volume of new construction shrinks, the demand for all sorts of household equipment and furnishings that absorb scarce materials will decline.

The housing boom has been an important factor in maintaining a high level of business activity. It can make an important contribution to national defense by a slowdown that will release goods and labor for military use.

Nehru's Mission

The power struggle behind the scenes in Asia will be intensified if Premier Nehru decides to go to Peking. What is going on in Asia is quite different, in our opinion, from the assumptions which seem to be governing much of the thinking in high places in Washington and Tokyo, between which places the American Far Eastern diplomacy is divided. The assumption is that the aggression and operations in Korea are in the nature of a joint conspiracy between master Stalin and vassal Mao—a theory quite beyond our own belief. It is our guess, on the contrary, that the Korean performance is not at all to Mao's liking. Doubtless the Indian Premier is well aware of it, and, since he is a balanced as well as an informed man, we hope he yields to the temptation to take a hand in the pulling and hauling that seems to be in progress in Peking.

Some indication of what is happening may be gained from the history of the 30s. Japan, stung in one way or another by both China and Russia, was planning an attack on the mainland, but had not made up its mind which of the two countries to attack. China and Russia knew what was coming, so they each tried to transfer the pressure to the other's shoulders. In this tussle the Russians won. They had paved the way to success during the Seventh Congress of the Comintern in 1935. At that conference the Chinese Communist Party embraced the Popular or United Front tactic. It decided to cooperate with Chiang Kai-shek's Kuomintang with the view of having a showdown with the Japanese. But Chiang Kai-shek was not easily seduced. He resisted the Chinese Communist blandishments so the Communists (with the help of the Manchurians) kidnaped him in the ancient capital of Sian. The condition of his release was his pledge to adopt a more active policy toward the Japanese. This he did, and, when the Japanese precipitated an incident in mid-1937, the war was on. In the meantime the Russians, well satisfied with their diplomatic triumph in getting the Chinese to take on their mortal enemy, retired to the background, and signed a neutrality agreement with the Japanese.

The present situation is thus a reminder of the maneuvers of the 30s. This time the United States figures in the triangle. What must interest Russia day and night is a method of trapping America in the bog of mainland Asia and by the same token of weakening America in the struggle for Japan and Germany. The way to do it is to egg on the Chinese Communists to defy the United States and make a bid for Formosa. The trap is destined also for Chinese communism, which, judging from the orientation to Peking of Indian and Japanese Communists, has all the potentialities one of these days of becoming Constantinople to Russia's Rome.

A misstep on America's part could easily fulfill Moscow's hope. The issue is mountain high, pregnant with consequences affecting the lives of everybody, especially Americans. Accordingly the contemplated mission by Nehru is of the utmost significance. It is a good thing for the American people that his independence of American diplomacy, with its myopia about Asia and its addiction to the blunderbuss, has been established.

U. N. In Korea

Britain's decision to send troops to Korea immediately is both welcome and significant. The dispatch from Hongkong of infantry reportedly aggregating as much as a brigade should help materially in the stabilizing operation the United States is now conducting. Inasmuch as virtually all this country's available troops already have been sent to the fighting front, whatever additional ground strength is necessary for the reconquest phase probably will have to come largely from other United Nations members. Air and sea forces from other nations already are participating, but the British infantry force will be the first actual troop unit from other than the United States—and, of course, South Korea. Its presence should emphasize again the international character of the undertaking—and speed help from those nations which have not yet fulfilled their responsibility.

That this is a United Nations war cannot be stressed too often in the light of Russia's attempt to make divisive propaganda over the predominance of American troops. American Delegate Austin told the Security Council the other day that the United States has no designs on Korea as a military base. The military objective is a simple one—to defeat and push back the aggressors. But the political objective, and this involves the U. N. as directly as the military action, must be to establish a sound peace. A U. N. war must be followed by a U. N. peace. Mr. Austin suggested that nothing less than the unification of all Korea would suffice, with free elections and "some United Nations body" to lend assistance to the republic in establishing democratic government. This strongly implies that U. N. forces must go beyond the thirty-eighth parallel if that is necessary to bring unification.

It is hard to see how the United Nations' objective can be anything less than a united Korea. It was the flouting by Russia of a U. N. decision that led to the perpetuation of the artificial division along the thirty-eighth parallel. The independent regime in South Korea was established under U. N. auspices only after Russia would not admit a U. N. commission to the northern zone. Thus the prestige of the international organization is at stake, let alone the economic viability of Korea, for as long as it is divided it must lean upon outside help To be sure, the status of the Rhee government will be anomalous, although it has been recognized by the U. N. as the only legal government for Korea. Doubtless some sort of U. N. interim government for all Korea will be necessary until new elections can be held.

At the same time, the U. N. cannot afford to forget that liberation will not necessarily come as a blessing to Koreans whose land and whose homes are already ruined. The direct concern of most Koreans will not be so much with political objectives as with such practical matters as food and land reform. That is why it is so important for the United Nations to augment whatever broader aims it works out for Korea with sound interim measures and with a ready relief plan in which food will be the most immediate need.

Merger Control

Under the Clayton Act a company is prohibited from acquiring the stock of another company, if the acquisition would substantially lessen competition or tend to create a monopoly; but the prohibition does not extend to outright purchases of a company's physical assets. For a quarter of a century the Federal Trade Commission has been vainly urging Congress to plug this loophole in the law which has hampered its efforts to check the growing concentration of economic power via the merger route. A year ago the House passed such a loophole-plugging amendment to the Clayton Act; last May the Senate Judiciary Committee approved the House bill; and a few days ago Senator Lucas, speaking for the Democratic Policy Committee, informed the Senate that there is a possibility of considering the bill at this session.

In recent years the outstanding characteristic of the merger movement has been the buying out of small companies by large concerns. Over a seven-year period, more than 70 percent of the firms acquired have been taken over by corporations with assets of more than five million dollars, while at least 93 percent of the firms absorbed had assets of less than a million dollars. To be sure, mergers often result in gains in efficiency, and not all of them involve threats to free competitive enterprise. However, the current trend emphasizes the need for strengthening the antitrust laws to enable the FTC to arrest a cumulative process of acquisition that in many cases gives large and rapidly expanding corporations undue competitive advantages.

The bill passed by the House does not prevent all mergers, but only those that fail to meet the prescribed tests of legality. As a matter of fact, it is less restrictive than the present law in case of mergers effected by sales of stock. There is nothing in the legislation that would impede production for defense purposes, since the bill is not retroactive. Furthermore, it would not prevent a company from purchasing the assets of a bankrupt corporation or one that is about to fail. Nor would it prohibit small companies from merging in order to compete more effectively with large concerns. It applies only to those types of mergers and acquisitions—vertical, horizontal, and conglomerate—the effect of which may be substantially to lessen competition or to tend to create a monopoly.

The discretionary power that the proposed legislation would give the FTC to deal with mergers brought about by acquisition of assets as well as stock purchases is vaguely defined. But as the Senate Judiciary Committee states: "A requirement of certainty and actuality of injury to competition is incompatible with any effort to supplement the Sherman Act by reaching incipient restraints." Since it is the purpose of the bill to prevent restraints of trade that might lead to suppression of competition, it is neither practicable nor desirable for Congress to lay down hard and fast rules by which to determine when intervention is necessary.

O'Dwyer To Mexico

Our relations with Mexico are so cordial that, as with those of our northern neighbor, they are being taken for granted. But that happy state of affairs is due in no small measure to the sterling work done by Ambassador Walter Thurston. Mr. Thurston is a career official, with many years of service below the Rio Grande to his credit, including two or three embassies. He has knowledge and understanding—so much so that our Latin friends hold him in high esteem. An illness in the family has made him unwilling to be transferred to a less important assignment, so that, in order to make room for Mayor O'Dwyer, he has decided to quit.

Mr. O'Dwyer is an estimable man. However, it may be doubted whether he has a natural flair for diplomacy, and, of course, he is a tyro about our Latin-American relations. Maybe his ebullience and enthusiasm (together with his wife's charm) will open the hearts of our Mexican friends to him. At the same time we regret the loss of Mr. Thurston to our diplomacy. He has served his country with distinction. His leave-taking, moreover, will insure that the morale of the foreign service, which is not elevated as the result of the onslaught of McCarthyism, is further depreciated.

Hot Weather Reading

You took a somewhat unfair advantage in making a thrust at the Achilles heel of Protestants in August when most people are away on vacation or are too tired and fed up to be disturbed about whether or not we have a representative at the Vatican. But even in August you may be surprised at chain reaction when you flaunt the word "prejudice" before a great body of people, some of whom pride themselves on their "traditional tolerance," a worthy quality which unfortunately has degenerated in some cases into a "conceit of tolerance," an easy target for exploitation.

As for myself I should rather read articles like Lee Grove's of August 16 entitled: "Something's Bruin as a Tale Makes Rounds of Bear Row." Now that makes sense. I might add to Grove's bare facts that Smokey is developing a fascinating personality. He was born in the free wilds but he is becoming conscious of those prison bars. While I am opposed to zoos, on principle, I wish they could find another little bear like him to be with him.

Then take another group of animals at the zoo. Mr. Groves might do a column on those giraffes. Five of them cooped up in such small quarters! The giraffe population has outgrown its original quarters which were never big enough for such huge animals. What a shame the Commissioners have never seen fit to give these fine animals the quarters befitting their size and grace.

I have a great respect and admiration for Dr. Mann, manager of the Zoo, who, I am told, is never too busy or too tired, even in the middle of the night, to go personally to comfort a sick animal and superintend its care. In these times of mounting costs of foods, supplies and repairs Dr. Mann will have increasing difficulty in making ends meet. I heard recently of a plan afoot which could help. It seems that many restaurants throw out parts of fruits and vegetables and other foods which are still good and undecomposed but not in A-1 condition to serve to the public. These parts could be garnered and collected for the zoo animals. I hope the restaurants will cooperate in this good and worthy project.

Politics As Usual

When one reads the superb factual reporting of what is happening in Korea it makes it imperative for each of us to endeavor to do something. Yet what do we see happening in our Senate, as reported in your August 16 issue? A postponement of voting on the vital economic mobilization bill resulted partly from the following:

"Thursday was ruled out because Majority Leader Lucas (D., Ill.), will be in his home State that day . . . Friday was pretty generally accepted, for a while, but Senator Neely (D., W. Va.), objected to that. He explained that he and Senators Sparkman (D., Ala.), and Kilgore (D., W. Va.), are to address a West Virginia Young Democrats meeting that day."

Of course, all this is of the highest importance politically, while our men are dying like flies and will continue to do so as we carry on politics as usual and business (plus profiteering) as usual.

I think a good many of us are beginning to wonder if we don't snap out of this complacent, selfish attitude, if we, as a Nation, are not deserving of what is very likly to happen to us.

Casualty Figures

On August 18 you carried a dispatch by Joseph Alsop complaining that our ships and planes are carrying ordinary trade and luxury travel when we need supplies and troops in Korea. He also complained that "our people at home" are not aware of the "dreadful toll" (casualties) in Korea due to delay of official announcements.

It should be obvious to anyone that we don't need anywhere near our total ship and overseas plane carrying capacity to supply the numbers of men in action in Korea. And also that, due to the "head-in-the-sand" attitude of our people, our Congress, and our Defense Department, we can't send any more units to Korea because we don't have enough.

Only a fool would say to the North Koreans, "Cheer up, fellows, you're hurting us plenty, too. Why we lost umpteen thousand men in the last two weeks. Anyone that foolish should be put away before he hurts someone. If I were fighting with an outfit that was only at part strength due to casualties, I'd do my best not to tell the enemy about it, and so would any reasonable man.

Arab Refugees

In your August 13 issue you published a letter from Mr. Moshe Yuval in which he made the statement: "Israel is . . . being surrounded by states which jointly conducted a war of aggression against Israel" and then went out of his way to criticize Egypt for not making peace with Palestine.

Neither Egypt nor the other Arab States conducted any war of aggression in Palestine. On the contrary, the Arab armies entered that unhappy land in 1948 to restore peace and to protect its people who were being expelled from their ancestral homes by foreign aggressors as the result of Jewish aggression in Palestine.

There are today nearly one million Arab refugees, or 80 per cent of the country's total Arab inhabitants, homeless and destitute.

Twice the United Nations has resolved that these refugees have a right to and must be permitted to return to their homes, but the Jews have defied these resolutions and continue to defy them.

May I add that Egypt's abstention during the discussion of the Korean question did not imply that she approved aggression or that she favored communism. Egypt voted for the cease fire resolution, thus proving that she did not favor armed aggression, and she, long ago, outlawed communism, while most of the democratic countries continue to tolerate it.

American Responsibility in Korea

In South Korea we failed to build a nation capable of defending itself from attack. Why?

The North Koreans have a fighting faith, a well trained army and plenty of war materiel; the South Koreans lack all three. Yet, we were in Korea just as long as the Russians and had the same opportunities as they.

Our failure was due to more than just the ineptitude of our State Department. We lost out, I believe, because of a weakness that is peculiarly American. Although our enemies accuse us of being "imperialists," the truth is we suffer from "American conscience" at the idea of running the show in someone else's backyard. So much so, that like well meaning but overkind parents we let our wards loose before they are of age.

Both we and the Russians came into Korea in 1945. But where they had a definite plan for fitting Korea into the Soviet orbit, we had nothing but a vague desire to put the country back on its feet. This, to us, meant establishing order, providing economic help, requiring free elections and then getting the blue blazes back home. The result—well look at the battle reports.

The well meaning reluctance of the American military government to interfere in South Korean affairs spoke well for our intentions but poorly for our understanding. Not only is the average Korean unable to read or write, but he has lived under dictatorial rule for centuries. Given those conditions it was hopeless to expect him to make democracy work. His inability to do so was evident from the beginning. Stewart Meecham, for 10 months labor adviser to the commanding general, describes the elections held there thusly:

"The elections were held on May 10, 1948, under U. N. observation that was purely token in character. The entire staff of the commission consisted of only 30 persons; eight million voters were scattered over an area of some 37,000 square miles. Practically all of the candidates represented the rightist parties headed by Syngman Rhee . . . Large bands of young rightists were specially deputized as auxiliary police for the occasion. During the weeks preceding the balloting there were hundreds of killings and thousands of arrests."

When, as was inevitable with so backward an electorate, the politically skillful, conservative right wing took control, trouble was in sight. The Rhee government represented the rich absentee landlord who owned most of the farmland and leased it to the tenant farmer at a stiff rent. It definitely was not going to divide the land, even though the landowner would be paid for his land, and thereby take away the means by which the class it represented had managed to live very, very well for hundreds of years. The tenant farmer, on the other hand, and in South Korea 13 million out of a total population of 20 million are tenant farmers, insisted that the land be divided.

To make matters worse, the Russians had immediately divided up the land in North Korea and made sure that the South Koreans were told about it.

The gap between the Rhee government and the people widened as time went by and nothing, or practically nothing, was done for the common man. Stanley Earl, adviser to the ECA mission to South Korea, says that:

"The South Koreans would have rebelled against the Syngman Rhee government had not the invasion averted it."

Like it or not, leadership of the free world has fallen to us. That means jobs we don't like, such as running some other country until the people there are able to govern and defend themselves. Sure we would be called "imperialists." We are anyway, and this way at least we could ensure that the help we give so freely is put to proper use.

Results Of Demobilizing

By Marquis Childs

Wherry's Poison

IF THE poison exuded on the Senate floor by Senator Kenneth Wherry of Nebraska is a sample of Republican campaign oratory, then the country is in for a bad time this fall. All hope of unity will be destroyed in a savage dog eat dog attack that will leave "victory" a pretty empty thing.

The psychologist says that a sense of guilt produces a desire to find a scapegoat; to hit out at someone else with a blind anger. It's about time to face up to the fact that for the tragedy of Korea and for our present defenselessness there is more than enough blame to go around.

The fifth anniversary of VJ-Day has come and gone as though it had never been. Perhaps we preferred to forget that mood of exaltation and the aftermath in which the clamor to "bring the boys home" drowned out everything else.

America had in being on VJ-Day military power of overwhelming weight everywhere in the world. That power was dismantled with a speed that was fantastically destructive. If you want to go back to original sin to explain our present plight, there it is.

A brief glance at the record will show that almost every politician, both Republican and Democrat, joined in that cry to "bring the boys home." Wasn't the war over?

GEN. George C. Marshall, who was Chief of Staff of the Army until November of 1945, realized how destructive and costly this immediate dismantling would be. So did some others who understood what a power vacuum would be left if American force in being was taken apart while Russia kept her legions armed and strategically placed.

But these were the "brass hats." They wanted to keep the boys in service so they could retain their wartime rank. Why, if you let 'em, they'd take the country over. So went the political cry.

A few men in political life spoke up for what they believed to be the truth about the dismantling that was proceeding at disastrous speed. One was Representative James Wadsworth of New York, who is now retiring after 30 years of distinguished and honorable service in the Sanate and the House. A little later Wadsworth was one of the few Republicans to work actively for adoption of universal military training when President Truman recommended it following a report by a special commission of inquiry.

President Truman, who placed great faith in General Marshall's advice, made some effort to stem the dismantling tide. A revealing incident comes to mind out of this period.

One of the nationally broadcast commentators was working the "bring the boys home" theme as hard as possible. He personally directed the collecting and signing of GI petitions to come home.

At the end of a press conference he sought to present these petitions to Truman. This was the signal for the President to let loose some earthy Missouri language to the effect that he didn't want any of the blankety-blank petitions.

THERE IS some evidence that the "bring the boys home" drive was egged on by Communists. But very little inspiration was needed, since it fitted the temper of the time. We all wanted our sons back to get them into college, into the family business, into jobs. Wasn't the war over?

Some Republicans in 1946 went so far as to hint that the Truman Administration wanted to keep "the boys" overseas because it would be harder for them to cast a ballot against the party in power. In the election that fall, the party out of power captured control of both Senate and House. Undoubtedly one reason was because the Republicans had capitalized successfully on the discontents growing out of demobilization and the aftermath of a terrible war.

This dismantling process in 1945 and '46 is estimated to have cost 48 billion dollars. How much of that could have been saved if it had been done more cautiously and slowly, no one can say. Part of the saving would have been in war material bulldozed into dump heaps or thrown into the sea because no ships wre available to send it back to storage while manpower to carry on a salvage operation was melting away.

Perhaps the very fact that the Democrats are in and the Republicans are out adds up to political responsibility. But this does not alter the record. Nor does it justify wild and reckless and divisive talk about guilt for the blood that is being shed by young Americans in the Korean war.

Russian Crabmeat

Hats off to the longshoremen who refused to unload the Russian crabmeat in New York recently, which would have meant $250,000 worth of bullets pumped into the bodies of our American boys.

Just the other night one of our well known commentators told of American buyers in Russia, buying up millions of dollars worth of Russian furs that are to be shipped to this country to be manufactured into furs and fur coats. What firm would want to dirty their hands by handling them? Every patriotic firm should boycott Russian furs and every union man should refuse to unload them as they did the crabmeat in New York.

Today and Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

Cassandra Speaking

IT CANNOT be said too often that nobody who speaks with authority has as yet told the American people how great is the gap between the military commitments we have assumed all over the world and the military power now ready or that can soon be made ready. Mr. Churchill has told the British and the west Europeans where they stand in the matter of sheer self-defense—as one is to six or seven. General deGaulle is telling the French where they stand—that they can offer only a "contemptible defense."

Lippmann

But out of Washington no one of comparable authority has spoken with comparable frankness. No one has ventured to tell the people that since June 25 our military liabilities has grown faster than our military assets, that the additional effort we are now making is pathetically small as against the weight of the new demands which we have incurred in Asia and in Europe.

LAST WEEK the German Chancellor, Dr. Adenauer, had a press conference. The report of it gives a better idea than can be had from military statistics of what is in the wind. "Until now," said Dr. Adenauer, "the people in Germany maintained their spirit against the threat of communism by their faith in the United States' armed forces. But events in Korea have had a noticeable effect and there is a sense of helplessness that the Russians will take over." This, let us bear in mind, is a public statement by the German politician with whom we have the best and the closest relations.

Dr. Adenauer went on to say that "the present psychology of the people of western Germany must be immediately bolstered by the enlargement of the American forces." His estimate of the forces needed to restore popular confidence in American military prowess was "three more divisions in the next three months" which should be enlarged "to include about 10 tank divisions."

We can get some idea of what Dr. Adenauer has in mind when we recall that in 1945, at the top of our mobilization, we had only 15 armored divisions in the field. What Dr. Adenauer is saying, with a very thin veil over the hard judgment, is that the German people, who understand war, have lost confidence in United States forces when they are on or near a peacetime basis, and that the United States is a great military power only when civilian energy and civilian brains are brought into the war establishment by full mobilization.

IN EFFECT we are getting the same judgment from France. The time has gone by when the continental nations can be satisfied with "military aid"—that is to procure arms. Korea has to procure arms. Koreo has sharpened a tendency which had already become noticeable at the meeting of the Atlantic nations in the spring, namely a tendency to a reversal of roles.

More and more we, who are separated from the Red Army by an ocean and half a continent, find ourselves urging the European governments to increase their own defenses more than these governments and their parliaments are disposed to increase them. And more and more our appeals are answered by statements, like Dr. Adenauer's, of the conditions under which they could and therefore they would be willing to take the risks and the sacrifices of rearmament and self-defense. We are told in substance that American money will not suffice, that to arouse the will to rearm and to resist there must be a large American contribution in the scarcest and the most expensive of all military items —namely the GIs.

IT IS a deliberate understatement to say that the situation which all this reflects is very serious. The question is whether we are doing our part to correct it. I wish I could manage to believe that we are. But as I see it, the deficit in our diplomacy—the disparity between our commitments and our moves—is being enlarged and not being reduced. The additional forces we plan to raise do not begin, I believe, to meet our new obligations. Measured in money, the effort is almost a continuation of business as usual. Measured in military manpower, which is the acid test, it may not be enough to deal with the North Koreans. And yet our obligations have become greatly inflated because we have allowed ourselves to be drawn into a war on the ground on the Asiatic mainland and into direct conflict with China. We are outnumbered in Korea now. But what is most serious is that we are in a diplomatic jam where our adversaries in Asia can keep us endlessly entangled, in fact isolated, and forever outnumbered.

We are in this most dangerous position because the President and his Secretary of State have lost the control of U. S. foreign policy. They are the captives of their critics. They are carrying out, unhappily and ineffectively, a policy imposed upon them by their political opponents. And they, in turn, though they are dictating the policy, have neither the power to make it work, nor the responsibility if it does not work but leads to a kind of global Korea.

Food Declared Ample for All

Carlisle, Ind., Aug. 21 (AP).—Secretary of Agriculture Brannan said today that farmers are in "fine shape" to provide plenty of food for soldiers and civilians.

"Even allowing for increases in military food requirements," he said, "we expect to have enough food so that civilians can continue consuming as much as in the last two years."

In a speech prepared for the Sullivan County Fair, Brannan said there are grounds for hope that economic controls for agriculture can be postponed for a considerable time or perhaps avoided entirely—"unless the emergency becomes much worse."

"Right now we are in very fine shape," he said. "Our food production resources are far and away the greatest in the world. American farmers have the know-how that it takes."

"Another year of very large farm output is in prospect."

There are big reserves of wheat and other grains, Brannan said, and we have lots of cotton and other fibers.

Talking up the Brannan Plan, the Secretary said we need a program which "solidly protects farm prices in case of a sudden slackening of demand" yet "puts an abundance of milk, eggs and other perishables in the hands of consumers at attractive prices."

Red Dispute Holds Up Bill On Free Food

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

A House bill to make it easier to give away several hundred million dollars worth of surplus foodstuffs ran into a row yesterday over barring them from Communist-controlled countries.

The bill, authored by Representative Walter K. Granger (D., Utah) would authorize the Commodity Credit Corp. to take two steps to induce American welfare groups and institutions and foreign relief agencies to take the goods off the Government's hands:

1. To repackage the surplus butter, eggs, dried milk, cheese, etc., in smaller and more attractive packages than at present.

2. To pay the freight to distributing points in the various states and to seaports for foreign distribution.

The total program is estimated to cost about 50 million dollars, although the Granger bill does not fix any limitation. The bill, however, provides that this cost shall be paid "out of funds specifically appropriated for the relief of needy persons" instead of being charged to the farm program.

Proponents of the measure urged prompt action to avoid "waste through deterioration or spoilage." While CCC is trying to dispose of these commodities, the Armed Services are spending millions of dollars for similar items.

Yesterday's House session was almost entirely consumed in debate over an amendment by Representative James C. Davis (D., Ga.) to prohibit distribution of any of the free commodities to nations behind the Iron Curtain. It was opposed by both Republican and Democratic members of the House Agriculture Committee, led by Chairman Harold D. Cooley (D., N. C.) and Representative Clifford L. Hope (R., Kans.).

Cooley argued that several agencies such as CARE and the Friends Service Committee Relief, would be hampered by adoption of the amendment. Cooley engaged in a hot exchange with both Cox and Davis. He finally halted the debate by adjournment when Davis raised a point of order of no quorum when a vote on the Davis amendment was reached.

1951 Wheat Pegged at 90% Parity

Secretary of Agriculture Brannan yesterday announced price supports for the 1951 wheat crop at 90 percent of parity but not less than $1.90 a bushel—the same as for the 1950 crop.

The 90 percent support set by the Secretary was the maximum allowed under the present Agriculture Act. It permits him to set a range of 80 to 90 percent for basic crops in 1951 except for tobacco which must be supported at 90 percent.

Actual parity will be calculated on July 1, 1951, for wheat. The $1.99 estimated yesterday is the figure below which the average national price support cannot fall on next year's wheat crop. If the parity figure July 1, 1951, is higher, the price support will be adjusted upward.

A 90 percent parity support has been mandatory since 1942.

The 1951 wheat acreage allotment already has been announced by the Agriculture Department as 72,800,000 acres. This acreage, with average yield, would produce a crop of 1,150,000,000 bushels, as compared with an estimated 1950 crop of 996 million bushels.

Only farmers staying within acreage allotments are eligible for price supports.

British Jail German Girl in Spy Case

Bielefeld, Germany, Aug. 21 (U.P.)—A 21-year-old German girl sentenced to 6-years' imprisonment by a British high court today for spying for Czechoslovakia, said one of her main tasks was to organize "loose women" in western Germany into an espionage corps.

Capital Transit Attacks Pepco Rate Increase

. . . Tells of need for income

increase Capital Transit's annual bill for power to run its streetcars by $661,000 or 70.7 percent. This in itself is about one-third of the additional revenue the PUC estimated it had provided for CTC in a fare increase last month.

Actually, Capital Transit faces a 75 percent increase in its electricity bill when other power uses are added in, Awalt said. Since 1933 Capital Transit's electricity costs have already increased 76 percent, he added, while the average cost to all consumers had dropped 38 percent.

Awalt also made these points: (1) Since 1933 Pepco has used rent free $750,000 worth of CTC property (power plant, poles and other equipment); and (2) the expansion program, on which Pepco has based its need for more income, will not benefit Capital Transit because its need for electricity is decreasing.

Witnesses Examined

Throughout yesterday's hearing Awalt and his associate, Raymond Sparks, pressed Pepco witnesses for detailed information on how testimony was prepared. They alone of the four parties that had formally intervened made any preliminary cross-examinations.

When Pepco Treasurer R. Roy Dunn said that a forecast was "the result of the composite judgment" of the staffs of four Pepco departments, the transit company attorneys indicated they will cross-examine everyone who had a part in arriving at the judgment.

The Capital Transit attorneys also asked to see every paper that went into the preparation of 12 comprehensive exhibits presented yesterday. PUC Chairman James H. Flanagan suggested a conference between the two utility companies to decide what papers and witnesses will be needed.

In addition to pitting two utility companies against each other for the first time here, the Pepco request also caused one member of the three-man PUC to disqualify himself in the case.

Gordon Young Declines

Flanagan announced that District Engineer Commissioner Gordon R. Young had decided not to sit on the case because of the District's interest as a consumer. The District faces a 59.8 percent or $710,000 annual increase in its street lighting bill if the increase is granted.

The two Pepco officials who testified yesterday dealt chiefly with the need for increased income to support an eight-year 130 million dollar expansion program that will be completed in 1954.

Executive Vice President James H. Ferry said that in the next four years Pepco expects to spend 80 million dollars on expansion. More than 17 million dollars of this amount is tentatively scheduled for enlargement of the new power plant in Alexandria, he said. An additional unit at the Benning plant will cost eight million dollars. During this year and next the company will spend $640,000 to cut down the smoke nuisance at the Buzzard Point plant. And between now and 1954 the company will spend 10 million dollars for new extensions and services to customers, he said.

More Demand Seen

Demand for power is expected to increase steadily through 1954, Ferry said, and if "as has been stated . . . 20,000 additional Government employees will be needed in Washington" for the defense program, the increase will be greater than estimated.

Dunn then picked up the story to tell why the company needs additional income to proceed with expansion plans.

The $3.5 million that the increase would add to Pepco's operating revenue next year is the minimum amount needed to "service properly its present security structure and permit the sale of additional securities," he said.

Even without the building program the company would need an increase to give it an adequate return, Dunn claimed. Last year the company earned $272,000 above its basic return of 5½ percent. But that did not include the $27 million invested in the Potomac River power plant which is now part of Pepco's rate base, he said.

To Give Explanation

Pepco officials said they expect to finish presenting their case today with an explanation of the proposed rate changes by Rate Engineer Herbert F. G. Main. Flanagan said the hearings would then be recessed to give intervening parties time to prepare for cross-examination.

In addition to Capital Transit, parties that have intervened formally include the United States Government, the Federation of Citizens Associations and the Terminal Refrigerating and Warehousing Corp.

Also represented yesterday as interested parties were the Willard Hotel Co., the Veterans Cooperative Housing Association and the District Government. Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West has announced the District will make a statement on how it would be effected by the requested increase.

Requested Rate Hike Outlined by Company

Pepco's requested rate increase would boost the monthly bill of the average District residential consumer, who uses 142 kilowatt hours, from $3.50 to $3.65.

The following company figures show what it would mean to some other residential and commercial users:

Monthly Use	Present Rates	Proposed Rates
Residential
20 kw (minimum)	$ .80	$1.10
50 kw	$1.79	$2
60 kw	$1.98	$2.18

British Expert Sees U. S. Army in Korea 'Too Slow'

A British military expert said yesterday the United States troops in Korea seem to be "over-organized and too slow."

The appraisal was given by Maj. Gen. J. F. C. Fuller, retired, in an interview with the editors of the weekly news magazine, U. S. News & World Report.

He said American troops seem to have plenty of courage and fighting ability but were not trained for the terrain and type of fighting with which they are confronted.

Pointing out that supplies for an American division call for 20,000 weapons, 2000 radios and 4000 vehicles, the general said the ratio was "absurd."

"In a primitive country like Korea you need primitive divisions," he said. "You want a modern, mobile version of the old Kentucky backwoodsman with a superb modern weapons and a minimum of gear."

Passaic River Has A Head Like Beer

Garfield, N. J., Aug. 21 (AP).—The Passaic River looked like a bubble bath last night. The river was covered with suds for 40 yards below the Dundee dam. The foam rose to a height of three feet, with pieces breaking off and floating into the air.

Police speculated that a factory along the river had discared a chemical that foamed as it went over the dam.

Boy Stuck in Can Gets Bruised Ego

San Pedro, Calif., Aug. 21 (AP).—Edward I. Mase, jr., 9, escaped with only a bruised ego after spending two hours stuck in a garbage can. His playmates became frightened and fled when Edward got in and couldn't get out.

Two hours later, police cruised by and heard his wails. They took him, can and all, to a hospital where a hacksaw and tinsnips did the trick.

Atom Health Taught

Albany, Aug. 21 (U.P.).—The New York State Health Department today opened a three-day course on sanitation as a defense measure in case of atomic attack.

Train Wreck Averted Here

cording to officials, it broke away.

It was on the same track on which The Southerner was pulling into the yards.

But whereas The Southerner was slowing down for berthing in Union Station, the runaway gathered speed.

The empty train, also Southern Railway System property, was being shunted about the yards for an approach to the station.

It was traveling in the same direction as The Southerner and on a track parallel to it. It was not going as fast as The Southerner, the stationmaster's office said.

McCoy and Hamlett, aboard the empty passenger train, apparently saw the switch engine ploughing toward them, and jumped in time to avoid the collision.

Meantime, excited yard officials had called police and firemen to alert them for a possible disaster.

The stationmaster's office said the entire yard was tensed for possible tragedy when the switch engine passed the two switching points and approached Callow's tower.

An investigation was started by officials last night.

Yard activity began to approach normal about 10:45 p. m.

The Southerner carries streamlined equipment of the Southern system and some coaches of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

It had picked up its 200 passengers in New York, Newark, Trenton, Philadelphia (North Philadelphia Station and 30th Street Station), Wilmington and Baltimore.

Green Sees Labor Ready to Renew No-Strike Pledge

President William Green of the AFL said yesterday labor is ready to repeat its "no-strike" pledge of the last war but would insist on a "no-excess profits" promise from industry.

Green gave the assurance to White House reporters after a call on President Truman.

The labor leader said he told Mr. Truman prices have risen 13 to 15 percent since the middle of June, without justification, while wages have stayed unchanged. Green said he urged the President to bear this in mind in using any economic controls Congress votes him.

"We are not opposed to wage stabilization," Green said, "when a parity has been established between wages and prices."

Legion Votes Aid To Woman Sued By Adler, Draper

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 21 (U.P.)—The 32d Indiana American Legion convention voted today to give financial aid to persons on the "front line against communism" and said the first assistance would go to Mrs. Hester McCullough, sued for libel by dancer Paul Draper and harmonica player Larry Adler.

Mrs. McCullough, a Greenwich, Conn., housewife, was sued for $200,000 by the entertainers because she publicly accused them of pro-Communist activities. The case ended in a hung jury last May 27, with the jury 7 to 5 in Mrs. McCullough's favor.

The entertainers have not yet requested a new trial but the case still remains on the calendar of the Federal court in Hartford, Conn. The first trial cost each side an estimated $40,000.

U. S. Acts to Jail Judy, Hearing Monday on Motion

New York, Aug. 21 (U.P.)—The Government asked the United States Court of Appeals today to dismiss the appeal of convicted spy Judith Coplon, a bride of three months, in a move to send her to jail at once.

United States Attorney Irving H. Saypol filed an application for dismissal in the United States Court of Appeals on the grounds that the one-time Government girl has taken too long to make her appeal. The appeal expiration date, which was extended twice, was August 1. The Government's motion is slated to go before the court next Monday.

Miss Coplon's attorneys said they would file the record on appeal and appeal briefs "in the next few days."

The President's Calling List

President Truman yesterday had the following White House appointments:

11 a. m.—Representative Bennett (D., Fla.).

11:15—Representative Zablocki (D., Wis.) with Stephen J. McMahon, former member of tax board; Stephen J. McMahon, jr., associate of Joseph E. Davies law firm, and Eugene F. McMahon of Central Intelligence Agency.

11:30—Senators Murray (D., Mont.), Thomas (D., Utah) and others.

12:00 noon—William Green, AFL president, with Herbert Bates of Bricklayers union, and George Meany.

12:30 p. m.—Secretary of State Acheson.

miles north of Los Angeles, Weisband called to appear before the grand jury. This was on or about July 12, Mrs. Weisband said, and he appeared before the grand jury and testified for about 15 or 20 minutes.

He was told to appear again the following week, she said, but told the district attorney's office there that he could not remain, partly because he did not have the money, and partly because his wife was not well and she had no other means of returning to Arlington.

He was then told that it would be all right, she said, and he would receive another subpena. He was again summoned to appear on August 16, and in response left here August 11, Mrs. Weisband said.

The Weisbands were married in January, 1949. He had lived in the United States since about 1925, she said.

Echoing the words of her husband in Los Angeles, when told by a reporter of his arraignment, Mrs. Weisband said it was all a mystery to her. "I do not understand it," she declared.

Truman to Seek 30 Millions for Medical Research

A group of Democratic Senators called on President Truman yesterday to urge him to seek additional appropriations totaling 30 million dollars for support of medical research in defense planning.

Senator Murray (D., Mont.) who served as spokesman, said Mr. Truman agreed to ask the Budget Bureau to consider the requests.

The Senators want $7,600,000 for research in mental disorders, $13,100,000 for additional research in heart disease, $7,900,000 for cancer research and $1,400,000 for dental research.

Former WPB Man, 2 Others Drowned In Rescue Attempt

Manteo, N. C., Aug. 21 (AP).—Three adults, including a former member of the War Production Board, drowned in the Atlantic Ocean's choppy waters off Kill Devil Hill today attempting to save a small girl. The child was finally rescued by a life guard.

Dead are Mr. and Mrs. Roy T. Frye of Staunton, Va., and Reginald Farrell, 25, of Nashville, N. C.

Frye, 38, was a former member of the WPB and was president and general manager of Augusta Motor Sales in Staunton. His wife was 35 years old.

The Coast Guard said the tragedy occurred when the Frye couple's daughter, 12-year-old Natalie, became caught in an undertow. Mrs. Frye swam toward her daughter, followed by her husband and Ferrell.

Meanwhile, Life Guard Robert Burleson rescued the girl, but the trio drowned before help could reach them.

Train Kills Family

Columbus, Ohio, Aug. 21 (AP).—A train-automobile collision wiped out a family of four last night. The sheriff's office identified the dead as Melvin Curtis Mangold, 25, of near Circleville, Ohio,; his wife, Rose Rebecca, 23; a son, Rickey Linn, 2, and a 1-year-old daughter, Brenda. Deputies said an eastbound Norfolk and Western passenger train struck and demolished their automobile just south of Columbus.

Typographical Union Gets Printers' Bid

By V. R. Montanari
Post Reporter

The International Typographical Union yesterday was invited to join the commercial printing industry in planning for an expected mechanical revolution in the Nation's composing rooms.

The invitation came from Reuel D. Harmon, president of the union employers' section of the Printing Industry of America, who also proposed a union-industry effort to increase productivity in typesetting, which, he said, has been "lowered."

Harmon addressed the ninety-second convention of the ITU, which is meeting at the Mayflower Hotel through Friday.

The 400 delegates and several hundred other members and visitors cheered a denunciation of the Taft-Hartley Act from AFL President William Green and reports of the union's fight against the law from Henry Kaiser and Gerhard P. Van Arkel, attorneys for the ITU. Van Arkel also is counsel for the Senate District Committee.

Housecleaning Urged

Green called on the printers and other organized labor to "give Congress a good housecleaning" in this fall's elections.

He said the AFL, working with the CIO, the Railway Brotherhoods and the large unaffiliated unions like the Machinists and the United Mine Workers, will be striving together to expel from Congress "those who give their first allegiance to big business."

A few hours after he spoke, John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, visited the convention and shook hands with a number of officials and delegates, but did not address them.

Harmon said new problems are being created by the new "cold processes" of printing, and urged both the union and the employers to make provision for retraining operators.

Warning Issued

He warned that "if we who have a historical basis in the graphic arts do not adapt to what is coming, then we will be replaced by new persons and new capital."

One joint study of new processes, similar to that suggested by Harmon on a national level, was provided for in the last agreement between the Washington Newspaper Publishers Association and Columbia Typographical Union Local 101, local officers pointed out.

Harmon said decreased productivity was due to both management and union members. While often the printers need more training and misspell words too often, foremen also need better training, he declared. He noted also that printers are often required to work from "unclean copy."

The afternoon session of the printers' union was devoted to disposal of 17 proposals for changes in union laws. All were rejected, as recommended by the Committee on Laws.

17 Turned Down

Among the 17 measures turned down yesterday by the convention were 10 introduced by Jesse B. Manbeck, "anti administration" delegate of the Columbia Typographical Union here. Manbeck, who has 22 more proposals filed for convention action, debated with ITU President Woodruff Randolph on two of his measures.

Today, Senator Claude Pepper (D., Fla.) is scheduled to address the convention at 11 a. m., while Secretary of Labor Tobin will speak at 2:30 p. m. The session will open at 9:30 a. m. and end at 5 p. m.

A luncheon and fashion show is scheduled for the Women's Auxiliary of the ITU, which is also meeting here at this time, at 1 p. m. at the Statler Hotel. Delegates, other members and visitors will go on a boat ride down the Potomac at 8:30 p. m.

New York, Mississippi Vote Today

By The Associated Press

Voters in New York, Mississippi and Wyoming primaries name their candidates today for 53 House seats—45 of them in New York.

Wyoming also will pick nominees for Governor, while Delaware Democrats hold a convention to choose an opponent for Republican Representative J. Caleb Boggs.

New York waits until party conventions September 6 and 7 to select candidates for Governor and Senate.

In the New York House races, only five present members have contests in their primaries: W. Sterling Cole, Edwin A. Hall and Clarence E. Kilburn, Republicans, and Joseph L. Pfeifer and Louis B. Heller, Democrats.

The only American Laborite in Congress, Representative Vito Marcantonio, has no opposition in the primary. But the Democrats, Republicans and Liberal Party are ganging up on him in the November election. Their coalition candidate is former Democratic State Senator James G. Donovan, who says communism will be the big issue in his campaign.

In Wyoming, the lone House member, Republican Representative Frank A. Barrett, is after the GOP gubernatorial nomination in a tussle with three other hopefuls: State Senator Leland U. Grieve, Cheyenne grocer Samuel L. Asher and Chairman C. D. Williamson of the Wyoming Commerce and Industry Commission.

Former Representative John J. McIntyre, State Senator Rudolph Anselmi and Cheyenne Public Accountant Carl Johnson are trying for the Democratic nod in the race for Governor.

Three Republicans and three Democrats are trying for Barrett's House seat.

Representative Arthur Winstead and John Bell Williams are the only Mississippi House members having opposition in the Democratic primary, but a third, Representative William M. Whittington, is retiring and three candidates are trying for the nomination n his district.

That leaves four House members unopposed.

Wildcat Strike Flares at Chrysler Plant

Detroit, Aug. 21 (AP).—A wildcat strike over a single job classification brought a walkout today at the Chrysler Corp. Highland Park plant.

Pickets at the plant gates kept out all but 350 of the 1700 employes who reported for the second shift at 3 p. m., a company spokesman said.

Meantime, negotiations between the Packard Motor Co. and the CIO United Mine Workers were continuing in an effort to end the week-long strike of 8000 workers.

A spokesman for UAW Local 490 said the stoppage at Chrysler was unauthorized. He said a union committee was conferring with the company in an attempt to iron out the dispute.

The company said the strike began when 200 employes walked out in protest against a new worker being put on a job at a rate 5 cents an hour under what the job had previously paid.

Textile Workers Call Off Enka Rayon Dispute

Morristown, Tenn., Aug. 21 (AP).—The CIO Textile Workers Union of America has called off its months-long, violence-studded strike at the American Enka Corporation rayon plant. But it plans to push charges of unfair labor practices against the company.

Picket Line Idles 3000 at Car Plant

Berwick, Pa., Aug. 21 (U.P.).—A picket line of 35 men idled the Berwick plant of the American Car and Foundry Co. today.

The plant, employing 3000 persons, currently is manufacturing railroad cars, but is to go into production of howitzer self-propelled carriers.

The grievance was centered about the suspension of 36 "hammer men" in the freight car division last Thursday. The men had complained they could not keep up with the production schedule and had asked for a rest period.

Detroit Radio Engineers Return Pending Parleys

Detroit, Aug. 21 (U.P.).—Television station WWJ-TV returned to the air today and all operations of radio station WWJ went back on a normal basis as engineers ended their two-day strike, pending negotiations.

The engineers walked out Saturday to back up contract demands and the station went off the air for two hours. Later, supervisory personnel manned the engineering facilities and the station's AM broadcasts were resumed.

The Detroit News failed to publish for five hours today when mechanical department workers refused to cross the engineers' picket lines.

However, the television and FM programs were suspended.

Virginia Acts to Bar Mail-Order Lawyers

Richmond, Va., Aug. 21 (AP).—Virginia has decided to close the door to mail order lawyers.

The State Board of Law Examiners has rescinded it rule permitting applicants for the bar to prepare themselves by correspondence courses.

Board Secretary M. E. Watts disclosed the board's action today and said the prohibition became effective August 19. He added, however, that it will not apply to those who have already registered with the State board and are now engaged in correspondence courses.

The board action does not change the provision which permits law students to study privately under a practicing attorney, nor does it affect the rule that requires a minimum of two years study in a recognized law school.

Watt said the board also last week decided to require the filing of applications, certificates and fees by October 15 for those who wish to take the next bar examinations here on December 12 and 13.

The Enemy's SIXTH Column is INFLATION

Nobody knows how many billions must be spent to keep freedom alive at home and abroad.

But one thing is certain: the expenditures for defense will be even greater if the enemy's Sixth Column—inflation—is not checked.

Naturally we must have the money to provide our armed forces with all they need. And we must also have money for vital civilian needs.

So now, more than ever before in our country's history, protecting the buying power of the dollar is essential.

To protect the value of the dollar, we must make sure that our Government isn't called upon to tax, borrow or spend a single cent for things that are unnecessary at this time. And certainly unnecessary spending by anybody, including government, has absolutely no excuse in times like these.

Let's be clear about one thing: There are two essentials to winning a war these days. One is winning the victory in the field. The other is making sure our economy is not being bled to death.

Mayflower Net In Half Climbs To $409,860

By S. Oliver Goodman

The Mayflower Hotel Corp. netted $409,860 in the first six months this year, against $355,035 in the same period last year, it was learned yesterday.

The local hotel is operated by the Hilton Hotel Corp., which owns about 70 percent of the Mayflower's outstanding stock. Hilton's equity in the Mayflower earnings amounted to $285,878, against $246,952 in the first half of 1949.

The parent firm yesterday reported net income of $2,111,318 for the first six months, equal to $1.33 a share. This compared with $1,878,290 or $1.16 a share in the same 1949 period.

These figures, Hilton explained, do not include the corporation's interest in the earnings of the Mayflower and the Hotel Waldorf-Astoria, its partially-owned subsidiaries. The Hilton equity in the Waldorf-Astoria amounted to $366,486 for the first half. Comparable figures for 1949 are not available, since the Waldorf ownership changed hands in October, 1949.

Gross revenues of the Hilton chain totaled $22,165,976 in the first six months, compared with $20,792,607 a year ago.

NEW BRANCH: Andy S. Hines, sr., has been appointed manager of the newly-opened factory branch sales office of Thor Corp. at 2801 8th st. ne. Hines formerly was Washington sales manager of Mid-Atlantic Appliances, Inc., and during the war served with OPA. He acted as District rationing officer for the District of Columbia from 1942 to 1944, when he was appointed branch chief for mileage conservation for the entire nation. Howard L. Waller has been named assistant branch manager here for Thor, maker of home laundry appliances.

PRICE STRAWS: The Maytag Co. announced that "rapidly rising costs" of raw material since outbreak of the Korean war had forced it to cancel the price reduction it made last May 1 on washers . . . Grade A tin sold yesterday at $1.07 a pound, up five cents over the weekend . . . Calumet & Hecla hiked prices of its copper two cents a pound to 24¾ cents delivered to consumers . . . A leading New York custom smelter raised the price of lead one cent a pound to 14 cents, New York basis.

DIVIDENDS: State Loan & Finance Corp. yesterday declared regular quarterly dividends of 30 cents a share on both classes of common stock and regular dividends of 37½ cents a share on two classes of preferred stock, all payable September 15 to stock of record September 1. President Davis Weir also announced the elevation of Paul H. Williams to executive vice president and secretary and Francis W. Hulse to a vice president. Williams formerly was vice president and secretary and Hulse previously was director of supervision of the small-loan firm whose headquarters are in Washington.

JUST SUPPOSING: If you had purchased five shares of Libbey-Owens Ford Glass Co. when it was first publicly offered 33 years ago at $20 a share and held it until now, you would have seen your $100 investment multiply about 29 times in value (based on the current market price). Shareholders will vote Wednesday on a proposed two-for-one splitup in stock. If this splitup is approved, you would own 88 shares (three stock dividends have been made) in place of your original five and the market value would be about $2950. In addition, you would have received cash dividends totaling $2933 from the time of the purchase through the first six months this year.

ODD LOTS: Steel output rate this week dropped sharply to 90.6 percent, as a result of railroad strikes. Last week's rate was 100.1 percent . . . Construct contract awards in 37 eastern States set an all-time monthly record of $1,420,181,000 in July, F. W. Dodge Corp. reported . . . General Motors Corp. estimates the annual cost of its proposed pension plans for 400,000 employes at $67,790,000. The pension plans will be voted upon September 27, along with a two-for-one splitup of common stock . . . Automotive News reported yesterday that the "war rush for new automobiles is subsiding" although the market continues generally strong.

INSURANCE: Washington sales of ordinary life insurance in July totaled $11,606,000, a gain of 14 percent over the same 1949 month. The 7-month sales total of $76,583,000 was 5 percent ahead of the like period last year. Nationally, life insurance sales in July gained 25 percent and were up 11 percent for the 7 months. The figures were reported by the Life Insurance Agency Management Association of Hartford.

EARNINGS: National Airlines yesterday reported an operating profit of $52,000 for July, normally a slack month. This compared with a loss of $93,600 in the same 1949 month. Other earnings statements:

Trout Wins 7th Straight, Tigers Beat Browns, 7-1

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

WHAT'S THIS that's going on with the Redskins? They've just knocked over the San Francisco Forty-Niners, who just missed the All-America Conference title last season, and before that they slapped down the Los Angeles Rams who almost won the 1949 National Football League championship.

They're two-for-two, but the important feature is that after all these years in which the rise and fall of Sammy Baugh's passing arm dictated the fate of the Redskins, there is evidence they've finally come up with a running attack.

Povich

Sure enough, Baugh did pitch a couple for touchdowns in that 31-12 conquest of the Forty-Niners, and Eddie LeBaron flung another seven-pointer, but not in years have the Redskins gained 220 yards rushing against as stalwart a team as the Forty-Niners.

It could be a different kind of Redskin team that Herman Ball is bringing back to Washington, with Baugh relieved of the onus of winning or losing. And perhaps the fans will be relieved of the boresome Baugh strategy of one buck into the line, two passes by Baugh, and a fourth-down desperation play that usually ensues.

UNLESS GEORGE P. MARSHALL starts strategizing, which would be the dawn of a new error, and fires Coach Ball in midseason, it ought to be a more exciting season for Redskin fans. There were definite signs, when Ball took over last midseason, that he did not recognize Baugh's passing as the only weapon at the Redskins' command. Even when the Redskins were losing games under Ball, they were a more interesting team.

So far, it would seem that Ball has planned well. In the two draft sessions, he was hepped on the subject of acquiring some linemen who could make the Redskins' attack move, and they shook Bob Goode and Harry Dowda and George Thomas loose nicely in their first two exhibition games.

If you wanted to get hypercritical about the Redskins you could point out, of course, that they got inside the San Francisco 20-yard line four times in the first half without being able to push over a touchdown, but they won handily, as most games are won, by wearing 'em down in the second half. And in each case it was smart running with the ball that set up their three touchdown passes.

I DON'T MEAN to say the Redskins are going to win any championship, league or even division. They're mixing with too tough a crowd with such as the Eagles and Cleveland Browns in the Eastern group, but they could show Washington fans better football than last year.

The skeptics will remember, of course, that the Redskins knocked off the Rams by an even bigger margin in an exhibition game in 1949, only to come home to a dismal season in which they won only four of 12 league games, lost seven and tied one. The only clubs they licked were the Steelers, twice, the Yanks and the Packers. The Rams took 'em later, when the chips were down, 53 to 27.

But those two wins on the Coast were a shot-in-the-arm for Redskin season ticket sales. The front office reports that the ticket counter was "flooded" yesterday after the returns from the San Francisco triumph. If Ball never contributes anything else, he got the Redskins over a big hump by winning that one, at a time when season ticket buyers were somewhat apathetic compared to previous seasons.

I KNOW ALL about Baugh. The new guys on the Redskins I want to see play are Bill Dudley, and George Thomas, the kid from Oklahoma U. This Thomas is the most disarming guy you ever saw on a football field. The only thing flashy about him is the distances he goes with a football under his arm. I saw him make a shambles of North Carolina in the Sugar Bowl, and run away and hide from Boston U.'s good team last season.

Dowda and Goode are good, but if they throw any kind of a decent forward line in front of Thomas, he could steal the running show. Down at Oklahoma, Bud Wilkinson had him drifting both inside and outside behind that shuttle-cock T-formation of the Sooners. Thomas' speed and change of pace are deceptive. You wouldn't give a nickel for his running, on style, but it takes him places and it could take the Redskin places, as well.

Ball will doubtless make the most of Thomas, who is an old hand at the pitch-outs that have been added to the Redskin game. And if Thomas isn't in the same backfield with Dudley, that will be all right, too. Bullet Bill isn't the ball-carrier he used to be, but if he doesn't play a minute of offense for the Redskins he can still be a whale of a guy. On defense, I'd say he's one-two with Johnny Lujack, the best.

Althea Gibson First Negro To Play In U. S. Grass Court

Forest Hills, N. Y., Aug. 21 (AP).—The entry of Althea Gibson of New York was accepted today for the National tennis championships, making her the first Negro to play in the grass court fixture.

The tournament acceptance committee of the United States Lawn Tennis Association announced Miss Gibson as one of 52 women who will begin competition at the West Side Tennis Club next Monday.

Negroes have played in National clay court and indoor tournaments but never before in the grass court championships. Miss Gibson, 22, was runnerup to Nancy Chaffee of Ventura, Calif., this year in the National indoor tournament. She also won the Eastern indoor title and played in both the National clay court and Eastern grass court championships.

Miss Gibson is a Florida A. and M. student who is regarded as one of the most promising players in women's ranks.

Simmons Shuts Giants Out, 4-0, for 16th Victory

New York, Aug. 21 (AP).—Young Curt Simmons stopped the Giants cold with four hits today as the pace-setting Philadelphia Phillies whipped the New Yorkers, 4-0.

Thus the high-riding Phils maintained their fat 5½-game edge over Brooklyn's Dodgers who beat Pittsburgh, 3-2, in another afternoon tilt.

Simmons, in notching his sixteenth victory of the year, fanned five, walked two, and was in serious trouble only once.

With two out in the eighth, the Giants filled the bases on two singles and a walk. But the 21-year-old southpaw pulled out of the hole by getting Don Mueller on a roller.

The Phils backed up Simmons' classy pitching with a 10-hit attack against Larry Jansen, New York's top hurler.

Puddinghead Jones accounted for the first run in the fourth with his twenty-fifth homer of the year and Andy Seminick clouted his seventeenth home run in the seventh to start off a three-run splurge in that frame.

Dodgers Nip Bucs, 3-2, on Double Steal

Pittsburgh, Aug. 21 (AP).—The Brooklyn Dodgers pulled one of their 1949 championship tricks, the double steal, out of Barney Shotton's old hat to beat the Pittsburgh Pirates, 3-2, for their fourth consecutive triumph today.

Jim Russell, on the scoring end, and Duke Snider, surprised the Bucs with the winning play with Jackie Robinson at bat and two out in the fifth inning.

Don Newcombe, registering his thirteenth victory, went the route.

Threadgill Ties Thackara

First-seeded Jim Thackara had to come from behind in the third set to tie unseeded Robert Threadgill in a third round match called because of darkness in the District of Columbia tennis championships at the Woodmount Country Club yesterday.

Thackara took the first set, 6—3, but Threadgill rallied to take the second, 6—2, and a 3—1 lead in the third Thackara held on to tie the set, 6—6, as darkness closed in.

Chandler Makes Record Sale

$1,000,000 Video-Radio Series

CINCINNATI, Aug. 21 (AP).—Maj. league baseball and its Player Pension Fund will be enriched by almost a million dollars by the telecast and radio broadcast of the 1950 World Series.

Baseball Commissioner A. B. Chandler announced today that the Gillette Safety Razor Co. and the Mutual Broadcasting Co. had been granted exclusive radio and television right for the 1950 series. The television contract will bring baseball $800,000 and the radio broadcast will bring in an additional $175,000.

All of the money goes into the major league central fund. That corresponds to the sinking fund of any big business. The $175,000 from radio, however, always is earmarked toward payment of the premium on the Baseball Players' Pension Fund.

The difference between that and the approximately $200,000 of the premium is made up from the remainder of the central fund.

There was competition this year for the elevision rights. The Dumont network also offered a bid but under an argreement reached last year Gillette and Mutual were given the right to meet any competing bid. Gillette and Mutual had the rights in 1949 when the elevision rights went for $200,000 and the radio rights for $175,000.

The television outlets have not yet been selected except for New York, Chicago and Boston.

Today's agreement made radio broadcasts and telecasts the big business of World Series receipts. Unless one of the clubs with the bigger parks is a pennant winner, the receipts from telecasts and broadcasts may exceed the receipts from ticket sales.

Television first figured in the receipts back in 1947 when the rights were sold for $65,000. And in 1903 when the first World Series was held the total receipts were only around $50,000.

The sudden surge in the price for rights to telecast the World Series comes from the rapid rise in the sets available. Areas within the television station areas are loaded with receiving sets—in private homes, restaurants and taverns.

It has been estimated that there are five million television sets in the area served by the coaxial cable as compared with only 1,750,000 last year. That has been figured up as a minimum of 20 million watchers of the World Series—four persons to a set.

Aussies Win Doubles Play

Brookline, Mass., Aug. 21 (AP).—The United States Davis Cup Team's chances of making its fourth consecutive successful defense against the challenging Australians appeared endangered after Jack Bromwich and Frank Sedgman defeated Gardnar Mulloy of Miami, and Bill Talbert of New York, 7—5, 8—6, 3—6, 6—1, for the National Doubles tennis titles today at Longwood.

The Women's titles were won in easy fashion, for the ninth straight year, by Louise Brough of Beverly Hills, Calif., and Mrs. Margaret Osborne duPont of Wilmington, Del., 6—2, 6—2, from Doris Hart of Miami, and Shirley Fry of Akron, Ohio.

Deadheads Weeded Out

New Players Produce New Desire to Win in Redskins

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Los Angeles, Aug. 1.—The Mutual Admiration Society, Washington Redskins chapter, met for the second time in five days today.

The group assembled last Thursday to pat each other on the back following the Redskins' 17-14 upset of the Los Angeles Rams. Today the share-the-praise group convened to exchange compliments following yesterday's 31-12 success against the San Francisco 49ers.

Unless Charlie Trippi, Paul Christman & Co., spoil the fun, the next meeting will be held in Denver Sunday, a few hours after the Chicago Cardinals' game the night before.

Flushed by two straight victories—both in exhibition games, remember—in his first full year at the throttle, Coach Herman Ball was chockful of praise for his squad.

"We're winning for two reasons," the straight-shooting 40-year-old West Virginian said slowly, but to the point. "We're winning because we have some good football players. We're winning because we have the desire. We're full of fight.

"All of our players are not good players, but all our players want to play football. That helps. We think we've weeded out the deadheads."

Paul Lipscomb, the bearcat of a tackle, and Bill Dudley, who's enjoying his life with the Redskins and vice versa, were examples of what Ball means as "having the desire to play."

"I don't have to tell you about Dudley's ability," Herman continued. "And Lipscomb is the best thing that's happened to us in a long time. But they're great competitors in addition to being great players. They make the others hustle. That's the only way they know how to play it."

'To Billy, From Joe DiMaggio'

Little Billy Paxton Buried With His Hero's Autograph

There weren't many years of little Billy Paxton's life. Only 7. Billy was killed last Friday when he walked into the path of an automobile near his home in Arlington, at 2521 Lee hwy.

In its grief, Billy's family remembered his hero-worship of DiMaggio. An uncle sought out Arch McDonald, WTOP sportscaster, told him the story of little Billy. Could McDonald, somehow, and quickly, obtain a ball autographed by DiMaggio?

"Sure," promised McDonald. He could, and did. All it took was a phone call to his friend DiMag at the Yankees' Philadelphia hotel Friday at midnight.

The next day McDonald turned over to Billy's parents the ball, rushed to Washington under escort by Pennsylvania Railroad officials.

"To Billy, from Joe DiMaggio," the ball read, simply. Billy was buried yesterday in Oakwood Cemetery, Falls Church, Va., with his prized autograph near at hand.

Stranahan, Coe Advance In Amateur

Minneapolis, Aug. 21 (AP).—Charles Coe, defending champion, and Frank Stranahan, annual threat, moved into the second round of the golden anniversary National Amateur golf tourney today with a display of shots that brought misery to most of their rivals.

Coe, the Oklahoma City man without muscles, stormed through his first opponent, Thomas Jamison of Greensburg, Pa., 5 and 4, with precision golf that bettered the 35-36 par of the 6655-yard Minneapolis Golf Club course.

Stranahan, Ohio millionaire who has almost as many muscles as he has dollars, measured Arnold Palmer of Latrobe, Pa., 5 and 3, in a match that lured most of the gallery.

These two, playing in opposite brackets and co-favorites for the championship that will be decided Saturday, were joined in the second round by such heroes of the past, present and future as Ted Bishop of Weston, Mass.; Dick Chapman of Pinehurst, N. C.; Gene Littler of Seattle; Fred Wampler of Indianapolis, and Jim McHale of Bethlehem, Pa.

Karl Kellerman of Columbia Country Club, Washington, D. C., drew a first-round bye and plays John H. Selby of New Orleans, tomorrow.

Knocked out after one day of trying to replace Coe as the champion were William (Dynamite) Goodloe of Valdosta, Ga.; Chick Evans, winner of the title in 1916 and 1920 and now 60 years old; Mason Rudolph, junior champion; Stanley Bielat of Yonkers, public links king, and Ray Billows of Poughkeepsie, N. ., three times a runner-up.

McHale, a Walker Cup buddy of both Stranahan and Coe, eliminated Mike Gallagher of Augusta, Ga., 5 and 4, and becomes Stranahan's opponent tomorrow in the highlight of the 64-match program.

Bethesda Junior Golfers Leading Interclub Play

Bethesda Country Club's golfers won a convincing victory yesterday at Columbia in the first half of the annual inter-club junior tournament. Bethesda's total of 296 was 27 strokes lower than second place Kenwood.

Dennis Bolster's 33-37—70 matched par and was low score. Billy Wolfe with 71, Bob Wolfe with 73, and Rickey Wolfe with 82, teamed up with Bolster for the triumph.

Nancy Course Loses Match

Philadelphia, Aug. 21 (AP).—Top-seeded Maureen Connolly opened defense of her United States girls tennis title today with a 6—4, 6—2 victory over Nancy Course of Chevy Chase, Md. The 15-year-old San Diego, Calif., champion scored her win in a second round match.

Ruth Anne Peterson, Alexandria, Va., was defeated by Suzanne Herr, Miami Beach, Fla., 6—3, 6—3. Judy Devlin, Baltimore, defeated Mary Ellen Weigle, Grand Rapids, Mich., 6—3, 12—10.

Mary Slaughter, Charlottesville, Va., defeated Patricia Connors, Maplewood, N. J., 4—6, 6—1, 6—2.

Hoot Evers, Vic Wertz Each Clout 3-Run Homer

Detroit, Aug. 21 (AP).—Detroit Tiger Paul (Dizzy) Trout continued his amazing comeback today as he posted his seventh straight decision, a neat four-hit 7-1 verdict over the St. Louis Browns.

The big righthander's performance boosted Detroit's American League lead to 3½ games over the second-place New York Yankees who were idle today.

Vic Wertz and Hoot Evers each gave Trout a big helping hand with a three-run homer. Wertz got his twenty-fifth of the year off righthander Al Widmar in the first inning after Don Kolloway and George Kell had singled.

Trout fanned seven Brownies while notching his eleventh win as against two losses—the best pitching record in the American League. He struck out the side in the fifth and ended the game on a triumphant note by getting pinch-hitter Hank Arft to go down swinging for the final out.

Bearden Tries To Get Even With Indians

Gene Bearden, impelled by the revenge motif, will take his knuckleball to the mound for the Nats tonight against the Cleveland Indians, the team that cast him off.

The Indians are spearheading the Western clubs' invasion of Griffith Stadium, and at this point they want no trouble from former mate Bearden or the Nats. Their mood is somewhat ugly after a double-header defeat the other day by the White Sox which nudged them out of second place.

They'll throw Bob Feller at Bearden and the Nats. Feller isn't having one of his good years, as his 11-8 record testifies, and some of the smoke has filtered from his fast ball, but the Nats have never ceased respecting him.

Bearden asked Bucky Harris for tonight's pitching job. His venom is not directed especially against the Cleveland players, but he freely admits a peeve against Manager Lou Boudreau and General Manager Hank Greenberg who shuffled him off to the Nats and out of a cut of a possible World Series check.

However, Bearden didn't have to ask for a pitching assignment against the Indians. The fact that he is left-handed would have made him Harris' choice, anyway. The Nats' manager views Larry Doby and Luke Easter as the chief menaces in the Cleveland batting order, and hopes to stop 'em with left-handed pitching.

Justice Black Loses, 6-1, 6-4

Pete Pressinger, 15-year-old winner of the junior singles title Sunday, yesterday defeated Supreme Court Justice Hugo Black, 6—1, 6—4, in the second round of the men's singles in the Army-Navy Club tennis tournament.

Beau-Beau Wins by Disqualification at Bel Air, Four Flares, 2d

Bill Bennings . . .

AT BEL AIR

DEAR FOLKS:

Isn't the Baltimore trotting track angling to run a week when there will be no flat racing between the Marlboro and Bowie meetings? What's this I hear about a Philadelphia outfit bidding for the Laurel (flat) track? Hugh (Mickey) McGuire, former Maryland press boxer, was a visitor, coming up from his home in Kentucky. The Fox Catcher National Cup Steeplechase will be staged at Fair Hill, Md., on September 9. Six races on the program. Work is progressing on the new grandstand at Hagerstown. Frank Cronan is back at work beating the publicity guns for Marlboro and Bowie. I'm told that Sunshine Park will not operate next winter.—BILL.

Favorite Players Get Big Break

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Bel Air, Md., Aug. 21.—Favorite players profited by the first disqualification of the meeting. Mrs. Jack Goodwin's Beau-Beau, beaten a half length, in the fourth race was declared the winner after L. Madonna's Four Flares, the first horse home was placed in second position in the revised finish. Mrs. Leona M. Carver's Chal-Glass was third in the field of 10.

Jockey J. R. Hill, who rode Beau-Beau, registered the objection against Colin Shaw, up on Four Flares, after the son of Flares swerved in the midstretch, interfering not only with Beau-Beau but also with Chal-Glass.

Backers of Beau-Beau in the crowd of 5000 collected at the rate of $5.60 for each $2 investment. The winning time for the seven furlongs was 1:33 3/5. Although the program was conducted under cloudless skies, the track was slow as the result of a heavy downpour Saturday night.

Andy Russo, leading apprentice at the meeting, added another feature victory to his string when he won the fifth event, the Churchville, with Mrs. J. B. Hatfield's Mi Scandal, a $5.40 favorite. The son of Court Scandal galloped home six lengths in front of J. McDonald's Navegador with Mrs. Ella Bailey's Miss Pidgeon third in the field of seven.

Mi Scandal had run 12 times this year without visiting the winner's circle. His time was 1:25 4-5 for the 6 1/2 furlongs.

On The Wing set the early pace but Mi Scandal swept into command at the far turn and then drew out to win with some speed in reserve.

Tennis Opens Main Tent at Forest Hills

By Red Smith

NEW YORK, Aug. 21 (NYHT). This is the week when the merry mendicants of amateur tennis drop off the rods of the Long Island Railroad in Forest Hills and begin 10 days of strife on the unbloody battlefield of the West Side Tennis Club.

Red Smith

Starting Friday afternoon when delegates from Australia challenge America's right to possession of the Davis Cup and continuing through the National Singles Championships next week, the business of batting a soft rubber ball across a fishnet will be regarded as an undertaking of international inter continental and interhemispheric, if not interplanetary, significance.

At least, that's how some authorities regard the struggle for the big silver birdbath which Dwight F. Davis put into competition 50 years ago. A somewhat cooler view is expressed by a gilded sign hanging in the marquee at Forest Hills, which argues that there isn't a bloomin' bit of difference between winning and losing.

"If you can meet with triumph and disaster," declares the sign, borrowing liberally from Mr. Kipling, "and treat those two impostors just the same—"

IT IS, nevertheless, a serious business to the young men who get out there on the lawn and do battle in their drawers. For them it is a livelihood. And it is a fairly grim affair for the team captains, who are currently clawing at their haircuts and beating their brows in a strategical paroxysm.

Between now and Thursday, Harry Hopman, of Australia, and Alrich H. Mann, jr., of the United States, must decide on the personnel of the teams for four singles and one doubles match. The man who guesses wrong will hear about it. The one who gueses right may not be warmly acclaimed by the players he discards.

To consider Mr. Mann's problem first, the chances are he can begin by conceding the doubles match to Australia and endeavor to offset that by selecting singles players to win at least three of those contests. To accomplish this, he must almost surely start with Ted Schroeder as his number one boy.

Schroeder has been America's big guy in this sort of competition since the Davis Cup matches were resumed after the war. Nobody ever has beaten him in a challenge round. Last year he and Pancho Gonzales won all four singles matches.

SINCE THEN, however, Gonzales has elected to play for a $60,000 guarantee as a professional, preferring security to the greater but less certain rewards of amateur tennis. With no Gonzales to back him up, Mr. Mann, must consider that Schroeder is 30 years old and has played relatively little tennis.

Still, with only 10 days of practice Ted was good enough to polish off most of the best players in Newport recently, so it seems sensible to go with him as top guy in the challenge round.

Even though they lost to Australia last year, Gardnar Mulloy and Bill Talbert rank as America's best bet in the doubles. It would be considered a risky business to break up this veteran team. That leaves Mann with the problem of selecting a second singles player.

Tom Brown has not been the most consistent player in the world, but at his best he can be sensational. Among the younger players he is best equipped to come up with the "big game," and on that ground he seems a logical favorite to be chosen.

Printz's Hit In Ninth Wins 8-7 Struggle

Odie Printz hit a game-winning single in the last of the ninth, giving the Heurich Brewers an 8-7 victory over the Cameo Furniture team yesterday on the Ellipse.

The victory gave Heurich the second-half and full-season championship of The Washington Post Industrial League. The Brewers also took the first-half title.

Ray Thomas Shoots 73, Takes Lead in East Potomac Event

District Negro Amateur Golf Champion Ray Thomas led first day qualifiers in the United Golf Association's National Championships at East Potomac public golf course yesterday. Thomas had a one-over-par 73.

Heath Bland of New York City and Eral Clark of Los Angeles tied for second with 75s. Jacques Isler of New York City was fourth with 76.

Isler came up with a hole-in-one, a 225-yarder, on the eighth. He used a four wood.

Four other Washingtonians were among the first nine. Brainard Bellfield and James Precia tied for fifth with 77s, and Henry Miller and Dr. Ken Brown tied for eighth with 79s. All are from the Royal Golf Club.

Qualifying for amateurs continues today. Competition in four other divisions, professional, women's, juniors, and seniors begins today.

Bolster, Wolfe In Junior Golf

Sixty-eight youngsters will tee off at Indian Spring Country Club for the 18 hole medal play event.

Bolster, just returned from the Junior Chamber of Commerce tourney at Ames, Iowa, where he reached the quarter-finals, is favored to retain his title. His specialty is medal play whereas Wolfe does better at match play.

Kay Fletcher, District junior champion, and Paul McMahon, Maryland junior champion, are other formidable challengers.

First of the Fine Cars in Value

It's a very satisfying feeling

YES, it's good to slip into a truly fine automobile and sense its richness, its comfort, its room.

And there's a great thrill in touching off the waiting power of a great-hearted straight-eight and feeling its swift response at any speed.

It's fun to count the quick, admiring glances thrown your way,

It's nice to have a car that parks easily, for all its inches. It's very pleasant to do away with gearshifting and clutch-pedal pushing, and know in its stead the utter smoothness of Dynaflow Drive's silken transmission of power.

And still that doesn't probe the depths of a ROADMASTER owner's secret satisfaction.

For while he knows he has a fine car, by its look, its feel, its appointments—

While he has performance at his command that needs play second fiddle to no other on the road—

While he enjoys a very special measure of creature comfort in the quite matchless gentleness of ROADMASTER'S ever-level ride—

He knows too that he has made an exceptionally wise investment.

He has spent his money for the things that make a fine car fine—and nothing simply for show.

He has paid the lowest price per pound in the fine-car field—he has the very satisfying feeling of knowing his dollars have given him solid merit, and solid merit alone.

We'd like to have you try ROADMASTER in honest comparison with the highest-priced cars to be found. We'd like to have you try to match it for room, for comfort, for finish, for handling ease and for ability on the road.

Then check the prices—and see if your own sense of value doesn't advise signing up right now with your Buick dealer for a Buick ROADMASTER.

The Federal Diary by Jerry Kluttz

Independent Agencies Are Placing Roles In Mobilization Work

The independent agencies are making a bid for defense jobs. For example:

The Interstate Commerce Commission will be the boss over rail and truck transportation in an order to be issued by the President after the control bill becomes law. ICC will get the job given to the Office of Defense Transportation during World War II. However, several agencies are reported to be unhappy over ICC's mobilization plans.

The Federal Trade Commission is making studies on possible price controls. It could be given a major role in a price control agency, if one is set up. The commission has many old records of the Office of Price Administration.

The Federal Communications Commission is angling for the job of handling communications such as the War Communications Board during World War II.

The Reconstruction Finance Corporation will finance new war plants, industries, and supplies. In fact, the agency is rejecting most loans not related to defense production.

Civil Service has the task of recruiting tens of thousands of new workers and of examining them for loyalty, character, qualifications, etc.

Securities & Exchange Commission has offered to place part of its staff on war work.General Services Administration will purchase millions of dollars worth of strategic and critical materials, and the Federal Power Commission hopes to have something to say about the mobilization of private power. And so it goes.

FHA: Farmers Home Administration is seeking 25 million dollars in loan funds and $1,500,000 additional for administration. It could take on several hundred additional employes if it gets the money. The agency says it needs the money to make loans to farmers growing out of disasters such as floods, droughts, etc.

NSF: The President soon will make appointments to a new Federal agency, the National Science Foundation. Congress has been asked to supply $475,000 to operate the agency for the remainder of tis fiscal year. The agency will have only 50 employes by January 1, and 100 by next June 30.

IT PAYS TO YAWN: An Australian court has ruled that an employe who yawns at work and dislocates his jaw is entitled to unemployment compensation until he recovers.

JOBS: At Aberdeen Proving Ground, Md., the Army's Ordinance Department has openings for: machinists, auto engineers, mathematicians, general medical officers, fire control training instructors, physicists and aerodynamicists. You can get full details on the openings by either applying in person or writing to: B. Middelton, chief, civilian personnel at Aberdeen.

At Walter Reed Hospital there are openings for Grade 3 stenographers, and carpenters, plumbers, steamfitters, engineering draftsman, and information specialist (writer). Apply at the hospital's civilian personnel office.

ELECTION: Charles L. Ashcraft has been elected president of the independent and influential National Rural Letters Carriers Association. Bun Raley of Texas, is vice president; Kenneth Taylor, secretary, and B. W. Playfoot, treasurer. Ashcraft succeeds Willard Manning who will leave here soon to resume his rural route in Florida.

At the union's Spokane convention, a resolution was adopted expressing confidence in Postmaster General Donaldson and supporting his fight for a postal rate boost. Optional retirement at 55 after 30 years' service also was advocated.

CIVIL SERVICE NOTES: More than 172 million dollars was paid to 172,200 retired Civil Service personnel during the past year . . . Women hold 44 percent of the Federal jobs in the executive branch here. The latest count: 118,850 men, and 94,900 women . . . But 23 of the 57 executive agencies have more women than men . . . The patent examiner test will be closed on August 29 . . . A total of 113 persons were given eligible ratings on the recent biologist test for jobs that pay from $4600 to $6400.

Area Youth Is Killed in W. Virginia Car Accident

Robert Clark, 16, Of Alexandria Is Victim When Auto Fails to Make Turn

An Alexandria (Va.) youth was killed in West Virginia yesterday when the car in which he was riding failed to negotiate a turn.

The accident took place on U.S. Route 50, seven miles from New Creek, W. Va.

West Virginia State Police said Clark was in a car driven by Merle Petit, 18, of Fairmont, W. Va. Petit suffered a brain concussion and other injuries.

A State police corporal said the car was traveling at high speed when it reached the curve. Young Clark, who was believed to have been sleeping in the back seat, was thrown out. His neck was broken.

Truck Driver Injured

In the District, the driver of a truck was injured at 1:10 p. m. yesterday when the vehicle overturned after collision with a taxicab at 17th and E sts. nw.

At Emergency Hospital with cuts and bruises was Maurice Kay, 49, of 2134 G st. nw.

Both he and the cab driver, Hubert B. Hall, 29, of 1900 F st. nw., claim they had the green traffic signal. Police said a corporation counsel's hearing will be held.

Two youngsters were more frightened than injured when they ran into the path of a taxi in the 1300 block of 12th st. nw., at 10:15 a. m. yesterday, police said.

They were Carrie Davis, 7, and Sadie Brown, 6, both of 1335 12th st. nw. They were treated for shock at Freedmen's Hospital.

Police said the taxi was driven by Eugene P. Robinson, 31, of 434 Randolph st. nw. There were no charges.

Five men were injured in a crash of two autos early today at 60th ave. and Riverdale rd., Riverdale, Md. All were treated for severe cuts at Prince Georges County Hospital.

Police said the autos crashed when Turner W. Kilby, 36, of 3814 Oliver st., Hyattsville, tried to make a turn into Riverdale rd. Kilby and the driver of the other auto, Lee F. Lanham, jr., 18, of 6307 59th ave., Riverdale, will be charged with reckless driving by colliding, police said.

Three injured passengers in Lanham's auto were Jack Giove, 22, of Berwyn, Richard Boyd, 18, and Joseph F. Belange, 19, both of Riverdale.

An inquest has been scheduled for 11:30 a. m. today into the traffic death of Mrs. Ruth Huntley, 29, of 1519 O st. nw. She was injured fatally and a companion was injured slightly late Friday at 8th st. and Pennsylvania ave. nw., when they were struck by a car driven by Maj. Gen. Roger M. Ramey, 44-year-old Air Force director of operations, police said

County Fair Opens Today at Gaithersburg

More than 800 livestock exhibits—plus show facilities double those of last year—will be ready for the opening of the second Montgomery County Fair today at the Agricultural Center, Gaithersburg, Md.

According to R. N. Whipp, secretary of the Cooperative Agricultural Center, Inc., which runs the fair, new facilities this year will include:

Four new cattle barns, two new swine barns, one new horse barn, a 112-by-60-foot field house with a complete 40-by-16-foot kitchen and toilet facilities attached, a permanent fair headquarters building, and a stadium seating 2000 people.

Today, fair grounds open at 8 a. m. Household and girls' club exhibits will be judged beginning at 1 p. m. In the evening, a baseball game between Burtonsville and Damascus will be played under lights starting at 8:30 p. m.

New Span to Honor Korean War Victim

The newly constructed bridge over the B. & O. Railroad tracks in Rockville will be dedicated to the memory of Corpl. John C. Brown of Baltimore, the first Marylander to lose his life in the Korean war.

Dedication ceremonies will take place at 3 p. m. Saturday. Present will be Dr. John M. Chang, South Korean Ambassador to the United States. Ceremonies will include unveiling of a dedicatory plaque and presentation of the Purple Heart medal to Corporal Brown's next of kin.

Some New Zoology for Dr. Mann

THE Zoo yesterday acquired some nice new rats, lizards and snakes. Despite the lowly status of his new charges, Dr. William Mann was especially delighted with—

RATS—Not ordinary rats, of course, but giant-crested spring rats such as the Zoo had never seen before. They hail from East Africa

LIZARD—From another part of Africa—South Africa, suh—came this monitor lizard, which has taken over a big glass cage in the Reptile House

AND COBRA—Also in the Reptile House is this small cobra, from Africa, too. Here's one of the pair of new arrivals coiled up and taking a real interest in things

Navy Veteran Dies of Polio, Third Area Victim This Year

The Washington area's third polio death of the year, which occurred over the weekend, marked its first adult victim.

He was Warren William Dewey, 29, of 2517 Plyer's Mill rd., Silver Spring, who died Sunday at Bethesda Naval Hospital of bulbar polio.

Dewey became ill Sunday, August 13. He was taken to Suburban Hospital Tuesday. His illness was diagnosed as polio Friday. He was transferred to the hospital Saturday. He died at 4 a. m. Sunday.

On Saturday before he became ill, Dewey's family said, he had been feeling tired, stiff and nervous.

Previous area victims this year were two children, 7 and 5 years old. Both died at Children's Hospital in July.

Eight new polio cases were reported in the area over the weekend—two each in the District, Montgomery County, Prince Georges County and nearby Virginia.

The District's total of polio cases this year reached 78, compared with 34 this time last year.

Dewey was Washington sales representative for the Heil Co., a Milwaukee, Wis., heavy-machinery firm. He had lived here three years.

He served with the Navy Supply Corps in the Pacific, reaching the rank of lieutenant (j. g.).

Born in Kohler, Wis., Dewey was graduated from the University of Wisconsin.

Services will be at 2:30 p. m. today at the Chambers funeral home, 1400 Chapin st. nw. Burial will be in Sheboygan.

Austrian Newsmen Begin D. C. Visit As Post's Guests

Ten Austrian journalists yesterday began a week-long tour of Washington as guests of The Washington Post.

The journalists, who have been in the United States since the first of June, were the guests of the newspaper at a luncheon yesterday at the Hotel Raleigh, where Managing Editor James Russell Wiggins was host. In the afternoon they toured the new Washington Post Building, now under construction, and attended a news conference at the paper.

Today the journalists will visit the Library of Congress, Folger Shakespearean Library, National Gallery of Art and Corcoran Gallery of Art.

The Austrians' visit to the United States was made possible by the Rockefeller Foundation and sponsored by the University of Missouri School of Journalism. The journalists, chosen by an Austro-American committee, are accompanied by Dr. Ellsworth Chunn, associate professor of journalism at Missouri.

Pen Women's President To Have Farewell Party

A farewell party for Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley, president of the Chevy Chase branch of the National League of American Pen Women, will be given by the organization Friday at 8 p. m. in the Chapel of the Methodist Building, 100 Maryland ave. ne.

Mrs. Wiley, of 2345 Ashmead pl. nw., leaves Monday on a "world cooperation trip" through nine European countries. With 34 other members of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, she will visit American women's clubs in Europe.

Poison Ivy

2 Get rid of the itch-producing plants of poison ivy.

Spray with a salt solution. Three pounds of salt to a gallon of slightly soapy water usually does the trick, but it may take three applications. If you pull out or cut out the vines, avoid direct contact, clean tools afterward, and wash gloves and other contact clothing tho oughly.

1500 Seek Police, Fire Appointments

Some 1500 candidates took Civil Service examinations yesterday for the District police and fire departments.

What made departmental officials happy, they said, was that some 900 of the candidates are Washington residents. The police department, in particular, prefers local rookies to out-of-towners since Washingtonians know their city best.

In Washington, the examination was given at Temporary Building "D," 6th st. and Independence ave. sw. But examinations for the D. C. jobs were also given in New York, New Jersey, Maryland, Pennsylvania, Virginia, West Virginia, North Carolina and Delaware.

The police department will have an estimated 300 openings as the result of the 5-day week bill signed into law last week by President Truman. The positions will not be filled until Congress has passed a $645,456 deficiency appropriation bill to hire and equip the 300 new rookies.

Police believe the 5-day week attracted yesterday's large, but not record, number of applicants.

As of August 31, there will be 62 vacancies in the police department. Thirty are provided under the current budget; the others will be the result of retirements in the department.

Most of these posts will be filled from a Civil Service list drawn from an examination given July 5. A new class of rookies—40 to 50 men—is expected to get under way September 1.

The fire department has only six vacancies to be filled, officials announced.

Q St. Closing Recommended

Closing of Q st., from 13th st. to Pennsylvania ave. se., and transfer of the area for playground use was recommended yesterday to the Board of Education by its Committee on Building, Grounds and Equipment.

Mrs. Elviria J. Magdeburger, acting committee chairman, said proposed construction of the Randle Highlands School annex will take away the school's present playground.

"The play area," she said, "will be forced into the space between the school and Pennsylvania ave. Part of this area is made up of Q st., between 13th and Pennsylvania ave. se., which while not cut through, has been officially dedicated as a street."

Hobart M. Corning, superintendent of schools, said the committee's recommendation will stand whether or not the school addition is approved by the Commissioners.

A closed session which Superintendent Corning said dealt with bids and site locations preceded the open meeting in the Board of Education office, 13th and K sts. nw.

In addition to Mrs. Magdeburger and Corning, the meeting was attended by C. Melvin Sharpe, president of the board. Absent were Committee Chairman Mrs. Lenore W. Smith and Dr. Phillip T. Johnson.

Benefit Tonight

A benefit party for the Prince Georges Cerebral Palsy Association will be held at 8:30 tonight at Odd Fellows Hall, 102 61st st., Capitol Heights, Md.

Youth Canteen In Hyattsville Called Rowdy

Complaining of sleep-disrupting whoop-de-doos in the vicinity of the Hyattsville Teen-age Canteen, a group of residents last night demanded immediate removal of the canteen.

The canteen operates Saturday nights only in the auditorium of the Olive Street School in the 5300 block of 43d ave., Hyattsville.

Shenanigans alleged before a meeting of the Town Council included noise-making, drinking, profanity, abuse of citizens and unspecified misconduct of an amorous nature.

The 11 citizens who asked the council to shut up or remove the canteen all live in the vicinity of the school.

Vehement Exchanges

Most of them were present at the meeting as well as supervisors and about 30 teen-age frequenters of the canteen. Acting Mayor W. Wilson Spicknall's gavel was kept active during the vehement exchanges between opposing parties.

Dr. J. W. Waldman, of 5306 43d ave., one of the petitioners, blamed it all on the lack of light. He praised the operation of the canteen but insisted that it was impossible to supervise the goings-on in the dark street outside.

Mrs. Bertha Hislop of 5310 43d ave. said her Saturday night guests once were afraid to leave her home because of the rowdies in the street.

Misconduct on Church Steps

Several persons complained that their lawns had to be policed regularly every Sunday morning for whisky and beer bottles. One woman reported seeing a couple committing "misconduct" on the steps of a nearby church. All complained of loss of sleep.

Major Ralph Brown, Prince Georges County police chief, who is also president of the canteen, replied that the canteen locks up at midnight, that drinkers are taboo and that "smooching" is forbidden inside the canteen and in autos parked nearby.

"The only reason some of these folks are complaining is that they have forgotten that they were once teen-agers themselves," Brown said. "There's no difference between teen-agers now and when I was a kid except there's more of them."

Parents Accused

Other defenders of canteen conduct accused Hyattsville parents of disinterest in the canteen and in the recreational needs of their children. Representatives of the teen-agers themselves were all for continued operation.

Mayor Spicknall referred the problem to the council's police committee, consisting of Thomas E. Arnold, chairman; Harry A. Styne, Hiram L. Lawrence and Frederick W. Coxen. The mayor ordered that a report be submitted to the next council meeting, September 5.

Hunting Season to Open

In preparation for the Maryland squirrel hunting season which opens September 15, hunting licenses may be obtained at the County Service Building, Hyattsville, Md., from 8:30 a. m. to 5 p. m. Monday through Friday. Beginning Saturday, September 9, the office also will be open from 9 a. m. to noon on Saturdays.

Shimon Called For 2d Quiz in Wire-Tap Probe

Senate Unit Seeks More Information; Brewster May Get Offer to Testify

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

Lieut. Joseph W. Shimon of the Metropolitan Police is to appear at 11 a. m. today for his second closed-door quizzing by the Senate District Committee investigating wire tapping.

Committee Chairman Claude Pepper (D., Fla.) said the committee will seek further information bearing on "gross discrepancies" between testimony given last week by Shimon and prior testimony by other witnesses.

Biggest conflict concerns the reason the telephones of Howard Hughes, millionaire manufacturer, were tapped here in 1947 when Hughes' war-time plane contracts were being investigated by a Senate committee headed by Senator Owen Brewster (R., Me.).

Shimon, according to Pepper, has told the committee the wire tapping was done to help check on Abner "Chick" Lappin, the man who allegedly had been "shadowing" Senator Brewster. This trail was described as leading to the Hughes' suites in the Carlton and Mayflower hotels, but Shimon disclaimed any interest in the 1947 Senate plane probe.

Official Assignment

Police, who testified they helped Shimon in wire tapping, emphasized their belief, based on what they said the lieutenant told them, that theirs was an official confidential assignment for the Senate committee.

Pepper said last night the committee may also decide today whether to invite Senator Brewster and Brewster's administrative assistant, Mrs. Frances Dustin, to testify about the money Brewster said he paid Shimon for expenses of following Lappin. Lappin is reported in Mexico City.

Pepper said the committee may arrange a public hearing later this week to hear United States Attorney George Morris Fay testify. Fay was a witness in an earlier closed hearing.

Missing Witness Needed

Pepper also told reporters he has concluded Henry Grunewald may be needed as a "very material witness." He said the committee has not asked FBI assistance in finding Grunewald.

Grunewald, described as a former FBI man, was pictured in Shimon's testimony as a close friend socially of the lieutenant, Pepper said, and in other testimony as Shimon's intermediary with the Senate committee in 1947. Grunewald has an apartment at the Westchester and an office at the Washington Hotel, but is reported to be out of town.

In another move, the Pepper group instructed its legal staff to check with Miami police about a Cuban sugar swindler and also to see what Shimon's files at Fay's office might show.

Pepper said Shimon told the committee he was seeking the Cuban swindler as a fugitive for the Miami police when he tapped a telephone at the Occidental Hotel in 1947.

Shimon was withdrawn from his assignment as investigator for Fay when his police superiors began investigating the wire-tapping charges a year ago, and since then has been on precinct duty.

Vandenberg Progresses But Stays in Hospital

Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.) is making good progress but will remain in Georgetown University Hospital a little longer, an aide reported yesterday.

The Senator entered the hospital August 12 for a checkup. He has had two major operations in the past year.

The aide said Vandenberg is resting comfortably but his physicians decided he could have a more undisturbed convalescence by staying at the hospital a few more days.

Camp Fire Girls Give Patients Doll Houses

Five doll houses will be presented Children's Hospital patients by 10 Camp Fire Girls representing the Fairfax County Community Chest on Wednesday at 3 p. m.

The gifts were made from cardboard by the girls as part of their work as "All-Year-Round Blue Birds." The girls will be accompanied by their leader, Mrs. Leigh Hunt of Falls Church.

Kitchen Gunplay

Woman Held On Charge Of Shooting

Municipal Court Judge George D. Neilson held Mrs. Laura M. Sutherland, 48, of 1640 11th st. nw., for trial September 12 on a charge of shooting a man in the kitchen of his home yesterday morning.

The man, George H. Barnes, 53, of 1263 Irving st. nw., was treated at Freedmen's Hospital for a gunshot wound in the left side.

Oliver Barnes, brother of the wounded man, said Mrs. Sutherland, Barnes and he ate breakfast together at the Irving st. address. He said while he was in another part of the house he heard a shot. Returning to the kitchen, police quoted him as saying, he found his brother and the woman grappling.

Bond of $1000 was set against Mrs. Sutherland on a charge of assault with a dangerous weapon. Police said they had no explanation of the shooting.

New Students Must Present Birth Papers

District Health Officer Daniel L. Seckinger yesterday reminded parents that children registering for school this fall for the first time must present birth certificates and evidence of vaccination.

For parents who do not have their children's birth certificates, Seckinger has this advice:

1. If the child was born in the District, buy a copy of the certificate for 50 cents in Room 1028 of the Municipal Center, 300 Indiana ave. nw.

2. If the child was born in another state, write to that state's health department.

For evidence that a child has been vaccinated against smallpox a physician's certificate should be presented if possible, Seckinger said. But a well-marked scar will do.

The District's public schools open September 11. New students will be registered at the schools they will attend during the previous week and up to opening day, school officials said.

House Passes Parkway Bill

The House yesterday approved and sent to the Senate a bill aimed at Federal acquisition of the land needed for a parkway along the old Chesapeake and Ohio Canal from Washington to Cumberland, Md.

The bill is sponsored by Representative J. Glenn Beall (R., Md.). It authorizes the Government to accept donations of land to complete the right-of-way.

The Interior Department, in recommending the bill, said it is a well-established policy for the State through which the parkway is to run to buy the necessary private land and donate it to the Federal Government.

The House also approved and sent to the Senate bills to let the National Grange erect a marker in honor of its founding near 4th and Madison sts. nw.; and to permit placing a memorial plaque for the famous American songwriter, Stephen Foster, in the District at a spot to be approved by the Fine Arts Commission.

Girl, 8, Burned Seriously Playing With Lighted Candles

Little Francine Herndon learned painfully yesterday that watching the wax drip from lighted candles can be dangerous sport.

The 8-year-old girl, who lives at 1329 Corcoran st. nw., and three other neighborhood youngsters had purchased candles and were watching them burn in the rear of 1330 Corcoran st. nw. about 11:45 a. m.

But Francine leaned too close to the flames, neighbors said, and her dress ignited. Before aid reached her, she suffered second and third degree burns.

A passing motorist, Robert Duncan, 25, of 1831 19th st. nw., took the child to Emergency Hospital. She was transferred to Children's Hospital, where last night she was reported in serious condition.

Second Precinct police and Rescue Squad No. 1, responding to a call for a child "on fire" at 1330 Corcoran, found she had already been removed.

2 Indicted on Charge Of Sending Lewd Art

Two men were indicted yesterday on charges of sending obscene photographs across State lines.

They are Jack A. Wade, 22, of 3121 Mt. Pleasant st. nw., a Catholic University engineering student, and Robert N. H. Catlow, 33, of 1336 Missouri ave. nw., who at the time of the investigation was director of radio broadcasting at Walter Reed Hospital's station WRTG.

According to authorities, Wade advertised in a photo magazine that he could send pictures of posed female models and mailed photographs of "such indecent character as to render them unfit to be further described," according to the indictment.

Catlow, according to the charges, mailed advertisements concerning photographs of partially clad men. These pictures, sent via Railway Express, also proved to be indecent, according to the indictment.

John A. Griffin, Jr., 29, of 226 10th st. se., and Harold L. Green, 26, of 2231 Ontario rd. nw., were charged with making false statements to the Veterans Administration to get subsistence checks for Griffin.

In addition, Griffin is charged with fraudulently cashing more than $180 in the subsistence checks.

Clarence Schall, 30, of 910 8th st. se., and George Smith, 38 of 1122 G st. se., were charged with illegal gambling in racehorse bets and a numbers lottery.

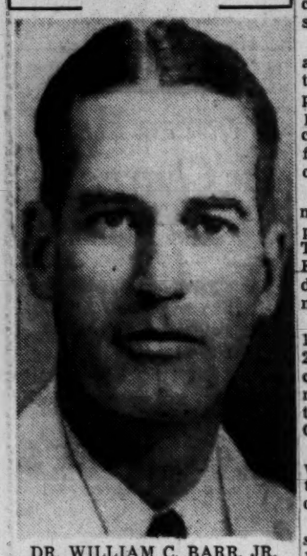
Charged with morals offenses against children were Robert C. Lightner, 33, of 1724 Willard st. nw.; Walter E. King, 47, of 412 Shepherd st. nw.; Joseph A. Miller, 38, of Rosemont, Md., and James R. Warren, 42, of 2220 Hall pl. nw.

Mrs. Isabel M. Lebling, 49, formerly socially prominent here, was charged with forging and cashing two $50 checks. She no longer has a fixed address, according to the charges.

Roy J. Irby, 29, of 636 E st. sw., was charged with lifting more than $1290 from parked cars near the East Potomac Golf Course in the past two months.

D. C. Doctor Dies

Effort to Save Victim of Tetanus Fails



DR. WILLIAM C. BARR, JR.
. . . Doctors fail to save his life

The battle of a group of doctors to save the life of a fellow doctor infected with tetanus ended in failure Saturday with the death of Dr. William Carlisle Barr, jr.

The 43-year-old son of Dr. and Mrs. William Carlisle Barr, sr., died at Doctors Hospital despite, doctors said, the use of every known anti-toxin treatment.

Dr. Barr reported that his son had diagnosed his illness—"but too late."

"He was injured in Stuart, Fla., where he practices, a week ago Friday," Dr. Barr said. "His leg was gashed, his arm skinned and his head bumped when a car trailer fell on him while he was changing its tire."

Called Home

Dr. Barr called Washington that evening and asked that his son, visiting here, fly down and drive him back.

"They arrived here Tuesday night," he said, "with Bill complaining of a severe backache. The next morning he called me and said, 'Take me some place quick, I've got tetanus'."

He entered Doctors Hospital five days after the accident. Three days later he died.

Four physicians—Dr. Arnold McNitt, Dr. Oscar B. Hunter, Dr. W. Ross Morris and Dr. William A. Morgan—plus an additional half-dozen resident interns at the hospital maintained a 24-hour vigil

"He was saturated with antitoxins," Dr. Hunter said. "He had over 350,000 units saturated in his skin, his blood stream and injected in his spine. The normal dose is about 10,000 units."

Native of Washington

Medical authorities said yesterday that tetanus, or lockjaw, generally has rapidly declined as a fatal ailment since the widespread use of tetanus toxoids which build up relatively safe immunity of about five years. It was not known whether Dr. Barr had used any toxoids.

Untreated, the infection brings death in nine out of 10 cases, authorities said.

A Washington native, Dr. Barr practiced in Virginia and Washington before moving to Stuart, Fla. He was a member of the American Medical Association and the Virginia Medical Society.

Dr. Barr was graduated from Western High School, received his A. B. from Maryland University and his M. D. from George Washington University.

While attending Maryland in 1930, he was intercollegiate rifle champion. Dr. Barr was a member of Christ Episcopal Church, 3100 O st. nw., and was a Mason.

Surviving are his wife, Constance Clairmonte Barr; a son, Peter, 16, and daughter, Elizabeth Evangeline Barr, 14; his parents, Dr. and Mrs. Barr, sr., of 3050 N st. nw., and a sister, Mrs. Edgar Denton Williams, jr., 2300 N. Roosevelt st., Arlington.

Cleanup of Junk-Cluttered Home Ordered

Richmond couple told to clean home officially labeled "indescribably filthy"

32 Dogs Make Shambles of Virginia Home

Richmond, Va., Aug. 21 (AP).—Two young girls, accused of lifting lingerie from a neighborhood clotheslines, led police to their home in a well-to-do neighborhood and a scene of fantastic filth.

Dogs and puppies—32 in all—had free run of the place and trash, leaves and cornshucks littered the floors. Beds and furniture were grime-covered and old papers, food and other refuse filled corners. Human and animal filth abounded.

In all—the solid, shingled frame structure set in a grove of trees, stacked up as a white sepulchre.

The police came into the distasteful picture last night after the girls—11 and 14—were picked up on charges of pilfering the laundry. The girls agreed to take the officers to their home and to return other clothing they said they had picked up.

Their father, Herman Wacker, 57, said it was all right for the police—Henrico County officers—to come in. But his wife turned them away. City police came back with a warrant and walked into a lesser version of the Collyer mansion in New York. This was where the bodies of two eccentric brothers were found several years ago, amid mazes of trash and garbage in their once fashionable home.

City police promptly charged the Wackers with child neglect and violating the city sanitation code. At a hearing they both pleaded guilty.

"I knew it was wrong", Mrs. Wacker told Police Justice Carlton Jewett, "but I prayed every night I could do something about it. It wasn't indifference . . . All I ask now is a chance to do something about it."

Jewett gave the couple until September 15 to clean up the place. In the meantime, he said, they would eat and sleep at the City Home.

Peter Borras, Restaurateur, Is Dead at 60

Peter Borras, 60-year-old president, manager and founder of the Madrillon Restaurant, 15th and New York ave. nw., died of a heart attack last night at his home, 2810 S. Arlington Ridge rd., Arlington.

Friends said Mr. Borras finished work for the day and came home about 7 p. m., when he was stricken. He was due to start his vacation today.

A native of Spain, Mr. Borras had lived in Washington about 40 years. Before founding the Madrillon 22 years ago, he had operated the Spanish Village Restaurant on G st. nw., between 13th and 14th sts., for eight years.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Gladys Willoughby Borras, administrative assistant to an official of the National Broadcasting Co. in Washington, and three brothers, Marcos and Christobal Borras of Washington, and John Borras of Mexico City.

Sergt. Turner To Be Buried In Arlington

The body of the first enlisted casualty of the Korean war to be buried in Arlington Cemetery arrived yesterday at Union Station.

He is Sergt. Ernest K. Turner, of Berwick, Pa., who was wounded in action July 24 and died four days later in Tokyo.

Sergeant Turner will be buried with military honors at 2 p. m. Wednesday. Maj. Gen. Roy H. Parker, Army Chief of Chaplains, will officiate.

Following the services in Fort Myer Chapel, Sergeant Turner's body will be taken to the grave site on a caisson drawn by seven matched grays. The procession will be led by the Army Band followed by a firing party and Third Infantry Regiment escort platoon.

The sergeant's family and friends will attend the military funeral, along with high Army and Government officials headed by Secretary of the Army Frank Pace, jr.

The body of the 35-year-old soldier was met at the station by an honor guard from the Third Regiment.

Sergeant Turner had 256 days of combat in Europe in World War II. His honors included the Silver Star, Soldier's Medal, Bronze Star, and a Presidential Unit Citation. A brother, Staff Sergt. Day G. Turner, was posthumously awarded the Medal of Honor, the highest military award, in World War II.

Engineer Dies 10 Days Before Retirement

Chester L. Post, 70, consulting engineer for General Services Administration, died of a heart attack at his desk yesterday less than two weeks before his scheduled retirement.

He signed his retirement papers Friday and was to have left his position August 31.

Mr. Post, who lived at 1 Scott cir., had been with GSA for 15 years an dhad worked on such recent projects as the Public Health Clinical Center in Bethesda, the General Accounting Office and White House renovation. Before coming to Washington he worked as an engineer in Chicago and Indiana.

Born in Gordon, Ohio, he was a Masonic past master in Chicago and a member of the Chicago Engineers' Club, the American Society of Civil Engineers, the Western Society of Engineers and the American Concrete Institute.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Jennie M. Post.

Bobby's score was 5 pounds, Billy's, 8. The boys' sister is Mrs. Jean Potter, 1623 Holbrook st. ne. The camp, on the Wicomico River, in Maryland, closed yesterday with return of the last 100 boys

Lane Accuses Opponents Of 'Wishful Thinking'

Baltimore, Aug. 21 (AP).—Governor Lane today laid "plain old fashioned mud-slinging," "phoney promises" and "wishful thinking" at the door of his primary opponents.

His statement complained that "not one of the men opposing me for the Democratic nomination for governor has seen fit to discuss the real issues at stake.

"Instead, there have been futile and misleading statements concerning the fiscal policy of our State."

Earlier, the governor said George P. Mahoney—his chief rival in the primary race—is "like a stubborn child" when it comes to learning about State finances.

Mahoney's campaign headquarters did not remain idle.

The candidate issued a statement insisting that, Lane contradictions notwithstanding, it was true that:

1. Conditions in State mental institutions are "still horrible."

2. There is "political waste" in the Governor's office expenditures.

The Governor asserted that the "only question facing the Democratic voters in the primary election" is whether Maryland wants to continue with the school, road, and hospital programs which Lane regards as the main achievements of his administration.

The Governor has consistently maintained that the sales tax was—and is needed—to finance these projects.

Mahoney has attacked the levy, and is campaigning on a general pledge of reducing taxation.

He is using a chart to underscore his points and showing—according to Mahoney—that taxes have increased by 80.3 percent during the Lane tenure.

That's more of an increase than recorded by any other State for the same period, Mahoney contended.

All of which was described by Governor Lane as "one of the most misleading pieces of propaganda I have ever seen."

Mahoney's chart, he said, fails to show that "more than 55 percent of the 80-percent increase is money the State gives right back to the 178 counties, cities and towns of Maryland. The State acts only as collector for this money. It turns it right back to you."

Falls Church Approves Plan To Bring Water to New Areas

The Falls Church City Council last night approved a proposal to extend city water service to nearby subdivisions.

Individual developers would be responsible for extending water lines to newly-served areas, but would be reimbursed for their expenditures under the proposal advanced by City Manager Roy S. Braden.

Braden suggested that the city make its water source available to adjacent areas as a means of encouraging developments in the vicinity of Falls Church. He noted that the Falls Church water supply has a capacity of about seven million gallons while consumers within the city utilize only about 1½ million ballons.

Braden's proposal suggested that builders install the water lines to nearby subdivisions and then reimburse themselves by collecting a fixed percentage of water revenue taken in by the city.

In other communities, the city manager said, builders install the water services and then dedicate the properties to the municipality without cost. He suggested that Falls Church developers be reimbursed for their expenditures to avert the possibility of their engaging water services from nearby rival companies.

It was pointed out during the meeting that builders would be reimbursed only for the cost of extending water lines to subdivisions but not for water lines incorporated with the developed areas.

The council last night also authorized City Attorney LaRue Van Meter to file an injunction suit against a local construction company to halt an alleged violation of local zoning ordinances. Members of the council said the Tyler Corp. was using a lot at Little Falls rd. and W. Broad st. for industrial purposes although the property is zoned only for commercial use.

Storage of heavy construction equipment and materials was cited as the basis for the alleged violation.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

As we get older, stress and strain, overexertion, excessive smoking or exposure to cold sometimes slows down kidney function. This may lead many folks to complain of nagging backache, loss of pep and energy, headaches and dizziness. Getting up nights or frequent passages may result from minor bladder irritations due to cold, dampness or dietary indiscretions.

If your discomforts are due to these causes, don't wait, try Doan's Pills, a mild diuretic. Used successfully by millions for over 50 years. While these symptoms may often otherwise occur, it's amazing how many times Doan's give happy relief—help the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters flush out waste. Get Doan's Pills today!

Her Dad Isn't Ignorant or Narrow, Girl Says; He Holds Respected Place in Business, But His Verbal Attacks on Dating Spoil Her Social Life

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am stumped. My father is a real problem in my young social life. I am 18 years old, work in a department store, and I plan to take night courses at college this fall.

My father is strongly of the opinion that girls who go out with boys are "boy crazy," and that boys and girls go out together only to experiment with sex. He makes it seem as if I am oversexed if I even comment about meeting a nice boy. His attitude makes me feel terrible and I seldom go out with boys because of it.

Dad thinks the only reason a girl wants nice clothes is to attract boys, and he claims that the nicer a girl's clothes are, the more "boy crazy" she becomes. He believes that boys are suckers who spend money on girls they don't intend to marry; and he says boys and girls shouldn't go with each other until they are thinking seriously of getting married. He says he was 24 years old before he ever went with a girl.

Father thinks I should go only with girl friends when I wish to go someplace. But this leaves me out of many activities, as most of my girl friends have beaux and go on double dates. Please don't think my dad is ignorant or narrow. He holds a respected place amongst men in his office. It seems that dating is the only subject or which we bitterly disagree. Maybe your thoughts on the subject would help us reach a meeting of minds. Please answer soon. B. P.

Anxiety Clouds Father's Mind

DEAR B. P.: It seems your father is so concerned about "safety first" that he has long since lost sight of the importance of living. One should live happily, to the best of one's ability,—but of course without giving a bad example, or violating the basic decencies.

Right living calls for liberal daily exercise of self reliant common sense, and it is every parent's moral duty to help children become proficient in this. There is no other way to really prepare them for the good life.

Your father's preachments against boy-girl friendships are more indicative of neurotic anxieties than expressive of leadership sense. It is a fact, I grant, that in and after adolescence, boys and girls become definitely sex conscious of each other, and much engrossed in day dreams or speculative talk about love, romance, sex experience, etc. But this is nothing to be ashamed of, or worried about, per se. It is an inevitable part of healthy growth, a phase that all normal persons go through enroute to maturity.

I cannot agree with your father's primitive notion that boys and girls in our culture go together for sexual dalliance only. No doubt a regrettable percentage of youngsters do pursue dating on that basis, but in their case the sorry practice usually reflects emotional neglect and other troubles at home—with resultant damage to their personality.

Dad Is Jealous of Young Blood

THE AVERAGE intelligent adolescent who feels well esteemed and considerately loved by a kindly family of good repute and sensible outlook doesn't sell cheaply in dating relationships, nor run to furtive intimacies. Well balanced youngsters feel no need to scrounge for experience on such terms. Rather they incline to be comfortably self possessed and morally positive in making friends with the opposite sex.

While it is true that some degree of love-making is gaily exchanged as a routine part of friendly dating nowadays, it only signifies mutual approbation—nothing wicked, sinful or insinuating on the part of either person. Or such is my impression of the younger generation's hardy attitude. However, petting is firmly ruled out by the socially wise, self respecting girl who wants neither the bad name nor the hostile struggles and abuse that ensue from it, generally.

I think your father wants to keep you "daddy's little girl." He is jealous of young love's claim to you. And to justify his possessive feelings, he blusters against the alleged follies and evils of dating. To be a good father, he should open his home to all your friends, both boys and girls, and help you select the wheat from the chaff. M. H.

Vacation Offers Thin Girls an Ideal Start In Putting on Weight

By Ida Jean Kain

FOLLOWING SUMMER vacation is an ideal time for you thin girls to pack away 50,000 calories in good, firm, healthy tissue. That many calories will round out to a dozen pounds of curves, healthier nerves and peace of mind. When the nerve endings are nicely padded, it's easier to relax and live life one day at a time.

Of course you can't keep that completely carefree vacation mood . . . after all, you and I have to earn a living. But wouldn't it be wonderful to retain some of that feeling that this-is-the-way-life-was-meant-to-be-lived? And it is possible, if you have a mind to . . .

A change of environment which vacation affords is the quickest way to get a change of pace. Don't lose that relaxed feeling. While there is a certain amount of pressure in modern living that cannot be avoided, hurry heightens the strain. Think of hurry as being largely habit . . . then you'll be less likely to get back on the hurry-go-worry-go-round.

Since it is particularly bad to start the day rushing, set your alarm for 20 minutes earlier. "What, and cut short my sleep!" you'll protest. Wait, a good breakfast and a leisurely start for the day will give more energy than that little bit more sleep could possibly give. Take 15 minutes to eat a good breakfast. You've been eating a hearty breakfast on vacation . . . so go right on with the pattern. If you don't, you'll lose your appetite for food in the morning. Believe this, for it is absolutely true . . . by eating a good breakfast, you'll have more energy all day long.

And don't slip back into the old habit of slighting lunch in order to squeeze in a bit of shopping. Even if you have to shave your clothes budget, buy good food . . . and take time to relax during the noon hour.

"I wouldn't mind gaining if it would only go to the right spots," you thin girls lament. All right . . . stand tall with chest up so the weight can go to curves instead of padding the waist. To make sure the nourishment is carried to scrawny spots, stimulate your circulation with stretching in the morning. Oh, nothing rugged . . . just push the pillows aside and s-t-r-e-t-c-h, pulling slim in the middle. Stretch, twist and turn with long, smooth pulls—feels wonderful!

Pay off the 50,000-calorie deficit by adding 500 extra calories a day . . . but all in the foods that make for buoyant health: whole milk, eggs, good bread and butter, meat, vegetables, fruits and nourishing desserts, such as custards, puddings and ice cream.

In a few months you'll feel like a new person . . . and you can look back on this vacation as the time when you really began to live.

'Good Ole Summertime' For D. C. Stay-at-Homes

By Elizabeth Maguire

WASHINGTONIANS continue in a never-never land of cool breezes and sunshine. "I do not go to sea any more on weekends," says one diplomat, quite happy in his own back yard. It's nice to stay away till after Labor Day, but those who never left are having a good time right in Washington, where it really is "the good ole summertime."

Longer Hair Back in Style

Shingles Strictly for Roofs

By Peggy Preston

HAVING successfully thrown off the threat of a 1925 waistline, the lady of fashion is now turning her back on that supreme indignity—last season's revival of the shingle bob.

In other words, the chic cuties are letting their hair grow long again. That's the latest word from fashion model headquarters in both New York and Paris where the craze for close-cropped hairdoes reached its greatest popularity. Now, it seems, the fashion is being reversed, and the 3-inch bobs are in the process of growing longer.

The ultra-short hair-cut never quite caught on with Washington women. Only a few succumbed to the shingle style. But many of us did go in for short cuts, clipped evenly around the head. And lots of us have regretted making even this concession to fashion, comfortable though the style is. For we've missed the versatility of our longer locks which we could rearrange to suit various costumes and occasions.

Can't Try on a Haircut

HOWEVER, if there's one thing you can't try on, it is short hair. Once the scissors have snipped your tresses, you've no choice but to wait for them to grow long again.

It is in this trying midway point between a short and long bob that we find ourselves in real need of an expert hair stylist. Underneath hairs must be clipped often to permit them keep pace with the top growth. There is an exact moment when a good permanent helps immeasurably, and another moment when a complete restyling is called for.

Washington's newest expert in this field is Mr. Victor, consultant at the Charles of The Ritz beauty salon which opened yesterday at Woodward & Lothrop's.

He reminds us that hair is the only changeable feature we own, and hence should be kept at a length that makes it both easy to handle and to rearrange.

Frequent Shaping Will Help

WHILE letting short hair grow back, Mr. Victor recommends a regular program of frequent clipping and shaping, depending on the degree of growth. By brushing the short front hairs up and back, the effect is one of volumn at the back of the head, a good stop-gap for the in-between period.

When the moment for re-styling comes, Mr. Victor tells us that a woman should consider her day-by-day routine of living as well as her facial structures before setting her heart on any special hair-do.

She should select one that will look as well next week as it does the hour after she leaves a beauty shop. It should be something she can handle herself, with a minimum of time and effort. Otherwise, she will regret her choice.

Longer short hair is a growing vogue for fall. How short cropped locks can be swept into graceful arrangements during the trying "growing-out" stage is illustrated in the accompanying photographs. The styling is by Mr. Victor, hair consultant at the Charles of The Ritz salon which opened yesterday at Woodward & Lothrop's

Tri-Delts Pick New Chairmen

Names of committee chairmen who will serve the Washington Alliance of Delta Delta Delta during the year 1950-1951 have been announced by the president of the organization, Mrs. Marc G. Phillips of Chevy Chase, Md.

The recommendation committee will be headed by Mrs. Remsen B. Ogilby of Chevy Chase. Miss Virginia Daiker will edit the yearbook. Mrs. E. L. LeClerg will be responsible for the service projects, and Mrs. Robert E. Earll is chairman of the membership committee.

Regional groups have chosen as their new leaders Mrs. Edwin V. Kerr, for the northwest section; Miss Mary Mills, Business Girls; Mrs. Thomas Knox, Virginia, and Mrs. Leslie A. Smith, Prince George's County.

Members of the Washington Alliance who attended the recent Tri Delta national convention held at the Grand Hotel, Mackinac Island, Mich., were Mrs. Marc G. Phillips, Miss Pauline Harrell, Mrs. Willed S. Crane, Mrs. Joseph D. Grigsby and Mrs. Donald Sencenbaugh. Mrs. Grigsby, who with her daughter, Mrs. Sencenbaugh, formed one of the 11 mother-daughter teams at the convention, addressed an alumnae session on the subject, "Who's Who in Tri Delta."

Mrs. Phillips reported that Delta Delta Delta, which has 94 collegiate chapters and 198 alumnae groups, has awarded 160 scholarships, totaling $20,524 since last September. The recipients included 42 Tri-Deltas, 26 members of other sororities, and 92 independent women students.

Gives Bridal Shower

Mrs. Gilmour Young of Georgetown gave a shower last evening for Miss Betty Cannon, bride-elect of Mark Mack. Miss Cannon is the daughter of Mrs. Ethel B. Cannon of Crestwood. Her wedding will take place September 23.

Allowance Teaches Value of Money

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

IN SOME interviews with children on the subject of money, it was interesting to notice how few of these children had regular allowances. A few had, but most of them earned money by washing dishes, or just by being given small sums when they needed them.

This is what might be expected of a subject upon which parents have such varied viewpoints. Not all of them would handle money the same way.

But allowances are the best means of teaching children the use of money. They are not an indulgence, as some parents think, but are educational.

The child with an allowance knows exactly what he can and cannot spend. His allowance should be scaled to his needs so that he does not become a spendthrift through having too large a one; nor a miser because he has too little.

Children of school age should be able to manage from 5 to 10 cents during their first year of school. This cannot be expected to take care of their Sunday School money—which should be exclusive of their allowance—but will be able to give them some experience in spending. That is what they learn first.

As the child's needs increase, as well as his capacity to manage his pennies, the allowance can be made larger. Only the parent is in a position to know when this should be done and how much of an increase is needed and can be managed.

Children themselves differ greatly in their use and their appreciation of money. Some children are parsimonious and get the most out of any money they have. Others spend it all the first day or two and then have to wait a week until their next allowance is due. Some children seem to care little for money and shun its responsibilities.

Whichever type of child you are dealing with will need an allowance. The first two to give them a better education in how to spend and save, the latter to introduce him to the responsibility of money and help him to accept it.

The parsimonious child might want to do more work than was available in order to earn more money. The spendthrift ditto. But the child who cares little for money would refuse tasks so that he might not be confronted with the responsibility of his earnings. To attach money to home tasks may bring about situations the mother would find difficult to handle.

So the consensus remains that an allowance, unrelated to home tasks but related to the child's needs and capacity to manage, is the method best calculated to teach him the meaning and values of money.

Bringing New Life to Old Furniture Easy When You Have the Right Instructions

BRINGING new beauty to old furniture is the subject of many a letter to this column so the leaflet described below should be of interest to readers. First, though, here's a letter from M. K.

DEAR ANNE:

We have stripped off the old finish off an antique table and would now like to give it a "natural" or oil finish. How do you go about this? Or where can I get a booklet containing such instructions? M. K., Washington.

The procedure is simple, M. K., once you get the surface absolutely free of the old finish and wax. You can obtain a good oil finish by mixing a half pint of raw linseed oil with 1 tablespoon of liquid drier.

Rub this onto the surface sparingly with a clean cloth and repeat about five times—at weekly intervals. With the passage of time, the wood will become more beautiful as you rub and polish it in your regular household routine.

A leaflet called "To the Rescue," telling how to restore antiques, has just been issued by the National Paint, Varnish, and Lacquer Association. You can obtain a free copy by writing Department K of this association at 1500 Rhode Island ave. nw., Washington, D. C.

DEAR ANNE:

We have a friend who has a law office and one of his wishes is to have a framed picture of the Supreme Court Building. I would like to get a large print so that I may frame it as a gift. Could you give me the address of the store in which I may purchase it?

Mrs. W. S., Washington.

The Prints and Photographs Service of the Library of Congress has negatives from which they will print pictures of Washington public buildings on order. You can check with them by telephoning National 2722, then go up and select the picture you wish. Leading local photographers, too, can supply pictures of such buildings.

DEAR ANNE:

I have spilled fingernail polish on a rayon crepe dress. I have tried using fingernail polish remover to take off the stain, but this does not work—that is, only slightly. You see, when I spilled the polish I smeared it trying to wipe off as much as possible. Any suggestions you have will be appreciated.

F. H. B., Jessup, Md.

Cynical friends have suggested that we set up a standing item on how to remove fingernail polish and run it at the head of this column each day. Perhaps this suggestion isn't far off the mark, since carelessness with the polish bottle seems to be universal failing of womankind.

In the first place, don't apply any more of the polish remover to the rayon. It's very harmful to certain types of rayon and other synthetic fabrics, though all right on cotton or wool. Get some banana oil at the drug store. Dribble a few drops on the spot and work in well. When stain has softened, sponge with drycleaning fluid. Repeat as long as stain will come out, sponging over an absorbent cloth or towel. If any stain still remains, consult a good drycleaner and see if he can get it out for you.

DEAR ANNE:

Can you tell me where to obtain the heart-shaped straw baskets necessary in the making of the French dessert Coeur a la Creme. It is a cottage cheese affair which is packed in these small baskets (lined with cheesecloth) to set and drain. Evidently a mold cannot be used. The baskets come in large, or small individual sizes. Mrs. W. M. B., Washington.

I have called several shops that specialize in imported items but none of them can tell me where to get these little baskets. They say that they might be found in some specialty shop in New York, but aren't sure where. Any suggestions?

Anne answers questions through her column only. Address letters to "Anne," Room 408, The Washington Post, Washington 4, D. C. Names and addresses of questioners will be used, unless specifically requested otherwise.

MEAT LOAF:

Ingredients: 1½ pounds ground chuck beef, 1 cup prepared seasoned dry bread crumb stuffing, 2 eggs, 1 No. 2 can solid-pack tomatoes (1 pound 3 ounces), 1 to 1¼ teaspoons salt (depending on seasoning in stuffing), freshly-ground pepper to taste.

Method: Put beef in mixing bowl; add stuffing and eggs. Measure 1 cup of the tomatoes (about half tomato pulp and half juice) and add with salt and pepper. Mix thoroughly with spoon or fingers. Pack into heat-resistant glass baking dish (6x10 inches measured across top); use bottom of measuring cup to smooth down top. Drain remaining tomatoes in can, saving juice, and cut each in half; place tomato on top of meat so that there will be some on each piece when loaf is cut in 6 squares. Bake in moderate (350°) oven about 40 minutes or until done. Squares may be removed from pan just before serving and pan-juices added to the tomato juice remaining (there will be about ½ cup), and thickened slightly to make a thin gravy. Makes 6 servings.

Robert Admits It

It's Not Quite Wright To Be So Energetic

By Sonia Stein

It turns out that Robert Wright isn't the second man to play the lead in "Kiss Me, Kate," but the first. Although Alfred Drake created the part in New York and Wright wasn't publicly connected with the show until a road company was formed with him in the lead, Wright was actually the first singer to have rolled a tongue over the wonderful Cole Porter tunes. It happened simply enough. Wright, who is a singer from away back and an actor just lately, was hired to sing at the informal presentations made for prospective "angels" for the show. While Producer - director John C. Wilson cavorted about reading the lines, Wright would come through with the songs, and first thing you know, the "angels" were enchanted and put up their cash to finance the show.

Wright

Wright did a bit of singing and acting in the revue "Make Mine Manhattan," and emboldened by such experience asked if there might be something for him in the road company of "Kiss Me, Kate" when he heard it was being cast. There was.

Richard L. Coe is on vacation. His column will resume August 23.

Like any singer who has toured the country successfully doing concert work, Wright is pleased but not particularly surprised when his voice is praised. But if you praise his newly discovered acting ability! Ah, he purrs.

The Old Vitality

And he is something of an actor, you know. The outstanding characteristic of Fred Graham in "Kiss Me, Kate," is his vitality and force. This characteristic Wright produces with abundant energy and animation night after night at the Watergate, where "Kiss Me, Kate" is now in its second and last Washington week.

But nothing could be further from Wright's own nature. He's a tall (6 foot 4 inches), lanky character of great indolent charm. "I'm a very slow and take-it-easy kind of person," he explains. A Missourian, Wright hasn't found it hard to become the tense and forceful Graham for a couple of hours every night. "Just stand alive, look alive and you feel alive, he explains. "If you just get started in the right direction, it snowballs into a feeling of well-being and vitality. Playing Graham always gives me a 'lift.' I feel exhilarated and I hope it affects the audience the same way."

Watergate Strange

Because of his length, Wright has had to work out somewhat different stage movements from those used by the more compactly built Drake in the New York show, but the rest of the characterization is much the same. Wright wants it that way. "People like to feel they are getting the same show they'd be getting in New York," he points out. Since the costumes and all other details are the same, and since this road company cast was so carefully chosen, the audience does come close to getting it, at that.

Wright finds the Watergate barge a strange place to work. "The first night I was afraid to put my foot down, the floor was never quite where I expected it to be," he says, in reference to the gentle rocking in the Potomac swell. With the audience separated from the actors by an uncommonly wide space for the orchestra barge, and with complex lighting and acoustical problems, the actors have found the Watergate a mixed experience. But the idea of playing to so many people at once makes up for all the deficiencies it has as a stage, they agree.

The performances must be getting over the footlights and the great watery gap all right, because Wright has acquired a whole retinue of lovely young ladies who leave notes at his hotel and follow him down the street for autographs.

No New Experience

The "Kiss Me Kate" management has even had to ask the young ladies not to bother him at his hotel—and if they hadn't carefully mentioned which hotel he is at, you'd almost think they meant it.

Being surrounded by young ladies is no new experience for Wright. He studied singing at Christian College—a junior college for girls. His father was connected with the school and Jane Frohman's mother, who taught there, took him in hand. Since the handsome Wright was in his teens at the time the girls fussed over him considerably. "No wonder you're spoiled," we ventured. "Yes," he said dreamily, closing his eyes and looking back on it with a smile. Then he opened them abruptly. "I don't think I fully appreciated it at the time," he said very seriously.

Wright, incidentally, comes from an interesting family. He's remotely connected to Orville and Wilbur Wright, who put us all up in the air, and his younger brother is the sculptor mentioned prominently in Time this week.

After tasting the pleasures of playing a part like Graham in "Kiss Me, Kate," Wright is determined to stay with the theater. It offers so much more satisfaction than concert work, he claims. What he'll play next he doesn't know. But he does know he'll never find a part to equal Graham. "That kind of part comes to an actor once in a lifetime—if then," he says.

BURL IVES OPENS at the Olney Theater tonight as Pieter Stuyvesant in the Maxwell Anderson-Kurt Weill musical, "Knickerbocker Holiday." Washington seems just the place for this show, because it takes a number of right smart digs at government, using colonial New Amsterdam as the take-off point. Old Stuyvesant was dictatorially minded and Anderson has fun with him.

"The September Song," which is currently enjoying a revival in popularity, is from this musical.

RICHARD L. COE comes back tomorrow from his vacation. He's missed some exciting theater while he was gone but there seems to be plenty more where it came from, and he'll give you the word on it every day now.

Prisoner Captured After Railing Leap

An Alexandria woman, sentenced to six months in the city jail on an assault charge, ended up in Alexandria Hospital instead yesterday after she made an abortive effort to escape from court officials.

Mrs. Rosie Rush of 910 Queen st., convicted of attacking a man in whose house she roomed, broke away from court authorities and plunged 20 feet over a banister in the Alexandria City Hall after hearing sentence imposed. She landed head first at the bottom of a stairway where police recaptured her without dificulty. The trip to the hospital where she was treated for minor head lacerations was merely a detour, however, and she was later taken to the jail to serve her sentence.

Mrs. Rush was convicted of attacking Dewey DeVaughan with a bottle during a fight August 17. Her 7-year-old son, David, who witnessed the escape attempt, was placed temporarily in custody of the Alexandria welfare department while his mother serves her prison term.

MOTHER AND DAUGHTER, by bond of law. Jane Wyatt tries to convince adopted daughter, Ann Blyth, that she is as much loved as if she'd been born to the family in "Our Very Own" which opens at RKO Keith's Wednesday

High-Test Cast Set to Make Kipling Story Into a Movie

HOLLYWOOD Pan Berman cast—Stewart Granger, Gene Kelly, and Walter Pidgeon—for "Soldiers Three." These fellows should do right well by Rudyard Kipling's story. But I do think the studios are unfair to my sex. Half the pictures today have no women in them. And if a film does have a gal, she's an old hag, either croaking in a night club or playing a shady lady. In olden days, we went to movies to see what the gals wore or to watch how Greta Garbo took her man. I have no quarrel with the three gents named above, but how about some lush love scenes? . . . Jose Ferrer wouldn't have to be coaxed to make "Kind Lady' with Ethel Barrymore. After eight months, Jose's finally barbered off that beard, which he had to wear for both "Crisis" and Cyrano." . . . Johnny Weissmuller sheds his leopard skin to play the part of Davey Crockett in "The Alamo." The picture will be shot in San Antonio and Mexico City, with John Wayne starring.

SOME GUESS: A Paramount employe remembers that on Fred Astaire's card of application for a contract at that studio was this notation; "Singularly unattractive, balding, with no personality, but can dance. Will get nowhere." Soon after that Fred and Ginger Rogers took RKO out of bankruptcy . . . Chris, the dog in "Mister 880," was Daisy's stand-in, until he grew too large. Now he's a star himself. Edmund Gwen, who supported Lassie, always has dogs in his pictures. "My leading lady has always been a dog," says Eddie . . . Don't know why Betty Blyth, our silent "Queen of Sheba," doesn't get more picture jobs . . . Claude Rains and his wife came in from Pennsylvania. Claude does "The Gaunt Woman," with Dana Andrews.

GET THE SHEARS, BOYS: Clifton Webb won't be popular with our Hollywood tailors. Says Clifton, "Their clothes look like zoot suits—coats so long they fall to your knees and shoulders so padded you look like Superman. As for lapels, no gentleman would be without them. I do like good tailoring. You can dress well without spending too much money, if you have selectivity. After all, clothes are like relatives. You have to live with them; and I don't intend to have any that will embarrass me." . . . William Wieterle, after announcing half a dozen pictures, finally settled for "Rachel," with Adana Romney starring.

SAM'S SONG: Sam Marx, who's been producing at Metro for many years, has never had a contract with the studio. After he previews "Grounds for Marriage" he will leave M-G-M if another assignment isn't forthcoming . . . Marx owns Evelyn Waugh's "A Handful of Dust," which he bought years ago. A top star has asked to play in it; and Sam will make it whether he remains at Metro or not. Waugh wrote the story long before he authored "The Loved One." . . . Ronnie Reagan and Robert Riley Crutcher are getting together on Bob's western, "One Way Ride." . . . Pug Wells, the air line hostess whose story is being made into "Three Guys Named Mike," says movies are too strenuous. She's asked her boss to let her make a couple of flights so she can relax . . . Patricia Stenz, who's grown hair for many Hollywood stars, tells me of a 14-year-old girl, a polio victim, in Canada who lost all her hair. She refused to be wheeled into the garden, afraid that other children might see her. Her mother read about Patricia's work, and wrote her. Pat was so touched, she sent her all the material she has on how to grow hair. The girl not only has a head of hair now, but she's also learning to walk again.

Freed Convict Wants Rented Wife Returned

Turin, Italy, Aug. 21 (U.P.).—A freed convict asked police today to help him get back his wife, rented out when he went to jail two years ago to a well-to-do businessman.

Giuseppe Paladini told police he rented his young wife, Rose, for 3000 lire ($4.70) a month when he was sentenced to three years for theft. The businessman, he complained, now refuses to return the wife.

'Orderly' Jailed For 450 Days on Thieving Charges

An accommodating thief yesterday got 450 days in jail for a series of recent pilferings from the nurses quarters of Children's Hospital.

He is Ray H. Burwell, 18, of 2133 13th st. nw. Judge George D. Neilson of Municipal Court imposed sentence for five petty larcenies. Police said Burwell stole radios, watches and jewelry.

According to Assistant United States Attorney Frank Strickler, Burwell posed as an orderly and once obliged a nurse by carting her suitcase to another room. He left with loot from still a third room.

Burwell also was held under $5000 bond for grand jury action on a charge of stealing a billfold of money from the hospital.

Lost Boy Found Safe On Desert

Florence, Ariz., Aug 21 (U.P.). Eight-year-old Gary McCarthy of Tucson, Ariz., was found safe but "tired, hungry and thirsty" today after being lost for nearly 30 hours in the arid desert near here.

Young Gary wandered off yesterday morning while his father, Timothy, was inspecting an abandoned mine shaft. Sheriff Lynn Earley said the boy wandered 35 miles through the cactus-studded desert in heat that reached 110 degrees.

He was found this afternoon by a posse of 100 men that combed the region for 12 hours.

Sheriff Red Kinsey said the youth was "safe but awfully tired, hungry and thirsty." Gary, Kinsey said, had been without food or water the whole time. The boy was taken to a hospital for observation.

A three-month-old puppy that accompanied the boy was not found.

In addition to the ground party, six planes and bloodhounds from the State prison here were thrown into the search. The bloodhounds found the boy's tracks wandering in an aimless circle, but then lost the scent.

One of the search planes crashed upon landing here, injuring John Kimm of Tucson. The pilot of the search plane, Robert Ray of Tucson, escaped without injury.

Blind Child Flown Here Sees Again

Eleven-year-old Margaret Ann Jackson, who seven months ago—blind and paralyzed from a brain tumor—was flown to Washington in a dramatic Air Force "mercy mission," is home today in St. Petersburg, Fla., pronounced "well" by her doctor.

Monday she treated all of the kids on the block to vanilla ice cream, $10 worth, with money she received from her aunt, Mrs. Elton Davis, 723 Kearny st. ne.

Last January Margaret Ann began complaining of headaches. Doctors in St. Petersburg diagnosed her trouble as a brain tumor. Arrangements had been made by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Jackson, to fly her to Washington for an emergency operation when bad weather grounded all commercial flights.

An appeal was made to the Air Force and two hours later she was on her way here in a C-47.

Margaret Ann's aunt had arranged with her physician, Dr. Robert Hottel, to supervise the case and two hours after landing the little girl was being operated on by Dr. Arthur Morris, Washington surgeon.

She visited relatives in New Jersey and Pennsylvania after leaving the hospital and stopped in Washington last week for a final check with Dr. Morris before flying home Sunday.

Bar Unit Job Is Assigned To Goldstein

Philip Goldstein has been appointed chairman of the District Bar Association's Committee on Legal Assistance to Servicemen, Jo V. Morgan, bar president, announced yesterday.

In releasing the names of the 11-lawyer committee, Morgan pointed out that its work has assumed unusual importance since the outbreak of the Korean war.

The Veterans' Service Center at 14th st. and Pennsylvania ave. nw. confirmed through its director, Colonel Waldron E. Leonard, that quite an increase in the number of requests for legal help has been noted since the war began.

Servicemen needing legal help, said Morgan, may go directly to the committee or may seek this help via the center. The legal services are free if the serviceman cannot afford payment.

Besides Goldstein, members of the Committee on Legal Assistance include Thomas W. Collins, John G. Epaminonda, Josephine R. Garrison, William Hitz, Karl Kindleberger, Irving J. Levy, L. Clair Nelson, Frank P. Noonan, Benjamin Simon and William F. Wetmore, jr.

Prisoner Talks Set

Saigon, French Indo-China, Aug. 21 (U.P.).—French authorities and Viet Minh guerillas have set a new rendezvous next Sunday to discuss exchange of prisoners, a French communique announced today.

Ruth Hussey Is Prettier Than Poster

By Lee Grove
Post Reporter

Ruth Hussey, substituting very attractively for a 24-sheet poster advertising a film called "Louisa", spent yesterday in Washington.

It all started in Chicago, where the Universal-International film was launched August 11.

On hand for the gala premiere were Miss Hussey, Spring Byington, Ronald Reagan, Charles Coburn and Edmund Gwenn. When it was over, the film stars spread out like ripples to carry the word.

Miss Hussey rippled through Detroit, Cleveland, Cincinnati, Sunday night into Washington.

It is her first visit here since she played in "State of the Union" at the National Theater in 1946, and was a guest of a Presidential Birthday ball shortly before that.

Despite the travel schedule, with its incidental demands, she looked fresh as a blue-eyed susan, and the perfect embodiment of a-girl-can-be-happy-though-in-Hollywood.

With her was her husband, C. Robert Longenecker, six-foot and blond, a radio producer turned television executive.

They have two children, Robbie, 6, and Johnnie, 3½. And a dog, "Pala", named for Pala Mission where they were married August 9, 1942.

On the desk at their suite were a handful of postcards. "Bob" had addressed them to the children and left her to write in the messages.

It was the sort of thing any man might do, and the two are like that—"real people," as the saying is.

Yesterday morning Miss Hussey visited the wards at Walter Reed General Hospital.

This morning she leaves for Philadelphia and New York.

"Louisa?" It opens September 13 at the RKO-Keith.

British Unions to Vote On Action in Korea

London, Aug. 21 (NYHT).—British trade union leaders have decided to ask Britain's eight million organized workers for a vote of confidence on the United States action in Korea, it became known tonight.

In its annual report the general council of the trades union congress discloses it will submit a resolution to the annual T.U.C. conference branding the North Koreans as aggressors and supporting the action taken by America and the United Nations.

Rome, Aug. 21 (U.P.).—Some 900 Catholic students from American schools, here for Holy Year pilgrimages, today went on sightseeing tours of the city before beginning their visits to the basilicas for the jubilee indulgence.

They Should Be Fought Here, He Says

Wounded GI Hates U. S. Reds

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter
(Second in a Series)

Twenty-year-old Pfc. Jim Batton of Bladenboro, N. C., air-evacuated to Walter Reed Hospital here, served for 28 days in combat-wracked Korea. He came back to the U.S.A. with a bullet-smashed leg, a vivid memory of a night-marish jeep ride, and a new-born hatred for American Communists.

Jim joined the Army at 18—for selfish motives, if you please. He'd been running the family farm for several years after his father had been crippled in an accident, and a younger brother was now old enough to take over the operation of the farm. He'd always wanted to be a mechanic and see something of the world. He figured the Army would give him a chance to do both.

It did.

Jim saw part of our country, mainly in training camps. Then he was sent to Japan to join the Twenty-fourth Division. Then Korea. Certainly that was seeing the world. Meanwhile, Jim was becoming a good mechanic, particularly with jeeps. And in the process he fell in love with the Army and Army life.

When Batton's outfit landed in Korea, Jim was running a regimental jeep. It's name was "Betty."

Early Action

Jim and "Betty" and the whole outfit got into action two days after arriving in Korea. That was the night of July 4 . . . the Fourth of July . . . Independence Day back home. "We saw plenty of fireworks that night," says Private Batton.

The boys in Batton's company thought the whole thing a great adventure. They laughed and joked about the idea of a war with the North Koreans. Heck, the North Koreans were just a bunch of gooks, the fellows agreed, and they'd start running the first time they caught sight of a Yank.

"We changed our mind in a hurry," explained Jim.

Things were bad for our boys right from the beginning. Got into a defense position, and by morning the Red Koreans had outflanked the GIs, and guerillas had infiltrated behind the lines. Things went from bad to worse, and Taejon was worst of all.

Tanks Break Through

On the dawn of the 20th of July—as Batton recalls the date—North Korean tanks broke through our lines and blasted their way into the regimental command post on the northern edge of Taejong. The tanks shot up everything with machine gun bullets, but when they ran into the medical station, marked by the Red Cross, the tankmen opened up with shells, according to eyewitness Pfc. Batton.

Jim makes it clear that Taejon wasn't an all-out North Korean show. The GIs got in a few licks. A newly-arrived super-bazooka was rushed into action; and the first tank encountered was KO'd with a single shot. Jim saw that incident. He did not see, but he heard from his buddies, that the division commander, Maj. Gen. William F. Dean—since reported missing in action—had helped the bazooka-boys knock out another tank behind the command post.

For Jim and "Betty" the tank incursion was only the start of a very rough day. At around 5:30 p.m.—12 hours after the enemy tanks had broken through—the Yanks were ordered to withdraw. Regimental records were piled into the jeep's trailer, and the major jumped in the jeep with Jim. "Betty" then joined in a caravan of around 50 vehicles of all kinds.

The Washington Post
Pfc. James D. Batton with Nurse Elisa Comacho at Walter Reed

The trip back, a few miles to positions held by friendly hands, lasted five hours. It was ghastly.

Virtually every foot of the way back was plagued by snipers, machine gun and mortar ambuscades. Guerillas set entire areas afire and cut down telephone poles so that they fell across the roads as barricades. Again and again, the caravan had to halt to fight fire, remove the road-barriers and engage snipers or machine guns.

"The gooks figured they had us for sure," said Jim Batton, stretched across the bed at Walter Reed. "Heck, we could hear them blowing taps for us as we were pulling out of Taejon."

One Rider Killed

Every time the caravan came to a halt, Jim dived under the little protective cover offered by the jeep, and began blazing away with his rifle. Every time he and the major took off again, a different bunch of fellows would hop on, hang on any old way. One of the riders was killed by machine gun bullets; two were wounded. "Betty" was pumped full of holes. But Jim and the major escaped unscathed.

"Beats me how we did it," marvels Jim.

At one point, Jim and two other riflemen who had ducked under the jeep with him, debated whether they ought to abandon "Betty" and take off for the hills on their own legs.

"We decided to stick with 'Betty'," said Jim. "After all, we'd dragged the records that far, and she'd been doing all right up to then. Anyhow, the jeep and trailer came in handy for bringing in some of the wounded."

Back Into Action

Within a few days, without replacement; Jim's outfit was rushed back into the line of action. On the dawn of July 29 the foe hit the GI lines and forced another withdrawal. This time Jim, the major, and "Betty" led a convoy of 12 vehicles through the mountain passes—which were studded with enemy machine guns. Three other guys hanging on to the jeep were hit before a machine gun blast ripped Jim's left leg. He continued driving though. "Heck, it was no place to stop," said Pfc. Batton.

According to Batton, most of the boys in his company had little or nothing to say on the subject of Russia or communism before they went into action in Korea. After the bloody fighting, though, the boys began to talk about it at their bull sessions.

No Answer Yet

"The main question," said Jim, "was always this: 'How can it be that we are fighting like hell to lick the Communists in Korea and yet the Communists keep on going in the United States?" We always asked that question and we never got any satisfactory answers."

Jim observed that he'd never thought much about American Communists in this country before the Korean war.

"Now," he said, "I hate them.

"I read about the Communists who was beaten up in Georgia the other day. I kept thinking to myself how I'd have loved to have a hand in it."

Jim says when the boys come home from Korea more will be heard from them on the subject of communism.

"They tell us that we're in Korea fighting communism," exclaimed Jim angrily. "Okay, then why not here?"

Murder-Suicide Ends Argument Over Lawn-Cutting

Bethlehem, Pa., Aug. 21 (AP).—An argument that began when a man objected to his neighbor's lawn cutting resulted in the death of both men tonight.

Capt Michael Fox of Bethlehem detectives listed the deaths of August Meinberg, 47, and William Eck, 45, as murder and suicide. He gave this account of what happened:

Meinberg and Eck had been quarreling for more than a year ever since Eck cut branches from a dead tree, littering part of Meinberg's lawn.

Tonight, Eck began to trim his lawn near the dividing line of the two properties. Meinberg came out of his house and the two argued.

Meinberg returned to his house and emerged again, this time with a sawed-off shotgun. He fired point-blank at Eck. Then without hesitating, he turned the gun on himself and fired a second time.

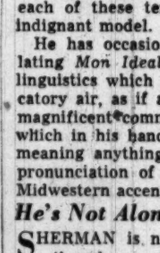
A Sort of Benchley

How Can Sherman Be Funny So Often?

By John Crosby

IN APPEARANCE, Ransom Sherman is a cross between a male Helen Hokinson character and the late, lamented Robert Benchley. His humor, also reminiscent of Benchley, is warm, appealing, fresh, original and . . . well, if I can think of any other adjectives, I'll throw them in as I go along.



Sherman

Sherman's half-hour show, the summer replacement for "Kukla, Fran and Ollie" (NBC-TV-WNBW—7 p. m.) is a five-times-a-week operation, Mondays through Fridays, and how he manages to be so funny so often is one of the wonders of the modern world.

One reason, of course, is that he is borrowing liberally from his old radio show. That's all right with me, too. It would have been a shame to have wasted those wonderfully crazy stunts on a nonvisual medium.

Oh, yes, charming. Belongs up in the first paragraph after "original."

Sherman has to be seen to be fully appreciated. You have, for example, to watch him explain the business cycle with graphs and charts, easily one of the great masterpieces of confusion of our time, or to demonstrate how to build a double-decker bunk or to lecture about "Our Little Feathered Friend, the Squirrel."

"The Squirrel is our friend. And at times, he is NOT our friend. We have here the potted red squirrel." You have to see his expression of mild dismay as his pretty assistant, who has been sent to the library to do research on squirrels, blithely explains that the squirrel "has tusks 7 feet long, goes to a secret hiding place to die and ever since has been known in Schenectady."

Fashion Talk

DURING the summer, Sherman has lectured on such divergent subjects as fashion, cooking, social improvement, great moments in history, and, of course, work-shop hints—bungling each of them excellently. I don't know which one he bungled best, but I'm rather fond of his fashion talks. In one of them, he showed how a single garment, which looked like a potato sack, could be converted into a street dress, house dress, evening dress and cocktail dress—demonstrating each of these terrible things on a monstrously indignant model.

He has occasional small triumphs, like translating Mon Ideal into English, a great feat of linguistics which he tossed off with a self-deprecatory air, as if anyone can do it. He also has a magnificent command of the French word alors which in his hands is a sort of all-purpose word meaning anything you care to read into it. His pronunciation of alors, allowing a little for his Midwestern accent, is barely short of perfect.

He's Not Alone

SHERMAN is not entirely alone on his show, though you don't have to bother much with his assistants. Spelling him on his occasional rest periods are two singers, Johnny Bradford and Nancy Wright, and the Art Van Damme Instrumental Quintet, who not only sing and play, but also help out with Sherman's monkey-shines.

Sherman, in short, is much too valuable to be simply a summer replacement. I devoutly hope he'll still be around to help us through what begins to look like a very grim winter.

The DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Bill Gold is on vacation. His column today takes the form of a letter to his managing editor.

Dear Boss:

Just above New Market, Va., on Route 11, we came to a series of signs which warned:

"Dr. Childress Snake and Monkey Farm Just Ahead. See the Baboons and the King Cobra."

"Let's stop," suggested my passengers in unison.

"Look," I said, "you were tired of riding before we left Fairfax County, and yet you don't want to stop for dinner until we get to Lewisburg, W. Va. How can you be so contradictory?"

"It'll only take a minute," they coaxed. So we stopped to see the snakes and the monkeys.

The "farm" turned out to be the front room of a modest frame house — admission, 50 cents per person. For our $1.50 we got to see about a dozen tired snakes, a foot-long alligator allegedly 65 years old, a slightly longer alligator who gave his age as 250 years, and four bored apes of small size and undetermined age and breed.

We stalled around for three or four minutes, trying to get a full 50 cents worth. "Where's the gambling game?" whispered my 14-year-old.

"What do you mean?" I asked.

"Didn't you read the article in Parade a couple of weeks ago?" he said. "It warned people that some of these roadside zoos are cover-ups for gambling rackets. I left my wallet in the car."

"Your three dollars is safe," I assured him, "unless you let that monkey talk you into a gin rummy game."

Back on the road again, we settled down for the 150-mile grind to Lewisburg. We were all agreed that it was worth waiting until 8 p. m. for dinner, just to taste those delicious biscuits at the General Lewis Hotel again.

In Covington, Va., we paid a fraction over 32 cents a gallon for gasoline—and immediately vowed that we'd try to hold off additional purchases until we got out of the mountains. A pack of cigarettes cost me 21 cents.

When we drove through White Sulphur Springs, my passengers improvised a set of blinders out of two road maps, and held them alongside my head so that I couldn't see the gorgeous greens of the Greenbrier golf course. They were afraid I'd suggest stopping over.

In due course we arrived in Lewisburg, and the first thing I saw was a billboard advising the countryside that the one and only, original, in person Grand Old Opry would appear at the Lewis theater on Friday. Too bad we couldn't lay over to wait for it, or I could have covered another theatrical event for Dick Coe.

The streets or Lewisburg are lined with silvered barrels spaced at 50-foot intervals. A filling station attendant explained that they were trash cans.

"But why so many?" I asked. "There's one in front of every building."

"Well," he drawled, "we figured if we'd put out enough of them, it would be just as handy for people to drop their litter in the barrels as on the street."

"I see."

"But, he added dolefully, "it hasn't worked out. The barrels are cleaner than the streets."

We parked the car and walked over to the General Lewis, fairly drooling at the thought of the meal that awaited us. The night was brutally hot, and the hotel is not air-conditioned. So I left my jacket in the car.

And if you haven't guessed what happened next, boss, it's only because you're preoccupied with the Korean war or something. After I drove all day in the blazing heat to eat at the place, they stopped me at the door of the dining room to inform me that they couldn't serve me because I wasn't wearing a coat.

As we turned to walk out, Bernice chuckled and said: "I know you too well to suggest that you go back and get a coat, so I won't suggest it. But I can't help but remember the advice you gave the lady who was sizzling because an Arlington tea room refused to serve her shirt-sleeved husband on a hot day. You told her that the restaurant was completely within its rights."

"It is," I said grimly, "and I'm within mine when I take my business elsewhere."

"Hah," she snorted. "Where else will you get a decent meal in a little town like this?"

"Follow me," I said, with more courage than conviction. And I led the way into the Court Restaurant as forbidding a place (from the outside) as you ever hope to see.

But luck was with me, and we got three delicious steaks, with all the trimmings from soup to nuts, left a tip, and still had change from a $5 bill.

The juke box didn't help our digestion much, but it could have been worse. The table of contents beneath the coin slot listed folk songs, mountain music, hillbilly songs, and a couple of mournful ballads by Hawkshaw Hawkins. I never heard of this Hawkshaw Hawkins fellow before, but after listening to a few of his songs I can assure you that he's seen more grief than a soap opera heroine. All his girls either die or marry somebody else, and either way he's left with a broken heart.

Regardless of which button we pushed on that juke box, the words and music sounded just like the tune that had just ended.

Anyhow, the music and the steaks put us in such fine fettle we weren't mad at anybody any more, not even the General Lewis. So we decided to drive in to Gauley Bridge and sleep at the Conley Hotel that night.

I won't bore you with a long build-up on that one; it will suffice to say that we made our way over Gauley Mountain in the darkness (past the Hawk's Nest golf course, ridiculously perched atop the mountain) and got to Gauley Bridge just in time to find that the Conley's last room had been rented.

Will the Golds have to sleep in their car? Will they go on to Charleston and find everything rented there, too? Tune in again tomorrow morning and find out.

Bill

Snyder Holds Stable Market For U. S. Bonds No. 1 Defense

By The Associated Press

Secretary of the Treasury Snyder said yesterday that "a stable and confident situation in the market for Federal securities is our first line of defense on the financial front."

Snyder issued a statement in effect defending his management of the national debt.

Some persons in banking circles were disappointed Friday when Snyder did not raise the interest rate in offering $13,570,000,000 in new Treasury notes in exchange for issues maturing this fall.

The Federal Reserve Board, though it did not comment on the Treasury action, generally favors higher interest rates on short term securities on the grounds that would combat inflation.

In fact, the board on Friday raised from 1½ to 1¾ percent the discount rate, or charge made, when private banks borrow from Federal Reserve Banks and give commercial paper as security.

Snyder said in his statement yesterday that the national debt, now about $257,674,000,000, is greater and more widely distributed than it has been at any other time of international crisis.

"We have an obligation of the highest order," he said, "not only to maintain the finances of the Government in the soundest possible condition, but also to fulfill our responsibilities to the millions of Federal security holders throughout the Nation."

Snyder said developments in the Government bond market "have repercussions which fan out through the entire economy."

In amplification of Snyder's statement, a high Treasury official told reporters that the huge offering of 13-month Treasury notes at 1¼ percent interest would have no inflation effect on the bond market in his opinion.

"I don't think this is going to change the price one iota," he said. This official continued:

"We are facing an unknown area during the next few months. We have been facing an unknown area since the Korean situation developed. During this period when we are not yet being pressed for new money for defense production, we felt that everything should be kept stable until we can see what will develop.

"The interim tax bill is coming along, and it will certainly have an anti-inflationary effect when payroll tax deductions start October 1. We don't think we should be building up a higher cost of maintaining the public debt at this time."

McNutt Speaks At Dedication of Legion Quarters

Indianapolis, Aug. 21 (AP).—Paul V. McNutt, World War II manpower commissioner, dedicated the American Legion's new national headquarters yesterday with praise for the Legion's call for preparedness, "for 30 years . . . a voice crying in the wilderness."

The former national commander of the Legion stood beneath American and United Nations flags and told an outdoor audience of thousands:

"Americans love freedom with such a passion that they instinctively resent any move which smacks of regimentation.

"If I am any judge of their temper at the moment it would seem that, after mature consideration rather than emotional judgment, they are ready to submit themselves to such controls as are necessary during, but only during, the period of national danger."

He reiterated the Legion's demands for universal military training and mobilization of all resources.

Panama Canal Defenses Poor

By Tom McNamara and Fred Blumenthal

(While Drew Pearson is on a brief vacation, his column is being written by members of his staff.)

Though mysterious subs have been reported in Panamanian waters since the Korean fighting, our vital Panama Canal defenses have been dangerously neglected.

It is no secret in Panama, for example, that we don't have a single fighter plane in the area. When an unidentified sub was reported lurking off the Canal Zone recently, the Navy was caught without even a scout plane and had to appeal to the Air Force for help. All the Air Force could get into the air was one lone SB-17, which scouted the water but found nothing.

Our military bases in Panama are also supposed to be on wartime alert. Yet, one month after the Korean invasion, a private plane drifted in for an emergency landing at Howard Field, a key base now run by the Army. The pilot, Enrique Kochman of Panama City, tinkered around with the instrument panel, then took off again without anyone so much as noticing him. This happened on a Sunday, a favorite day for surprise attacks.

Though Kochman reported what he had done, another private pilot, Lawrence Breece, pulled virtually the same stunt the following Sunday. He was forced down on Howard Field, also without attracting any attention. In fact, he had to spend 15 minutes hunting a sentry to report his trouble. Fortunately for Howard Field, these were peaceful private planes and not enemy bombers.

Note—A Pentagon spokesman explained that the Panama Canal has had a low priority, because the needs have been more urgent elsewhere. The Joint Chiefs of Staff believe the greatest danger in Panama is sabotage, therefore, a large, well-trained ground force is guarding the Canal. Meanwhile, planes and equipment are being readied for Panama as fast as they can be spared.

'Listening In' at GPO

Just down the street from the Senate hearing on wire-tapping, the Government Printing Office for years has been eavesdropping on the telephone conversations of businessmen.

GPO telephone operators have been ordered to plug into a central dictaphone machine one out of every three long-distance calls. At first, this was done without the knowledge of either party on the line. However, a new recording system with "bleep signals" has now been installed. By listening for the bleep tones, the contractors can tell whether their conversations are being recorded.

The original purpose of this telephone eavesdropping was to keep government employees on their toes, since they never knew when their calls were being recorded. However, the telephone transcripts sometimes were used to check up on the contractors.

At one time, the chief GPO telephone operator was so disturbed about the secret recordings that she called the Federal Communications Commission about it. She was advised to discontinue listening in on calls. However, the addition of the "bleep" signals has now legalized the eavesdropping.

No Super Agency

President Truman does not plan to create a "super agency" to administer wartime controls and allocations. He made this clear last week at a secret meeting with Government agency chiefs.

"I have no intention of superimposing an emergency board on you," Truman assured Federal Communications Chairman Wayne Coy, General Services boss Jess Larson and other top agency heads. "A super agency, set up to run the whole show, would have a demoralizing effect and do more harm than good.

"Also, it would be a waste of time and money, in my opinion," the President added. "I'm looking to each of you to deliver the goods in your own field. If everybody does his part, we'll get along all right."

Note—The meeting was part of a presidential plan to build what top advisers call a "war team" of agency heads, as well as Cabinet members and the President's own staff—all pulling together.

Johnson's Statements

Secretary of Defense Johnson is supposed to be the Nation's No. 1 authority on military preparedness. However, his own statements are the best proof that he isn't. Here are some notable examples:

Last April, Johnson stated: "We in the Defense Department know—and I say we know—that Russia does not plan to conquer the United States by force or war." He foresaw no danger of war for at least 10 years, Johnson said.

On June 29, 1949, the defense chief predicted: "Within a few short years, we may witness the end of this era of atomic secrecy . . . signaled by the explosion of some other nation's bombs." Russia exploded her first atomic bomb not a few short years but a few short weeks later—in August, 1949.

Again, on February 2, 1950, Johnson boasted: "If the Soviet Union starts something at 4 a. m., the fighting power of the United States will be on the job at 5 a. m." Ironically, the Korean invasion began precisely at "4 o'clock in the morning, Korean time," as President Truman himself announced to Congress.

Even the Korean war didn't seem to sharpen Johnson's military foresight. On June 28, he announced: "It is not contemplated to call the reserve components to active duty in the foreseeable future." Nine days later, President Truman not only called the reserves, but also invoked the draft.

Note—In contrast to Johnson's shortsightedness, GOP Congressman Dewey Short of Missouri declared after a tour of the Far East four years ago: "Korea is a danger spot. The minute we move out we know the Russians will take it all over. They have the same program in Korea as in the rest of the world."

Red News Picture Of U.S. POWs Fake, Ex-Sergeant Says

Dallas, Aug. 21 (AP).—An ex-sergeant of infantry said today a picture the Communists describe as showing American prisoners in Korea is strictly phony. He said it was taken on a pontoon bridge he guarded in France in 1944—and shows Europeans freed from a German labor camp.

Lloyd Mabray, who now manages a Dallas hamburger drive-in, said the picture appeared in the Army newspaper Stars and Stripes and in a London newspaper while he was overseas.

The Russian-controlled German news agency A.D.N. distributed the picture with a caption saying it shows American prisoners of the North Korean Reds crossing a Han River bridge near Seoul on their way into captivity behind the battle lines.

D. C. Colonel Decorated For Role in Airlift

Col. Theodore Ross Milton, 5 Pinehurst cir. nw., is one of 12 United States Air Force officers awarded decorations by the British government for their efforts in the Berlin air lift, the British Information Services announced yesterday.

Colonel Milton, Chief of Staff, Combined Air Lift Task Force, received the decoration, "Honorary Commander of the Military Division of the Most Excellent Order of the British Empire." Seven RAF officers were recently awarded American decorations for their work in the same airlift.

Correction

The carnival sponsored by the Colmar Manor American Legion will open next Monday, August 28, instead of opening yesterday, as previously reported. The show will extend through September 9.

Factory Wage Average Reaches All-Time Peak

Average weekly earnings of production workers in manufacturing hit an all-time peak of $59.02 in mid-July, the Bureau of Labor Statistics reported yesterday. Meanwhile, the factory work week averaged 40.4 hours, the same as in the previous month.
